Ag Progress Continues To Progress

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
SUZANNE KEENE

ROCK SPRINGS — Officially the estimate of the number of people who came here this week to attend Ag Progress Days was set at 65,000 to 70,000. That's down a little from last year because of the rain. But you couldn't tell it on Main Street Wednesday about noon when it seemed like everyone was standing in line to get something to eat.

When farmers, agribusiness people and others just interested in farming weren't eating, they were viewing the water quality exhibits manned by Penn State specialists, watching equipment demonstrations in the field or visiting the 320 commercial exhibits that housed more than $20 million worth of equipment.

Lieutenant Governor William Scranton visited the state ag event and praised the work being done by the state's agricultural community and its emphasis on the need for clean and reliable water supplies.

"Pennsylvania is rich with natural resources," Scranton said. "One of the most plentiful is its supply of fresh water. Surrounded by this natural abundance it is often easy to take it for granted. The theme of this year's Ag Progress Days — "Water Quality and Your Life" — accurately emphasizes the need for each of us to be aware of the delicate balance between our environment and life styles."

Last week, the "Agriculture for Scranton/Fisher Committee," a coalition of family farmers, animal health professionals and representatives from agribusiness, announced their endorsement of the Republican ticket. In making the announcement, the group said, "Bill Scranton is the only candidate who has demonstrated a sincere interest and understanding of the issues facing agriculture in our state."

Agriculture is the largest industry in the Commonwealth employing over one million and generating $35 billion in revenue annually. During Scranton's term as Lieutenant Governor over 50 pieces of legislation designed to encourage family farms, market Pennsylvania's agricultural

Drought Hay Fund

The 1986 Summer Drought Hay Fund has received a total of $11,825 to date. So far, $5,400 has been used to buy good second hay for donation and $410 has been used to help support transportation.

If you want to contribute to this drought hay fund, make your checks payable to 1986 Summer Drought Hay Fund. Then send your check to Lancaster Farming newspaper, 22 East Main Street, P.O. Box 366, Lititz, PA 17543, attention Hay Fund or attention Editor.

Westmoreland Co. Farmer Sees Drought Conditions For Himself

BY MARGIE FUSCO
Cambria Co. Staff
Correspondent

The publicity may have died down, but Bob Gray's concern hasn't. The Westmoreland County farmer attracted media attention when he traveled to the South with a load of hay on August 5 and 6 to view drought conditions first-hand.

"I guess it all started when I decided to give some hay," he recalls. Because of declining market prices, Gray had cut back on his beef and hog operation this year and found himself with surplus hay. When the call went out from the Pennsylvania Farmers Association for hay donations for the drought-stricken southeastern states, Gray was quick to respond.

But, he admits, he was skeptical. "I wondered if it was as bad as I'd seen on TV. And I was leery about whether the donations were going where they were needed." So he asked to go along with a load of hay that left Westmoreland County, bound for the Charlottesville, Va., area. What he saw there removed any doubts he had.

"The 400 bales of hay we took were distributed evenly, with 50 bales going to each of 8 farmers. At first I took a look around and said, 'You don't seem to be as hard hit as Georgia and South Carolina." In response, the Charlottesville farmers took him to a farm where the corn, planted in May, stood just 10 inches high.

In an average year, he told me, he'd get 650 round bales on the first

Mike King Works to Overcome Physical Limitations, Help Others

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

Editors Note: In 1978 Mike King, a Chester County farm boy, had a motorcycle accident that left him a paraplegic. The struggle to mature under added pressure of physical limitations was climaxed last summer when King took a challenge to travel by wheelchair across the United States from Alaska to Washington D.C. and turned this challenge into a personal triumph.

We heard last week that Mike had exchanged his wheelchair for the seat of a Stieger tractor pulling earth-moving equipment to build a golf course on one of the King family farms located west of the Octorara High School. We took the opportunity to visit with Mike and learn how a paraplegic and his family handle farm life with this kind of physical limitation. So here is an update on "The Mike King Story".

Q. Mike, so we can learn a little more about you, would you introduce your family to our readers?

A. My parents names are Paul & Dorothy King. They grew up down there in Cochranville, and they have made it their home for 28

Dairy Farm Recognition

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

STATE COLLEGE — A farm recognition program to enhance the consumer's view of the wholesomeness of milk has been operating in New York state for the past three years. And now Stephen Spencer, extension dairy specialist at Penn State, wants to begin a similar program in Pennsylvania. Called the "Dairy of Distinction" program, dairy farms are judged by their appearance from the roadside. And the farms that look nice are awarded a colorful farm sign and a certificate. Lancaster Farming newspaper has joined Dr. Spencer in the desire to see such a program designed and put into operation in Pennsylvania.

Sue Renolds, executive secretary of the New York program, told Lancaster Farming this week that 287 farms have received the distinction and hold current award status. The state is divided into 10 districts. Each local district has a committee to act as judges and to present awards. The awards are often presented at June Dairy Month promotions, dairy princess pageants, or at other times when media coverage can be obtained.

The farms of recipients are checked each year to assure the appearance continues to give a pleasing impression to the consumer's of milk who drive by the farm.

A volunteer state committee forms the backbone of the program to give direction and to insure a continuation of the program Because of the volunteer nature of the state organization and the local committees, the work is accomplished with a very low budget supported by milk promotion funds.

In calling a meeting of dairy leaders and other interested persons, Dr. Spencer said, "We believe that numerous Pennsylvania farmers deserve credit for their work and effort. In Pennsylvania we have some of the more picturesque farms in the country."

A representative of the New York program is scheduled to attend this meeting.

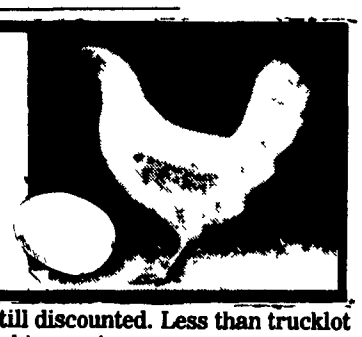
POULTRY MARKETS



Eastern PA and NJ Poultry

Wednesday, Aug. 20, 1986
Report Supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Prices were lower for this week's trading and filling in for next week at slightly lower levels of 10-10½ cents. Seller offerings were increased and plants were currently projecting a return to full schedules. Finished product sales were picking up as raw costs declined and ranged fair to fairly good.

Prices Paid at Farm:

Light Type Hens: 10-12½, mostly 10½-11.

F.O.B. Plant: 12-15, mostly 13.

Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, Aug. 21, 1986

Market Comment: Demand for ready to cook whole birds was mixed but insufficient to clear current offerings, especially over three pound sizes. Offerings were at least adequate and negotiable. Demand in the dark meat complex and wings had tapered in several quarters although little deterioration was noted in trading prices. Cutlets and breasts were still discounted. Less than trucklot asking prices were lower in a general range of 57-65 cents. Live supplies were at least adequate. Weights were mostly desirable to heavier than desired. The undertone remained weak and unsettled.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva:

Estimated 8/21 1,904,000; Actual 8/14 1,464,000.

Actual 8/19 1,926,000.

Average Weights 8/19 4.38, 8/12 4.24.

Philadelphia Eggs

Report Supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Prices were unchanged to lower on large and extra large. Trade sentiment was mixed and unsettled. Movement was irregularly light to fairly good. In some quarters packers were working on planned features, mainly on large. Supplies of extra large were fully adequate overall large were in heaviest supply and mediums were adequate to fully adequate. Gradable offerings were irregularly available and several traders were projecting increases in lightweight product next week due to newer flocks in the field. Breaker interest was cautious.

Prices to retailers: sales to volume buyers, consumer grades white eggs in cartons delivered store door: A Extra large 67-74; A Large 65-72; A Medium 53-55.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

AUG. 25-31, 1986

Mantet and Astrachan — pick early apples while you can.

Nineteenth Amendment to the U S Constitution went into effect, ensuring women the right to vote, Aug 26, 1920 Last quarter of the moon Aug 27 (Wed) Elizabeth Ann Seton, the first American-born saint, born in New York City, Aug 28, 1774 Average length of days for the week, 13 hours, 20 minutes Indebted farmers led by Daniel Shays and others prevented general court from convening in Springfield, Mass , Aug 29, 1786 Swedish-born actress Ingrid Bergman died in London, Aug 29, 1982 Some men, like some melons, are hard to know

Ask the Old Farmer: I've heard the phrase 'easterly loom" used to describe the appearance of Maine islands that seem to float above the water Is this the correct terminology? C M , Vergennes, Vt Yes — it's a coastwise phrase describing a mirage An easterly loom usually makes islands and points seem above the water, vessels look upside down and distances are all fouled up

Home Hints. To treat blisters try boiling oak bark in water to make a strong tea which can then be applied externally to the affected areas

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Beginning of week sunny, warm north, seasonable south, mid through end of week rainy and cool
Greater New York-New Jersey: Week begins sunny and mild, midweek clear and hot, week ends with showers and mild temperatures
Middle Atlantic Coastal: Clear and hot through midweek, rainy and mild at end of week

ATTENTION TOBACCO FARMERS!

Several of us Yankees went South again last week. We met a lot of new folks and we had a very productive trip. We are excited for this years marketing season!

Remember that 609 Tobacco is very easily bruised and sun-burned. Cut your tobacco in blocks that you can handle. Try not to leave tobacco in field overnight. It is preferable to use ladder wagons. If you use flatbed wagons take care when loading & unloading, not to tramp on tobacco, etc. Do not let tobacco lay on flatbed for long length of time.

When hanging tobacco in the barn, leave plenty of air space between laths. Since you are trying to "air dry" your tobacco it is a big help to close up your barn when the outside air is damp & reopen when air is clear & dry. If using mechanical drying methods be careful not to blow air directly at the tobacco but create a method to circulate the air around the tobacco. You've come this far to get tobacco in the barn; don't "burn" it.

Lancaster Farming

OPINION

Pennsylvania Agricultural Secretary Richard E. Grubb reports two open letters of thanks. One from Delaware State Ag Secretary William Chandler, Jr., and one from Thomas Irvin, Commissioner of the Georgia Department of Agriculture.

Chandler says, "There are no words to describe the feeling a farmer gets when he sees his crops dying from a severe drought. It's a feeling that gathers in the pit of your stomach and weighs you down every day. In the midst of the worst drought in Delaware in a century, many of you have managed to lift the spirits of a few Delaware farmers in a way that only a good soaking rain could rival. You've reached out with free hay, trucks and encouragement to help our farmers fight the dry weather and continue to feed their livestock. On behalf of these farmers and all Delawareans, I want to say thanks. The hay that you have given maybe gone in a matter of days or weeks, but the gesture of concern for your colleagues in Delaware will not soon be forgotten."

Irvin says, "Record-high temperatures on drought conditions continue to cause multiple problems for Georgia crop and livestock producers. However, the offers of assistance we have received from across this country have given us an opportunity to work toward long-term solutions for our problems. We contine to be grateful for the outpouring of concern from farmers and other citizens, departments of agriculture, corporations and numerous other companies. I am writing today to inform you of Georgia's continuing need for hay to feed our livestock and to again ask for your help. We would certainly appreciate any assistance you can give us in spreading the word about Georgia's continuing hay needs. We understand, as well, that with time hay donations will by necessity expire. And we, of course, will work with you and your producers in obtaining hay for sale. I would like to stress, however, that this is not the first year in recent times that Georgia producers have faced a drought. For seven of the last nine years, our producers have suffered from severe weather in the form of either droughts, freezes or some very untimely heavy rains. This combination has left our producers in the worst financial shape in the southeast. Again I speak for all Georgians in thanking you and your farmers for the tremendous generousity shown to our state's producers during this severe crisis. We know that with time and help from our friends like you, Georgia agriculture will recover. Your contributions to that recovery will not be forgotten."

Grubb, in making announcement of these open letters, said that Pennsylvanians should also know that the department has received informal expressions of appreciation for their generousity from other drought-affected states. SSeveral thousand tons of hay and trucks to haul it south have been donated through the department, farm organizations, civic clubs, business and groups of private individuals. Hay pledged through the department's hotline has been received by farmers in South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, Maryland, Delaware, Florida, Virginia and Alabama.

Many people in Lancaster Farming Territory have contributed to this generous outpouring of benevolence. Many have done so quietly and without regard to any personal gain or publicity.

Paul Brubaker of the Mennonite Disaster Service summed up the attitude of many farmers who made contributions of hay and funds to the haylift. Brubaker said, "Our fellows keep on working to help. But they don't look for very much publicity."

So all we can say on behalf of farmers in response to these letters of thanks is a sincere "You are welcome. We are glad if we can help a little."

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin
Lancaster County Agriculture Agent

To Be Alert For Silo Gas

We are fast approaching silo filling time; in fact many farmers are servicing their equipment now. This is one of the best methods of harvesting the corn crop to obtain maximum feed nutrients. With our large tower silos, the danger of poisonous gases becomes more important. We urge our farmers to discuss this hazard with their employees and all family members. These gases can develop from one day to 14 days after the silo is filled. Most of the gases have a chlorine-laundry bleach odor and irritates the eyes and respiratory system. Some are yellow and some are colorless. Don't take any chances — warn all your people of this danger.

Never enter a party filled silo without running the blower for at least 15 minutes. These gases are heavier than air and will come down the chute and into the barn. Be careful around recently filled silos.

To Prepare For Local Fairs

We are rapidly approaching the time for local fairs. These times should be happy events — but once in a while they are not because planning was not done ahead of time. This is the time to take necessary precautions to help prevent the possibility of taking disease to the fair with your animals or bringing infection home to your farm.

Many fairs require health charts and specific tests or vaccinations for animals and poultry. Be sure to read the health requirements carefully. And, it doesn't hurt to be more strict than what the regulations may require.

Animals or poultry with any form of ailment should be left at home.

When animals or poultry leave the fair and go home, it's important to have a place where you can isolate them and observe them closely for a period of time before returning them to their herdmates. If in doubt, consult your veterinarian for advice.

To Keep Stand-By Generators In Order

The value of stand-by generators was very evident this summer with the many power failures from lightning and high winds. The important thing is to have a generator that is in good working condition. We never know when we will have storms (rain, snow, ice or wind) that will take away our regular power source.

Highly mechanized farmers are urged to test their generators and be sure they are in top condition. If the generator is old, or not in good condition, it might be wise to invest in another one. Some losses have been very high due to the lack of electricity for a short period of time. Planning for emergency action when electric power is off is very good management.

To Fertilize Alfalfa

The fall of the year, after the removal of the last cutting, is a good time to topdress existing alfalfa stands. The application of a phosphorus-potash fertilizer (according to a soil test) in the fall will strengthen the alfalfa roots and result in higher yields next summer. Nitrogen should not be needed on established alfalfa stands because alfalfa is a legume and produces its own nitrogen. Some growers topdress with fertilizer in the fall and again after the removal of the first cutting in the spring.

This should result in maximum yields with a healthy stand. When alfalfa plants are well fed and treated for insect injury, they should be able to stand weather adversities. Alfalfa plants are heavy feeders on both phosphorus and potash. Unless these elements are replaced each year, the plants and yield will suffer.

FARM FORUM
OUR READERS WRITE

Dear Editor

In reference to Gail Stull's letter in the Farm Forum August 9 issue concerning basil being a problem weed.

It seems she is making reference to Wild Basil–Satureja vulgaris–*description rose-purple flowers, mingled with hairy bracts that give them a wooly appearance, are in a dense rounded cluster at the top of the square hairy stem and in smaller clusters in the upper leaf axils. Flowers, June-Sept. Habitat--Roadsides, pastures, thickets.

I know of no nursery company that sells this plant.

Nurseries and herb farms do sell cultivated Basil--Ocimum basilicum — and other varieties of basilicum that are annuals and valuable food seasonings. These plants are annuals and present no weed threat.

The importance of indentifying a plant by the correct Latin name to avoid this kind of confusion cannot be over-emphasized.

Back to the pasture problem. Sounds like pasture rotation, fertilizing, mowing, reseeding are needed. The weeds are just indicators of a problem with the soil.

P.S. Basil, ocimum basilicum is wonderful minced on garden fresh tomatoes. We will send you some recipes to redeem its bad press!

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

DOES GOD DELIVER?

Background Scripture: Daniel 3.
Devotional Reading: Daniel 6:10-18.

Survival is one of the principal values in our society today — that is, doing whatever one has to do at whatever cost to get through a crisis. All kinds of compromises and surrenders are blessed in the name of "survival."

Now, I'm not against survival, as such, but neither do I believe it is the highest of all values. Actually, in the long run, none of us permanently survive in this earthly life. Yes, let's survive as long as we can in this situation and that, but not at the cost of our integrity in the sight of God.

BUT, IF NOT

That's one of the things that makes the story of Daniel so provocative for us: it is a story of survival vs. loyalty. Faced with what Daniel and his friends faced, many of us would have said, "What the heck, if it comes to that, a little idolatry can't be all that harmful if I remain true to God in my heart." Or: "I can serve God better, if I survive!" But Daniel and his friends — Shadrack, Meshach, And Abednego — decided that loyalty to God was more important than earthly survival. (Actually, we might say they were interested in long-term, rather than short-term survival.)

Now, the sticky point is that Daniel and his friends survived because they were faithful and loyal to God. Thus, we may be led to falsely assume that being loyal is the way to survive. Unfortunately, we know that it doesn't necessarily work that way. There are lots of examples of people who have suffered a great deal because they have tried to remain loyal, rather than compromise their faith. The chief example: Jesus.

DELIVERANCE

We are liable to miss the key to Daniel and his friends: they did what they did, not because they were assured of surviving, but because they could not bring themselves to sacrifice their loyalty to God for the sake of escaping the fiery furnace: "... be it known to you, O King, that we will not serve your gods or worship the golden image you have set up" (3:18). Even if they were to die a horrible death, they would not compromise, for the "deliverance" they would receive from God would be of a much higher order than their physical deliverance from the furnace.

It would be the deliverance that counts in the long run — the deliverance of eternity.

If you knew how to make an extra 50¢ a bushel on your corn, what would you do?

Being the wise farmer you are, you would investigate the claim is it true? what's the catch? Well, it's pretty simple Investigate AeroDry

AeroDry is a proven, reliable, and extremely economical system for drying grain on your farm And it pays off for you in lots of ways

1. You make the profit grain elevators make.
With AeroDry, instead of sitting in long frustrating unloading lines waiting to learn how much you're going to lose in dockage charges, you simply load your grain non-stop into your own bin No harvest slow downs No wasted time And your grain belongs to you, so you can sell when it's most beneficial

2. Low cost drying.
Compared to any heat-drying unit, AeroDry uses only about 25% of the energy to do the same job and does it better The AeroDry Computer controls fan-forced fresh air to dry grain naturally You pocket the savings

3. Premium test weights.
Your grain stays perfect, undamaged by heat and cracking protected from mold by evaporative cooling That means the highest possible test weights for you And that means money

4. Long term profit.
An AeroDry System pays itself off in about 3 short years Then it's pure profit Clean and simple, year after year

Now that you've got an idea how to make an extra 50¢ a bushel on your corn, what will you do? Being a wise farmer you'll investigate AeroDry Send for more information today, or call for a local rep to give you the rest of the good news about AeroDry

Omaha Weekly

Thursday, Aug. 21
Report Supplied by USDA

Slaughter steers and heifers ended the trading session this week weak to .50 lower than last weeks levels. Declines in boxed beef channels and an expanded slaughter rate the past two weeks combined to curtail buyer aggressiveness.

Slaughter cows opened the week with lower prices, but by late week, had recovered to close at steady price levels. Slaughter bulls closed firm to 1.00 higher.

Estimated 5 day receipts this week 4,200 compared to actual receipts last week of 4,900 and 7,617 last year. Slaughter Steers accounted for 43 percent of receipts this week, Heifers 44 percent, Cows 11 percent, Feeder Cattle 0 (zero) percent.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: Closing sales Choice 2-4 1050-1350 lbs. 59.00-60.75; Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 1050-1250 lbs. 57.00-59.00; Good 54.50-57.00; Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 Holsteins near 1400 lbs. 50.50.

SLAUGHTER HEIFERS: Cosing sales Choice 2-4 950-1125 lbs. 58.50-60.25; Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 925-1050 lbs. 56.00-58.50; Good 52.50-56.00.

Average of LS 214 detailed price quotations for Choice 900-1100 lb. Slaughter Steers this week 59.33, 1100-1300 lbs. 60.33. Average cost of all Slaughter Steers this week 59.37, average weight 1,166 lbs. compared to 59.56 and 1,164 last week. Average cost of all slaughter Heifers this week 58.60, average weight 1,031 lbs. compared to 58.55 and 1,021 lbs. last week.

Except for soft, high moisture cheeses such as cottage and Neufchatel, cheeses should be served at room temperature to bring out their individual flavors and textures. Take harder cheeses out of the refrigerator about one hour before you plan to serve them; and softer cheeses, 20 to 30 minutes before.

Having trouble cutting cheese? Try a cheese wire. It's a fine-gauge wire with a wooden or metal wire at each end. You can cut all but the hardest cheese this way. The wire is excellent for cutting crumbly cheeses, like Blue cheese or Gorgonzola, that tend to stick to a knife blade.

Add a tasty garnish to fruit salads or apple pie with Cheddar cheese curls. Using a vegetable parer or cheese plane, shave cheese into strips and roll around finger. If necessary, secure with toothpicks, then chill.

NACD President Stresses Teamwork At Convention

BY SHARON SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

HAGERSTOWN, Md. – "Expanding the Conservation Team" was the theme of the 1986 Northeast Regional Meeting of the National Association of Conservation Districts held here on Aug. 12 to 15. Addressing an audience of about 400, Maryland Secretary of Agriculture, Wayne A. Cawley, Jr. lauded the efforts of the statewide conservation team. "Our conservation team in Maryland has expanded by the 2,200 satisfied farmers who installed Best Management Practices to treat 110,000 acres in 1985," reported Cawley.

Executive vice president of the American Forestry Association, Neil Sampson, echoed the sentiments of his colleague. "Go look at a state whose early efforts were marked by committed cooperation, and look where they are today. History proves that cooperation works," he said.

"Build the framework at the state level," he advised. "I liken it (the conservation issue) to a runaway truck with 100,000 fleas jumping around on the steering wheel trying to make their influence felt. If you want to have something to do about the direction... you have to have skill, resources and friends," quipped Sampson.

Referring to the 1985 Farm Bill, Sampson said it represents "an historic new linkage" between conservation and commodity programs. He continued with an advisory to his fellow conservationists. "You better get ready to fight just as hard in 1987; we may end up looking for a way to hold onto what we already have. History could write it off (the 1985 Farm Bill) as a fluky experience." He added that "it is very important that the 1985 Farm Bill stay intact and stay funded."

Clarence Durban, president of the NACD, added to the idea of the runaway truck, as he announced, "Your National Association is going to blow your horn in the coming months." He said, "I would predict that we're going to be more successful in the next five years than we have been in the last 40."

The president focused on three of his eight goals for the Association in 1986 to illustrate the importance of the "Team Theme." First, he said there should be an SCS technical presence in every conservation district. "NACD's goal is to see that the on-the-ground aspect of the agency is maintained," he explained. "We have all read the accounts out of Washington, D.C. over the past several months about how budget constraints are transforming many federal programs. Together, we can beat this attack on conservation programs... but it means working as a team. And that team has to include NACD, the districts, states and the SCS."

Secondly, the president submitted that perhaps, "we haven't done enough to showcase our efforts (as district officials.)" The third issue involved absentee landowners. "This is the last major group which still lacks a strong commitment to conservation," said Durban. "Our task is to make all absentee landowners more aware of the benefits of land management on the soil and water in the long run," he said. "When the land is torn down, it's gone. We must get that message across."

Durban also commented on the 1985 Farm Bill. "To make it work, we need to enlarge our circle of influence," he advised. "Without the support of Sierra Clubs, the Audubon Society and other organizations, we would have had a terrible time."

The president concluded with a formula for success: "Showing up is 80 percent of our success," he said. "Once you have shown up, go that extra step and take action."

The reports and challenges that the officers offered to the audience also fell on the ears of the Deputy Secretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Peter Myers, who offered challenges of his own. "Conservation really came alive in the 1985 Farm Bill," said Myers. "We feel very optimistic about this sign up (projected for ten million acres). We are going aggressively after that ten million acres," he said.

"Appropriations are the final issue," reported Myers. The 1987 appropriations hve not been totally decided. In essence, it will probably be a repeat of 1986 funding," he said. We are working on the 1988 budget right now." Though the budget can not be officially discussed before the President's State of the Union Address in January, Myers offered his opinion "without divulging any State secrets. We have projected over one billion dollars for the SCS budget for 1988," he confided.

Myers summed the long range conservation plan. "After 1990, anyone that is farming highly erodible land will have to implement a conservation program approved by the local SCS. We've got four years to start writing conservation plans. You are going to have the responsibility of informing your neighbors of the effect of conservation compliance." He continued, "The point is, we don't want farmers, ranchers and landowners to wake up in 1989 and find out that they don't qualify for these programs."

Myers concluded his message with an observation on "the mood of the people of the country." He said, "they are ready to tie agriculture and conservation programs together. As I travel around the country, I look at the resources God gave us and also see a spiritual and physical renewal; that's for the benefit in the long range of the generations to come. The main thing is, let's work together."

Thornburg To Attend Outing

LANCASTER – Gov. Dick Thornburgh will be on hand to kick off the festivities at the "Wenger for Senate Family Outing" to be held here at Dutch Wonderland on Tuesday, September 2.

"I am delighted that Governor Thornburgh will be joining us for a few hours of fun, food and friends," said Republican Senator Noah W. Wenger. "We are anticipating attendance by many other special guests, including a number of cabinet members, elected officials at both the state and local level, and other dignitaries." Wenger is running for reelection to the 36th Senatorial District seat.

According to Bob Brenneman, chairman of the "Wenger for Senate" finance committee, the atmosphere at the well-known resort, located east of Lancaster along Route 30 (Lincoln Highway), will be casual. "We want everyone to enjoy their evening at the park," he said. The park's amusement rides will be operating from 4 p.m. until 7:30 p.m. A picnic buffet will be served from 5 p.m. until 7 p.m.

Brenneman said the cost for the entire evening's entertainment is just $25 per adult and $5 for children under 12 years old accompanied by an adult.

For tickets and information, contact the Republican Committee of Lancaster County, 220 North Duke Street, Lancaster, PA 17602, telephone 717-392-4165; or the Chester County Republican Committee, 16 Wilmont Mews, West Chester, PA 19382, telephone 215-696-1842.

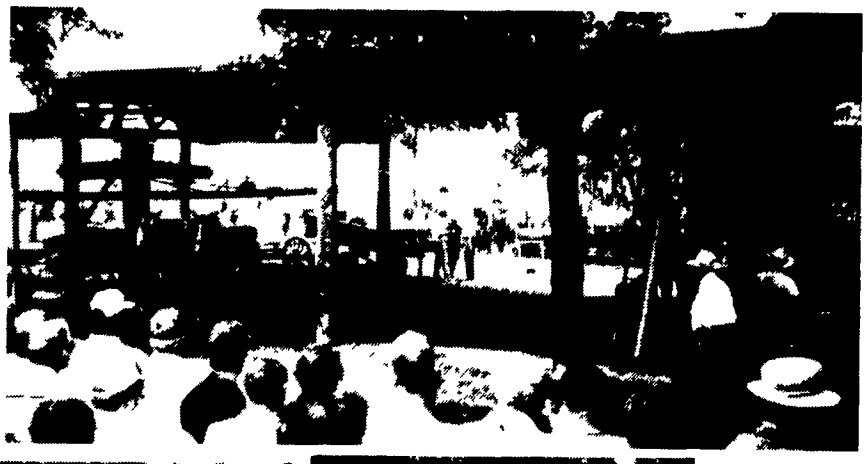
Rough And Tumble Old Threshermen's Reunion



You might have called it the greatest show on earth if you were an old time steam and gas engine buff. Certainly anyone who attended the Rough and Tumble Old Threshermen's Reunion at Kinzers last week would not likely have argued with you. At least you could join others in calling the event "one of the oldest shows of its kind."

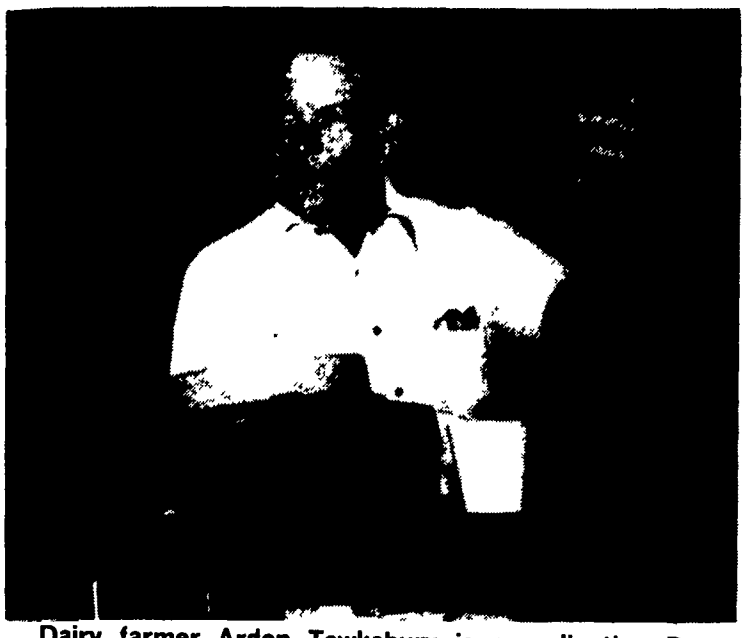
Farm Aid Meeting Drafts Recommendations

BY JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

YORK — Country singer Willie Nelson's Farm Aid program stirred local interest recently, at a meeting hosted by the York County Farmers Union.

The session, held at the Adams Electric Cooperative offices, focused on an upcoming national conference to draft recommended federal farm policy.

A United Farmer and Rancher Congress is planned for Sept. 11 to 13 in St. Louis, Mo. Nelson's Farm Aid program has given a $250,000 grant to help finance that confab. More than 500 local meetings are being held across the country to gather grassroots input and elect delegates to the conference. Ten Pennsylvania local meetings have been held, including four last week in Potter, York, Somerset and Bedford counties.



Dairy farmer Arden Tewksbury is co-ordinating Pennsylvania's imput for the upcoming United Farmer and Rancher Congress, sponsored by country singer Willie Nelson's Farm Aid.

During the York meeting, Thomasville grain farmer Albert Bentz was elected local delegate. Alternate delegate is George Hoke, Jr., of Spring Grove.

Featured during the session was a slide presentation, narrated by Willie Nelson. That program presented a historic perspective of the development of national farm programs and policies, and their relationship to farm income and financial crisis.

Leader and speaker for the meeting was Meshoppen dairy farmer Arden Tewksbury, who is serving as the Pennsylvania co-ordinator for the Farm Aid-sponsored United Farmer and Rancher Congress.

According to Tewksbury, American farmers are punished for being too productive. And, he says, studies report that some two-thirds of consumers would be willing to pay higher food prices to help farmers stay in business.

Discussion among the dozen farmers attending the York meeting centered on critical farm issues to be considered by the Farm and Rancher Congress in drawing up farm policy recommendations. Issues addressed include over-production, changes needed in distribution and marketing systems, imbalance and quality problems in imports and exports, lack of cooperation among farm groups, lack of farmer participation in commodity marketing programs, and financial and credit hardships.

Also addressed for policy consideration at the Congress were needs for increased ag education and awareness in elected representatives and schools, enforcement of quality standards for exported grains and imported products, import limits tied to domestic agriculture economics and the development of industry-controlled supply-management commodity programs.

Farm organizations supporting the Congress include National Farmers Union, the American Agriculture Movement, the North American Farm Alliance, National Farmers Organization and the National Save the Family Farm Coalition. Farm Bureau, the nation's largest farm organization, has declined support of the conference.

Additional information on the Farm Aid-sponsored conference is available by contacting the York county co-ordinator, Albert Garber, at 792-9400.

Dairymen To Discuss Promotion Funds

WILLIAMSPORT — The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council is preparing for its annual series of district meetings which will explain to local dairymen how their funds are being used. The first meeting will take place on Wednesday, August 27 at 7 p.m. at Mifflinburg Community Park for District 19.

District 19 is directed by Fred Epler from Lewisburg. It covers the counties of Bedford, Blair, Centre, Clinton, Columbia, Fulton, Huntington, Juniata, Lycoming, Mifflin, Montour, Northumberland, Perry, Snyder, and Union. All area dairy producers are welcome to attend.

Over 30 percent of Pennsylvania dairy producers are members of ADADC, contributing over $2.4 million to the program each year. This meeting will review how these promotion funds are used to promote milk in the Pennsylvania area. ADADC's activities include TV, radio and billboard advertising as well as promotions in supermarkets and restaurants.

The meeting will include a complementary chicken barbeque, with milk and ice cream included. Everyone is requested to bring a dish to pass and table service. Reservations are necessary.

Reservations and tickets can be obtained by contacting the following district committeemen:

Fred Epler, Lewisberg, 717-524-9708; John Walter, Lewisberg, 717-523-6315; James Sanders, Millmont, 717-922-1218; David Dietrich, Mifflinberg, 717-966-2438; Robert Pardoe, Milton, 717-524-7625; Leon Musser, Lewisberg, 717-524-4361; and Theodore Shuck, Mifflinberg, 717-966-2053.

NEW!! ACCU-LINE®
PULLET WEIGHT PLUS

helps keep pullets at target weights.

What it is

The Accu-Line® Pullet Weight Plus™ brand feed is an optional Accu-Line pullet grower ration that increases pullet weights:
- For pullets under management stress
- For heat stressed pullets Accu-Line Pullet Weight Plus rations are available as a complete feed or through the use of special concentrates.

How it Works

Purina nurtitionists have found that by changing energy sources while maintaining a proper amino acid to energy ratio. Pullet Weight Plus rations will allow pullets to gain closer to target weight projections in stress conditions. Through the use of a highly available energy source, feed intake is maintained closer to normal. Thus, the maintenance of amino acids, mineral, and vitamin intakes allows pullets to maintain proper frame development in proportion to the total body weight gains.

With breeders selecting earlier sexually maturing pullets, it is more essential than ever to maintain pullets nearer breeder's target weights and frame development guides.

Low energy rations that reduce growth rate and compensatory growth programs should be used with caution since proper frame development and/or body weight targets may not be achieved prior to onset of production.

Ag Progress Continues

products and preserve farmland have been implemented.

"As governor, I intend to work with farmers and local governments to develop and administer agricultural land preservation programs," Scranton added. "Our agricultural community and state government should work together to assure that our products continue to hold center stage. By working with the Export-Import Bank to develop international markets and by developing long-term produce contracts with major supermarket chains in this state, we can work to displace imports and assure the continued vitality of our agricultural community."

Scranton was accompanied by a number of state officials including Secretary of Agriculture Richard Grubb and Penn State Dean Lamartine Hood.

To get a grass roots feel for what people were thinking about their experience at Ag Progress, informal, random interviews were conducted with people on Main Street at the show. Here is what these people were saying.

The Ag Progress visitors interviewed found much to interest them at the annual agricultural fair. In fact, they saw so many things that most found it impossible to name just one that was most interesting.

"Everything is interesting," observed Dale Smoker, a dairyman from Elliottsburg. However, when pressed, he confessed that a new piece of machinery that wraps round bales in plastic for storage captured his attention.

Ron Reese, a dairy farmer from Port Matilida, and Rodney Bruss, a dairyman from Julian, agreed that they had seen many interesting things and even had a few ideas they might put to use at home. "I've seen ideas I'd like to take home," Reese said.

The field machinery demonstrations caught the eye of Armstrong County farmer Bob Stitt and his son Charlie. Company representatives demonstrated the latest models of field equipment designed for crop production and harvesting, including chisel plows, heavy-duty disks, no-till planters and forage harvesters, mower-conditioners, tedders, rakes and balers.

Barry and Cathy Barns, farmers from Portage, came to Ag Progress specifically to look at farm equipment and to compare models. "We come every year," they said. This year, they arrived early, but by mid-afternoon had paused for a rest.

Ken Ewer and his family from Quakertown were enjoying the event but said they would like to see more exhibits geared toward the small farmer. Ewer and his daughter have only a few acres on their farms and consider themselves hobby farmers. They think there are many others like them who farm 25 acres or less.

Ag Progress visitors weren't the only ones having a good time. Larry Jordan, coordinator of the plant pathology farm at Penn State, was enjoying the opportunity to share his research with others. "It's our time of year to show everything off," he said. This year, Jordan had a raspberry trellis system to share with small fruit growers.

Another exhibitor, Ira Whiteman with Doebler's Hybrids, was also relishing the opportunity to share his company's products with farmers. "We do take great pride in putting up a nice booth," he said.

Whiteman said he has been coming to Ag Progress for years and has watched the event grow year after year. More and more companies want to be seen, and ag fairs like this are the place to do just that, he said. "Since Pennsylvania doesn't have a state fair, this is the closest thing to it," he added.

A quick glance around the crowd offered assurance that these weren't the only people enjoying the fair. Everyone seemed to have found at least one thing that made the trip worthwhile for them.

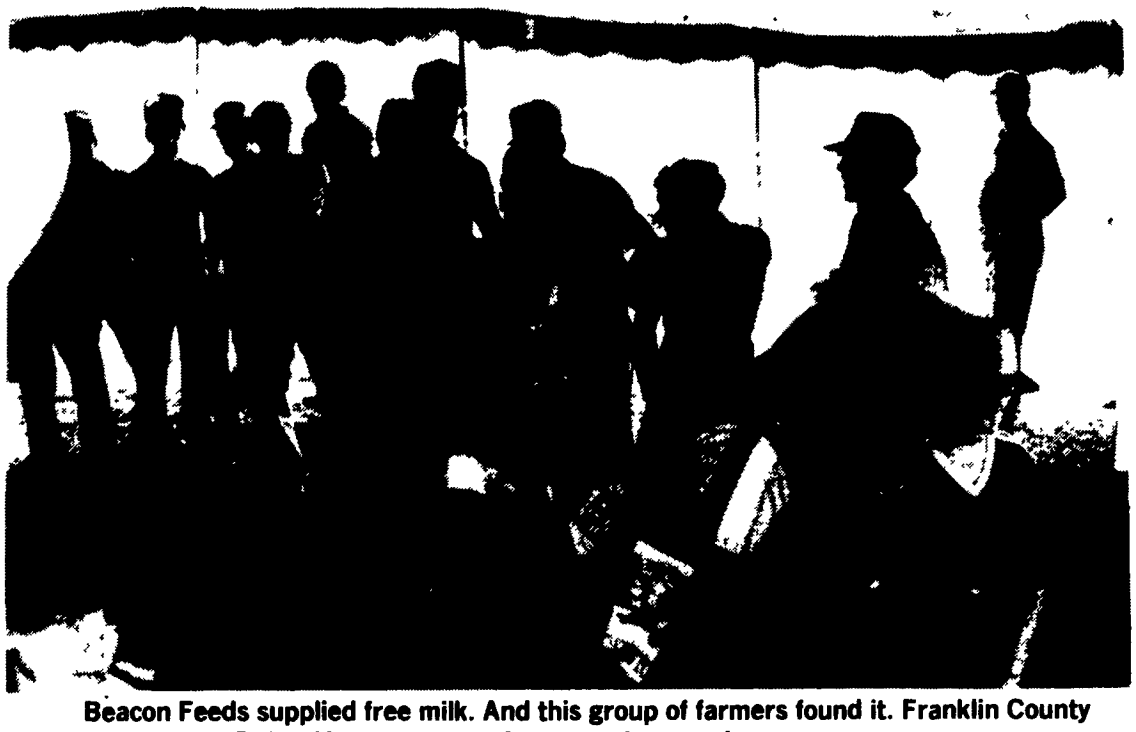
Jerry and Sharon Rice and their 22-month-old daughter, Tara, take a break from their Ag Progress activities for a snack. The Rice family has a dairy farm in Mt. Pleasant Mills.

The most modern equipment available was shown at Ag Progress. This round bale wrapping machine was imported from Norway by Mega-Tech International to be displayed for Cummings and Bricker, Inc.

Beaver/Lawrence County Dairy Princess Karen Leslie was distributing "I Love Milk" stickers to Ag Progress visitors Wednesday. Here, 9-year-old Kendra Forsythe of Mifflinburg receives her sticker.



Beacon Feeds supplied free milk. And this group of farmers found it. Franklin County Dairy Princess Debra Hall was on hand to greet the crowd.

Ag Progress Hay Show Winners Announced

ROCK SPRINGS — A Washington County beef farmer won two of the three sections in the State Hay Show at Ag Progress Days this week. In Section 1 Jay McCarrell, RD 2, Eighty Four, had the champion hay entry in the field cured, no heat or hay preservative division, with later cutting alfalfa. The same kind of later cutting alfalfa partially field cured plus heat dryed (no hay preservative) won the Section 2 division. "We had excellent weather," McCarrell said. "And of course we sprayed for bugs and kept the fields fertile." The McCarrells farm 182 acres and have a beef cow and calf operation.

Winner of Section 3, partially field cured plus hay preservatives was David Witmer of Carlisle, Cumberland County. The Witmers have a dairy and crop farm 450 acres. Witmer has used preservatives for the last four or five years because it lets him start making hay several hours earlier in the day. And he can contiue later into the night.

A total of 32 classes in the three sections were part of the show. Unless disapproved by the exhibitor, any sample placing first, second or third in any class was stored for exhibit at the 1987 Pennsylvania Farm Show. The hay was judged on both visual and chemical analysis. The first three placings in each class follows:

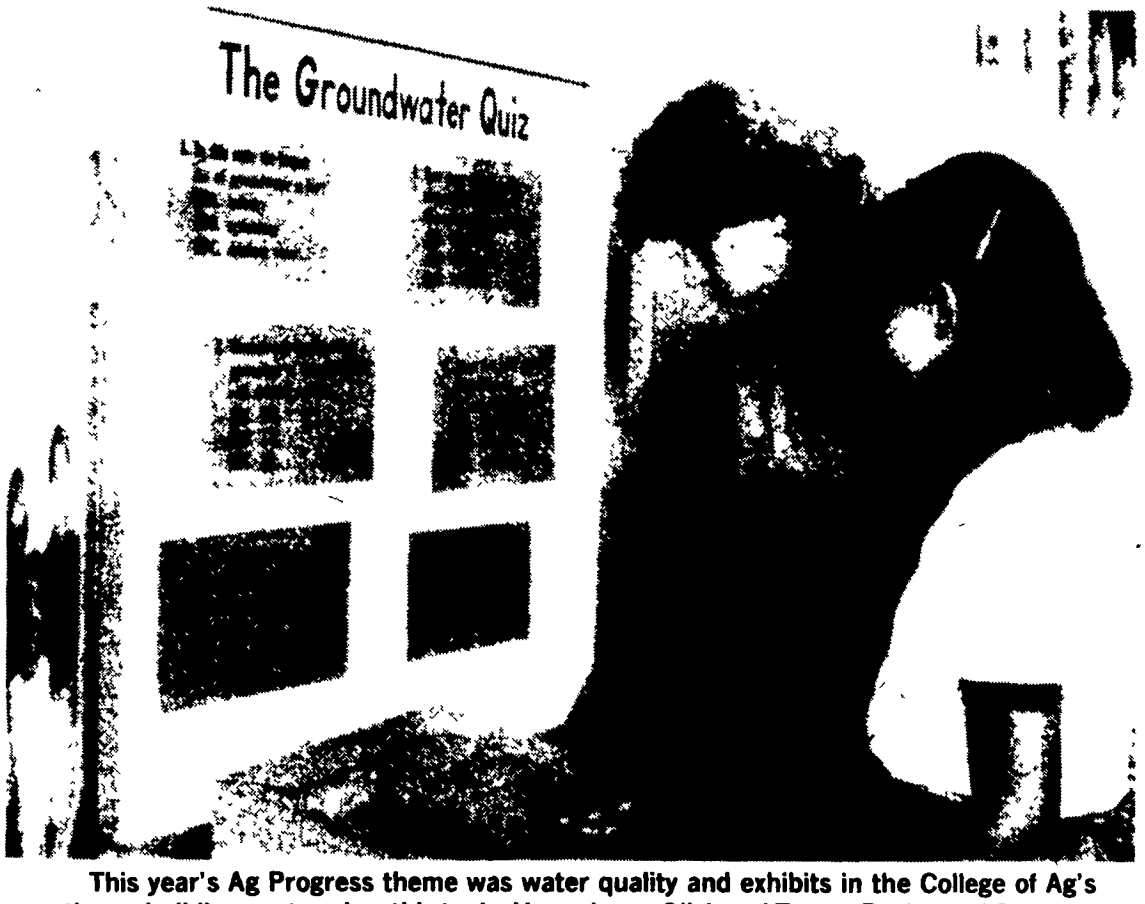
Playing with danger, Cindy Hantz from James Creek in Huntingdon County was fascinated by a bull with a hat. While the big fellow patiently accepted the pat on the head, he sometimes left people know enough was enough. Tim Guyer from State College looks on. The cap was supplied by Anchor. The bull was Lyn Lee Farms, State College.



This year's Ag Progress theme was water quality and exhibits in the College of Ag's theme building centered on this topic. Here, Jenny Glick and Teresa Bashore of Oley test their knowledge of groundwater.

Handle Dairy Products Properly

BY SUZANNE KEENE

ROCK SPRINGS — Dairy farmers work hard to provide consumers with a clean, quality product, and careful handling must continue once the product has left the farm, Penn State Food Science Professor Sidney Barnard told Ag Progress visitors Wednesday.

Barnard was one of several Penn State Extension employees who offered mini-lectures at the annual agricultural fair in Rock Springs this week.

Proper handling of dairy products in schools, hospitals and restaurants is essential for the consumer's safety, he stressed. Once milk is pasteurized and packaged, it should be quickly cooled to below 45°F. To assure that milk is in this temperature range, he explained, the air temperature should be about 30°F.

Milk cartons need to be stacked correctly to allow for maximum air flow around the containers, assuring quick and efficient cooling.

"Temperature is the key to shelf life," he said. Every 5°F. increase over 40°F. cuts the shelf life in half. For example, milk that will retain its quality for 10 days at 40°F. will keep only five days at 45°F.

Stores handling dairy products should rotate milk properly, making certain customers get the freshest product possible, Barnard said. All milk cartons are stamped with a "sell by" date, which is 10 days after the milk was processed.

Milk should be used seven to 14 days after processing. Consumers should remember that purchased milk has alreay been in the store a few days and probably should be used within three to five days of purchase, Barnard said.

Barnard added that milk should also be stored in opaque containers because light affects the flavor of the product.

Homemakers who choose to mix liquid and powdered milk to economize, should use only sanitized containers, he said. "Be sure that the pitcher is washed and sanitized," Barnard stressed.

Frozen dairy products like ice cream also need special care to maintain quailty, Barnard cautioned. Frozen dairy products should be stored at temperatures below 0°F

"The lower the temperature, the better the quality is," he said. When temperatures rise above 0°F., ice crystals form on the product.

When serving ice cream or other frozen dairy products at home, make sure to return them to the freezer as soon as you are finished serving. A warm ice cream scoop makes serving hard ice cream a little easier, he suggested.

Farm-City Day Offered Something For Everyone

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Berks Co. Correspondent

READING — Berks County farmers did a host of promoting as they entertained and promoted their products to city folks at the annual Farm-City Day on Penn Square in Reading.

The day began with an apple dumpling with milk eating contest sponsored by Ontelaunee Orchards and the Berks County Junior Holstein Club. Fifteen people from the public competed to try and consume their desserts the quickest.

One of the favorite contests of the day was the Pedal Tractor pull contests with participants from the county and city between the ages of 4 and 10 years old pulling for the champion title. Sponsored by Weavers Hardware, Fleetwood, the winners in each age group included: ages 4 to 5 years - Kent Ruth, Fleetwood, son of Joe and Joanne Ruth; ages 6 to 7 year - Gil Grove, Reading; ages 8 to 9 years - Daniel Martinez, Reading; and ages 10 years - Benji Leatherman, Hamburg.

Drawing the largest crowd was the annual cow milking contest featuring local officials and businessmen and a dairy farm wife on each team. Sponsored by the Berks County Holstein Association, the contest had a dairy cow from each breed which a person on each of the four-member teams had to milk. The team of Phoebe Bitler, dairy farm wife from Fleetwood won the contest. Also on her team was Joe Schuchman, Reading Marketing Association; Scott Bradley, WLYH-TV, Channel 15; and Jim Snavely, WBYO Radio.

The Berks County Dairy Farmers sponsored an ice cream eating contest with many enthusiastic volunteers, and the Berks County Goatherders sponsored a goat dressing contest that was greeted with many laughs when the local businessmen tried to dress the goats.

Also promoting their products and agricultural efforts were the Berks County Conservation District and the Soil Conservation Service with a Water Conservation Race. The Berks County Cattleman's Association sponsored a Guess Weight and Age of Beef Animals Contest. The Berks County Sheep and Wool Growers sponsored a Guess Weight and Age of Lambs Contest, and the Eastern Pennsylvania Pork Producers sponsored the Guess Weight and Age of Market Hog Contest along with the Twin Valley FFA Club.

Penn Square featured exhibits and displays that day telling people about the great agricultural products in Berks County. Live poultry and a petting zoo were available. Granges participated with delicious foods, and a spinning demonstration was also presented.

Berks County agriculture took over the city that day and city people were able to enjoy the country in town.

A crowd pleaser at the recent Farm-City Day in Reading was the cow milking contest where businessmen tried their hand at cow milking.

ENLS Has New Sponsor

WEST FRIENDSHIP, Md. — James Moxley, Jr., chairman of the board of directors of the Eastern National Livestock Show, announced that Southern States Cooperative, Richmond, Virginia, will sponsor the Junior Stockman of the Year Contest at this year's show. Southern States has granted $1000 to be awarded the individual winners in the day-long event to be held during the show on Tuesday, September 30 at the State Fairgrounds, Timonium, Maryland.

4-H and FFA teams from all over the region will test their skills and knowledge about the livestock industry.

The scholarship awards are intended to be used by the recipients for further education in agriculture at a college of their choice.

Wayne County Crowns Junior and Open Dairy Champions

HONESDALE — Junior and senior dairyman showed their finest at the recent Wayne County Youth and Open Show.

Trudy Vail captured the championships in both the Ayrshire and Brown Swiss Open Show, while Jay Vail swept the Ayrshire and Brown Swiss competition in the Junior Dairy Show. Jay also took home the reserve senior and grand champion rosettes in the junior Jersey competition. Topping the junior Jersey show with the junior, senior and grand champion ribbons was Richard Terrel. Reserve junior champion honors of the youth contest went to Kevin Weist.

In open Jersey show, Rob Terrel and Nancy Vail showed the grand and reserve grand champions respectively. The junior championship went to Jon and Beth Cassel, with Nancy Vail also claiming the reserve junior champion title. Capturing the open grand champion Guernsey position was Carol Eltz.

Carol Eltz also garnered the reserve senior and grand champion Holstein spot of the open show, being edged out by Adam Kennedy's cow who topped the open Holstein show.

In the youth show, David Banicky walked his animal to the senior and grand champion slot, followed by Karen Dix in the reserve spot. Dix also claimed junior championship, while Tim Rutledge showed the reserve junior champion.

Vanco Tops Warren Holstein Show

BY NANCY KUNICK
Crawford Co. Correspondent

PITTSFIELD — Stephen J. Vanco of Conneauttee Holsteins, Sugar Grove, pulled out a winner with Simpsons Jester Jewel at the recent Warren County Open Holstein Show.

The 5-year-old cow topped the competitors in her class by having "the best udder" according to judge Dennis Carlberg. She went on to claim grand champion of the 120 entries that were exhibited before Carlberg, a Holstein breeder from Falcon Crest Holsteins in Frewsburg, N.Y. He described the show as being "a pleasure to judge" and was very impressed with the "outstanding quality throughout the day."

Jewel exemplified the quality he was looking for as he noted she had "a lot more size, strength and tightness of udder, a lovely dairy cow" during his reasons for placing her first in her class.

Scored at 90 points, Vanco notes that she is the fifth generation of Excellents or Very Goods. She is projected at 19,000 milk, and at 250 days she has 17,000 milk and 580 fat.

Surprisingly Vanco says that she has never been shown before. "My wife Cheryl and I used to show quite frequently and at one time had a top produce of dam at the All-American. Time became a factor and now we just show a few at the local fair." Vancos showed four at Warren this year and stood first in the dry 3 and 4 year old, five year old and produce of dam classes. All four exhibited were owned and bred by them. More proof to the adage, "It's quality not quantity that counts."

Reserve grand champion honors went to the first place cow in the 100,000 pound class. The nearly 7-year-old Arlinda Commander daughter "walks well on her feet and legs and is super well balanced", according to Carlberg. She was shown by her owner and breeder Charles Ames of Jamestown, NY. With her at the helm he also claimed first in the large, quality class of daughter and dam entries.

Junior champion was garnered by a junior yearling sired by Elevation's son, Hilltopper Elevation Warden. Termed as "a hard heifer to follow" she is owned by Heidi Block and Robert and Candace Morrell. Block also took several firsts in the calf classes. Reserve junior champion went to Ken Loomis of Sunrise Ridge with his senior calf sired by Leadfield Columbus.

Dean and Melinda Johnson of Hem-View Holsteins in Warren are quickly becoming collectors of premier awards. After the tally late Thursday they had turned out dual winners of the premier exhibitor and premier breeder banners. This is a repeat performance of the July 24 Erie County Black and White Show, held at the Waterford fairgrounds, where they also won the premier breeder and exhibitor banners.

years now. Dad and mom started to farm there when they got married. I have four brothers. My oldest brother is Rodney. He is a year and a half older than myself. He's living in Saratoga, Florida. I'm second. My name is Mike. Curt is next to me. He is 24. Next to him is Ken who is 22. And Wendall is the youngest. He'll be turning 16 in a couple of days, which he is glad for.

Q. You grew up on a family farm, active, strong, able to do all kinds of things and able to get things done. Then you had your motorcycle accident. That left you parlyzed from the waist down. What went through your mind as it started to dawn on you that you may have some physical limitations?

A. Well I was thinking right away I will no longer keep the same goals or do the same things that I wanted to do in my mind at that time. I graduated from high school in 1976. And, you know, a normal kid I guess going throught high school playing as many sports as I could, and still helping out Dad here at home on the farm. Sports was definitely in my blood–in our family. We all enjoyed base ball, soccer, the whole thing. And I worked contruction for two years after graduation before my cycle accident. At the time I left on my cycle trip I was planning to go into business with Dad on the dairy farm after I got back. The cycle accident changed those plans. I thought that everything, you know, life, was over. Mom and Dad were going to take care of me from now on, as long as I lived. That's what I was thinking during most of the time in the hospital. (I spent two and a half months at E-town Rehab, once I got out of Hershey Medical Center where they did my back surgery). At home they had to take me upstairs to the bedroom and bring me down in the morning. There was no bathroom on the first floor that I could get into and that kind of thing. That's what I was thinking that life was going to be like for me. It was frustrating.

But we decided to build an addition onto the house, which has my bedroom and bathroom and the garage attached to it. It started to give me the realization of what I was going to be able to do on my own too. Being able to get in and out of the house myself then. Having the garage right next to it. I got hand controls on my car and found out how to drive by the use of hand controls without my legs. I had a Chevy Blazer at the time, and I didn't really think it was possible for me to get up in that myself. At first I had one of my brothers pick me up out of the chair and put me in the driver seat. And they would put the chair in and I always had to have someone with me. I started lifting weights to increase my upper body strength. I said, "Man if I'm strong enough to get in and out of bed and pick myself up when I spill out of my chair on the floor, I can get into this truck, too." So I found a way to get into my van and later on how to pull the chair in behind me. To do new things became a challenge to me. I told Dad I wanted to still be able to help out on the farm with what I could. Although with the setup we have at home there is no way that I can milk cows. We had hydrostatic tractors at that time, and I found out that as long as someone got me up on the tractor I could drive the thing. We had a lot of field work in the spring and in the fall with putting the harvest in. So I was able to help out with that. And realizing, you know, more and more that I could do it.

At first it was really frustrating because our family and myself had no idea what it was going to be like. We all had the idea for the first couple months that everybody waited on me hand and foot. I didn't hardly have to ask for anything. If they would see me looking at something they would say "Do you want that? I'll go get it for you." But that has changed. Now its like when I want something if I don't feel like getting up out of another chair or if I'm sitting there watching TV or something they'll say 'No, you can go get it yourself". It was a whole new process of finding what I could do and what I couldn't do. How to treat a guy with a handicap.

Q. Well today you're obviously out of your wheelchair and into the seat of this big Stieger tractor pulling earth-moving equipment to make a golf course on 100 acres. Did they need to alter the clutch or anything on the tractor so that you could drive it?

A. No they didn't have to switch anything around on the Stieger. In fact, I don't know with all the equipment around here if they had really anticipated me driving the Stieger at all. We were behind in schedule because of some design problems we had. Till we finally got back to working, we got an extra dozer, which meant my brother Curt who was running the Stieger at that time was needed to run that dozer to help get caught up. So they asked me if I wanted to run it or if I thought I could handle it. I said, "Show me how, I'll give it a try." Once you start you don't need to push the clutch in or anything to start it up and it's a hydraulic clutch, which pushes in and out very easy. For me to put the Stieger in gear, I just reach down with my hand and push the clutch in. It's what they call a power shift, which once it's into forward motion you can go from one to 12 without having to clutch at all. To put in reverse though, you have to push the clutch. Then you have four gears in reverse. Being out in the open field, we usually run it in fourth pulling the two pans. Once it's in gear and I'm going I usually don't have to worry about stopping and starting. I just keep the throttle down at times or shift it down in gears if I need to dump more dirt in one area or another. Then of course you can shift it up if you got to take dirt all the way across the field. It's really no problem running the thing.

Q. You did tell me, I think, that C.B. Hoober & Sons at Intercourse did convert one of the tractors for you in one way or another.

A. Yes, we got the 2+2 International before they were Case IH. They came out with the 2+2 tractor, which was a four speed and took gears and a lot of braking. Hoober's rigged up a set of hand controls for us. It worked out really neat. Dad told them that I like to drive and he can use me around here on the farm to drive it. So they took one of their guys and rigged it up. They also have another customer. A farmer in a wheelchair that does a lot of field work. And they sell equipment to him. So they more or less knew the kind of hookup they needed to put on it.

Q. While they didn't need to alter this tractor for you. There must have been some changes around the farm so you could operate. I know that one of the reasons your family decided to build a golf course was a family decision related somewhat to your accident. What day-to-day inconveniences are you faced with?

A. The biggest inconvenience that I face everyday, depending where I go, is steps or doors being too narrow that I can't get through them. That's the first thing that we noticed in our house at home. A lot of the old farm houses very seldom have a door bigger than 2'8", which is the smallest door I can get through. That's the biggest thing I find when I go out into society. Most places are changing and getting fixed up for the disabled. But there are still a lot of things they can do.

As far as the inconvenience around home, I want to get out, work with my hands, work on an engine or fix something. As long as that kind of stuff is within reach, I'm OK. But it's hard for me to check oil or do those kind of things in the truck because it's up higher. Of course if I'm on equipment, I'm on till someone takes me off of it. That's an inconvenience that I've learned to live with. And my family, they know that they have to help me on and off of it. It's become a way of life.

Q. In your book "The Mike King Story", you mention that your family had some adjustments, especially in relation to other people accepting your limitation. It seemed that people began to accept your limitation but they couldn't quite accept the family's involvement. I think you mentioned particularly that your Dad had problems with this. Would you comment a bit on that to help other families of people who still may be in the same situation?

A. Naturally I was going through a set of frustrations. People that write books on personalities or how people cope with things say there are eight stages of life that a person goes through if they suffer a severe disability or a death in the family. People could understand that, yes, I would be going through those kind of frustrations. They kind of let me go through them. They didn't say it was wrong for me to feel like that. "It's natural for him to be angry with life or to be angry with God." But for some reason they didn't think my family, my brothers my parents should feel that way. In looking back on the whole situation, it was perfectly normal for anyone close to me to be hurt and feel angry. Especially my parents. They are the ones that brought me into the world. Dad being angry at God for, "Why did this happen to my son." Although that's a question that's not answered, through time Dad was able to overcome that anger and still feel good about himself, being a Christian and wanting to follow God. This kind of thing effects a lot of people. Not only the person but anyone close to them. Whether it be cousins, aunts and uncles or brothers and sisters. I think that's something people need to realize in working with a disabled person in the family. This effects more than just the person themselves. They should give the family the same freedom of acceptance and working through their frustrations just like they do the disabled person.

Q. Of course most of our readers will know you drove your wheelchair across America. I think you started in Alaska and ended up in Washington D.C. Why did you do it?

A. That's a good question. It started off as just a crazy idea. I did a lot of traveling before my accident. That was another thing I thought I'd never be able to do anymore, just go out and travel, whether it be out of the country or just to different states. I was singing with Choraleers at the time of my accident. After I took my first trip with them after the accident, I realized that I still could travel, and I still could love it. I did as much as I could. I had just come back from Brazil. After visiting my cousin down there who is with M.C.C. Dad asked me where I was going next when I got home that evening. Just off the top of my head I said I thought I'd go across the country in my wheelchair. We all kind of laughed at it. I or they never thought I'd do it. But I heard of a guy from Lancaster, John Endright, who went from coast to coast, from Ocean City to San Diego. In hearing about that I guess it caused me not to forget about it.

Why not try something like that. I was in school at the time, social work and church ministries were my majors. And working with other disabled people through the summers and through the field placements at school, I was trying to think of ways I could benefit other disabled people. That's why I turned the event into a fund raiser. The trip itself was a personal goal of mine, something I wanted to try. I always enjoyed cross country in high school. It's the same kind of endurance. The same kind of determination or perserverance whatever you want to call it that you need to push yourself like that, to go that far every day. I love to travel. I just seemed to flow right into it.

Q. So you made this trip, a farm boy. Now suddenly you're thrust into the role of a national hero–press conferences, TV appearances, talk shows. What does all of this publicity do to Mike King a Chester County farm boy?

A. I don't think it has changed me drastically. It's definitely made me a more open person. I never dreamed that going through high school or even the first couple of years in college, I could ever get up in front of a group of people and talk to them. I never considered myself a speaker. Through all this that ability has developed in me. As far as a drastic personality change, I still think I'm Mike King. I joke with my friends. I tell them if I ever get too big headed or get blown out of shape they should kick me in the pants and bring me back down to earth. Sure it feels good that people recognize me. They recognize what I've done. I try not to let it go to my head–make me egotistical or something like that. I want to be everyone's friend. I want to just help everyone that I can. I realize and I tell people I don't have the answers to any problems or any questions like that. Just through sharing experiences, hopefully I can help someone else through a struggle in rehab.

Q. You talk at many meetings and gatherings. And I know you and your family are on the program for Friendship Community, a group home for people with some physical limitations. What will you tell these people with physical limitations? What will you tell their families?

A. Basically I'll just share my experience with Mom and Dad there also. We'll say how we learned to cope with our disability. We learned to work through all those difficulties. As far as giving them a set of guidelines that would work for any family with a disability, I don't have any set pattern like that. But I do know a couple things. One major thing is communication. If you're just going to clam up and not share the anger and frustration with each other, you're going to have a lot of problems. That was the big thing with our family at the start. Nobody was talking.

Just take your time. Don't be in a hurry to get a person active again if they suffer a disability. Let them work through each stage if you want to call it that. Because if you go through it too fast, it can set you back for the future. It's just sharing those experiences that our family went through itself. It is the only thing I think that you can do. It's just that personal side of it that we found has been helpful to other people. It helps them to talk about what they're going through. It helps them to realize it or see it more clearly so they can deal with it better.

Q. If you're going to summarize the most important thing you'd like to tell our 120,000 readers across several states what would you tell them?

A. Not to put limitations on a person because you yourself think that person can't do something. I guess a quote I heard in my social studies was to never be afraid to confront a person because of what they are going through. Because you yourself can't deal with it. Naturally that is already dealing with it. I think the question you should ask yourself is "Are you going to let that person go it alone or will you be there to go through whatever it is with them?" At first my family did put limitations on me. They said no you can't do that. It's impossible for you to do that. Being stubborn enough I went out did it anyway and showed them I could. Mom and Dad really wondered last summer when I started my trip if I was a little crazy in doing something that I wasn't going to be able to do. Dad even still said to me this summer you can't drive that Stieger. Naturally you think a disabled person couldn't run a big piece of equipment like that. I think the person themselves know their limitations. They know what they can and can't do. To hinder them by putting them down or telling them they can't do that is just putting more on them. I just hope the people that hear about what I did last summer look to that more than maybe the tremendous thing that I did crossing the country. I hope they look at the message of what disabled people can do when they are given the opportunity and if they have the encouragement of people behind them.

Q. Where does Mike King go from here?

A. In a couple weeks I'll be starting my last year of grad school at the University of Penn down in Philadelphia. I'm going on for a masters in rehab counciling, which I'm hoping to work with the rehab hospital in some way. Naturally with the golf course coming around I'm not sure how much I'll be involved here. I know I'll have a share in it as a partnership deal. It is going to be a family business between my brothers, my Dad and myself. I'll find out next summer how much I'm needed as far as the work itself. And just what I can and can't do in working or running the golf course.

I do want to stay involved with the church, my church ministries degree. I've been doing a lot of youth retreats whether it's on weekends or bible studies, that kind of thing. With the masters in rehab counciling, it gives me the credentials to get into a hospital if I want to work there full-time or just kind of be a resource person to the hospitals. I can develope new programs or go one on one counciling with the disabled people or helping out in the group. A lot of doors are opening for me. I am also active in wheelchair sports, which is something I enjoy doing. Roadracing, snowskiing those kind of competitions. So that's something I want to continue with for as long as I can too. There are a lot of things that are available out there.

Mike King has a Cougar by the throttle.

Those extra bushels make a big difference...

You can get extra bushels from your soybean acres when you plant Pioneer®brand soybean seed. And, those extra bushels will make a big difference when you market your beans.

The Pioneer difference starts with the seed.

From breeding to bagging, Pioneer brand soybean seed is selected, tested and handled with care. You get pure genetic quality and yield potential from the beans in the Pioneer bag. That's why Pioneer soybean seed varieties consistently make a difference – extra bushels from every acre you plant.

Ask your Pioneer representative about Pioneer® brand soybean seed – it can make a big difference for you.

THE DIFFERENCE
Pioneer® brand soybean seed

This new late Group II variety has become a leader almost overnight. You'll find the extra yield potential displayed by 9271 can really make a difference in your operation. 9271 matures one or two days later than 2480 and consistently outyields the competition by one or two bushels per acre. 9271's excellent emergence, lodging resistance, Phytophthora Root Rot tolerance and very good shatter resistance give you the extra performance it takes to make a good soybean crop a great soybean crop.

3981

Your bin is bound to be a little fuller next fall when you plant 3981 this spring. Over the last three years, 3981 has outyielded all competitive varieties in this area by an average of 2.6 bushels per acre in 139 comparisons. What's more, this late-Group III variety performs well in all row spacings, has excellent standability and shatter resistance, very good emergence, and excellent field tolerance to Phytophthora Root Rot along with good resistance to Bacterial Pustule.

9441

Here's a variety that's proven itself to be different from the others. On 56 on-farm comparisons in this area, 9441 outyielded the strongest by an average of 1.4 bushels per acre. And with strong emergence, excellent field tolerance to Phytophthora Root Rot, resistance to shattering and very good standability, 9441 not only makes a difference in yield, it also performs better in the field. See for yourself. Plant 9441.

All-New Lancaster 4-H Fair Debuts In Manheim

BY JACK HUBLEY

MANHEIM — Under the direction of Lancaster County 4-H agent, Zoann Parker, the county's annual 4-H Achievement Day moved to the Manheim Farm Show grounds and became a two-day 4-H Fair this year.

Previously held at the Farm and Home Center, the one-day home economics event featured crafts, clothing and foods. This year, the greatly expanded fair offered its original menu of events plus club exhibits, vegetables, a benefit auction, a therapeutic riding exhibition, a volleyball tournament, as well as steer, swine and sheep shows. About the only 4-H event not incorporated into the fair was the county's 4-H dairy show, which is held in July.

"Our ultimate goal is to get all the 4-H projects in one area so that everyone can see what 4-H has to offer," said Parker. If the increased number of spectators at the livestock shows is any measure of her success, it appears that her idea has been well received.

Completed only last year, the farm show's new livestock barn and showring provided excellent facilities for the 4-H swine show, previously held at Lancaster Stockyards. A steer show that followed the hogs on Wednesday afternoon was a new event.

4-H Hogs

When you start at the top there's always the problem of what to do for an encore. That was Chad Folker's enviable predicament in 1982 when he entered the Pennsylvania Farm Show's market hog show and walked away with grand champion honors on his first attempt.

Four years later, the son of Tony and Edith Folker of New Holland proved he was in the race for the long run; first, by taking reserve honors at the 1986 Farm Show, then by kicking off a new show season with a grand champion trophy at the 4-H Swine Show.

Actually, some of 12-year-old Chad's stiffest competition often comes from his sister, Laura, who also shows swine. Wednesday's show was no exception, with Laura's entry taking champion middleweight honors and Chad copping the heavyweight division before going to the top with his 246-pound Hampshire-Duroc cross.

Since Chad's father normally makes the decision regarding who shows what, the "loser" gets to pin it on Pop. "It always works out that I get the worst ones," Chad grinned, pointing out that Wednesday's decision by judge Cheryl Fairbairn broke his sister's winning streak. To keep the peace, the Folkers split both the work and the spoils of victory right down the middle.

Chad's grand champion was bred by Lyle Bidner of Illinois, who's been supplying the Folkers with about two dozen show prospects annually since 1982.

While Chester County livestock agent, Cheryl Fairbairn, liked both Folker's and Greg Shipe's reserve champion, she gave the edge to Folker's entry because the hog was "just a little bit thicker and deeper. They're two good, meaty hogs," she said.

Fairbairn's choice for the number-two spot was just what Elizabethtown exhibitor Greg Shipe wanted to hear. After three years of 4-H competition, this was the 14-year-old Shipe's first major victory.

The son of Dar and Betsy Shipe, Greg raises his pigs in partnership with friend Tyler Stumpf in an empty chickenhouse on property owned by Shipe's grandfather. His reserve champion was a 244-pound Hampshire-Yorkshire cross bred by Omar Beam of Chester County. "I'm definitely surprised," grinned the Elizabethtown High School ninth-grader following his victory. "When the judge called my number I didn't know what to do." The top pigs were two of more than 70 head entered in this year's show.

In the sale that followed the hog show on Wednesday evening, Lancaster Extension livestock agent, Chet Hughes, took time out to honor those who help to make the 4-H program a success. Hughes presented a plaque to the Tony Folker family for a financial contribution to the fair. "We just wanted to give something back for what the 4-H program has given us," said Folker, following the presentation.

Also honored was Hatfield Packing Company for its continuing support of youth swine events throughout the county.

After receiving his plaque, Hatfield's Jerry Clemens bought both the show's grand and reserve champions, offering a top bid of $3.50 per pound for Folker's grand champion and $3.05 for Shipe's reserve. Hatfield and White Oak Mills dominated the sale, with the former buying 41 hogs and White Oak buying 21 head. Total sale volume was $12,711, for a sale of average of 78 cents, counting the champions and 70 cents without the top two pigs.

4-H Steers

Although Ruban's namesake was a shady character, Kristin Chupp's steer by that name was on his best behavior Wednesday, taking top honors at a weight of 1,190 pounds. "I was reading a book, and two of the bad guys were named Ruban and Rainy," said the 15-year-old New Holland 4-H'er, adding that she has another steer by the latter name.

The daughter of Larry and Barbara Weaver, Kristin bought her grand champion from Rally farms of New York. The purebred Angus is a Pine Drive Big Sky son.

Another purebred Angus, this one shown by 13-year-old Nikki High of Lititz, took the reserve champion trophy. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry High of Lititz, Nikki bought her steer from Big Brook Farm of New Jersey. The 1,245-pound entry is a JR Bold Image son that Nikki campaigned to reserve champion honors at the Northeast Regional Junior Angus Show held in Massachusetts in June.

Damaged Tobacco Crop

Sections of Lancaster County have been hit with devastating hail and wind storms in recent weeks that have left some tobacco and corn fields in ruin. Reports that as much as 200 acres of tobacco have been damaged south of New Holland. This area has concentrated tobacco acreage. The photo of damaged tobacco above was taken near the covered bridge east of Oregon Dairy off Snake Hill Road. County Agent Arnold Lueck said the corn fields can recover to some extent by the end of the growing season but the tobacco crop for these farmers is mostly a salvage operation.

Gor-Wood-D Acres Keeps Northeast Holstein Titles

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

TROY — Tioga and Bradford County farmers claimed top honors at the Northeast Champion Holstein show on Tuesday, at the Troy Fairgrounds, besting over 100 entrants from 11 counties.

Tioga Countian, Glenn Bowen of Wellsboro owned the entry that claimed the grand championship. Gor-Wood-D Acres, Mansfield, captured the reserve grand championship with one of the 19 animals they showed which walked away with third place or better.

These 19 animals helped Gor-Wood-D Acres to reclaimed the premier breeder and premier exhibitor awards which they have won for the past several years.

Bradford County's Lynn and Bonnie Miller, Towanda, captured the junior championship with their class winning, senior heifer calf. Reserve junior champion went to Brenda Robson, Mansfield, for her second place, senior heifer calf.

According to Jim Bowen, son of Glenn Bowen, their grand champion entry, Bowen-Vale Boots Jerry, is a homebred cow from a Canadian dam. Jerry is classified at EX-92 and as a 4-year-old cow, she has produced, in 305 days, 24,000 pounds of milk and over 800 pounds of fat. Although it is the first time she has been grand champion at a major show, Bowen said, she came in second at the Pennsylvania Spring Show at Harrisburg.

The Bowens milk 40 cows on their Wellsboro farm, maintaining a herd average of 19,000 pounds of milk with a BAA of 106.8.

"We've had the top herd four out of the past five years in Tioga County," Bowen remarked.

"She's just been a perennial show winner," said Ron Wood, son of Gordon and Dorothy Wood and herdsman for their farm.

Classified at 2E-EX-93, Margo is projected at 24,000 pounds of milk and 1,000 pounds of fat this year, Ron said. Concerning other accomplishments in the ring, he mentioned her recent grand championship at this year's black and white show at the Tioga County Fair, her title of All-

UDIA Delegates To Discuss Promotion Programs

ROSEMONT, Ill. — The House of Delegates of the United Dairy Industry Association will meet at the Hyatt Regency Woodfield in Schaumburg, Sept. 5 and 6 to approve the proposed 1987 programs and budgets, and to take action on several recommendations from the UDIA Board of Directors which recently met in Vermont.

The proposed 1987 budget represents a slight increase of 0.2 percent over the 1986 figure. American Dairy Association, the advertising and promotion arm of UDIA is seeking a budget of $3,133,000; National Dairy Council, the nutrition research and nutrition education arm of UDIA, is seeking $1,818,000 for nutrition research and $1,780,000 for nutrition education; Marketing and Economic Research Division—$842,000; Dairy Research Foundation—$359,000; Communications and Public Relations—$475,000 and Operations—$970,000. Allowing for allocation for income variation, $130,000, this adds up to a total budget of $9,507,000.

Additional funding for specific programs, such as ADA advertising and sales promotion programs, is provided by user program fees or National Dairy Board/Dairy Promotion Federation Association pools.

The general session will include addresses by J. Douglas Webb, UDIA chairman, and Edward A. Peterson, chief executive officer of UDIA.

Kristen McNutt, Ph.D., J.D., vice president for consumer and scientific affairs for Kraft, Inc., will speak at the Saturday luncheon about availability and accuracy of consumer information about food, nutrition and health.

In other business, delegates will consider the concept of the new promotion structure for the dairy industry, proposed by the National Milk Producers Federation Study Committee on Dairy Promotion and Research Structure. UDIA's Board of Directors has approved a motion supporting the concept of the single national dairy promotion organization directed by one board and one chief executive officer and calling for further study of the NMPF committee to bring about a more efficient promotion organization for the U.S. dairy industry.

Deacon Daughter Tops Guernsey Sale

LANCASTER — A just-fresh, 5-year-old daughter of Lyrene Wistar Deacon topped the recent 335th Special Guernsey Sale. Consigned by John Merryman, Sparks, Md., Leaders Deacon Clover was bred by Guy A. Leader and Sons. She has a top record of 15,400 pounds of milk and 867 pounds of fat. She was purchased by William and Nancy Cannon of Hermitage.

When the gavel came down for the final time, Big Creek F Wooly walked away with the second high price of the sale, $1,000. Consigned by Charles McLaughlin, Taneytown, Md., and Jeffery Staner, Ronks, she was purchased by Dutch Mill Farm Inc., Sparta, Wis.

A 2-year-old daughter of Dutch Mill Telestars Fayette, she sold just-fresh. Her dam and granddam were classified VG-89.

Leemin Premium Corporation of Seffner, Fl., purchased the third high selling lot for $875. A bred heifer, Guernland C Pansy, was bred and consigned by Guernland Associates, Rising Sun, Md. She is due in August to Shadylawn King Arthur.

Sired by Kellogg Minnies Choice, a full sister has a top record of 13,000 pounds of milk.

Next in the bidding and purchased by Leemin Premium Corporation for $800 was Sunnydell Jupiter Whimsey. This bred heifer is due in August to Lyrene Wistar Deacon and was consigned by Sunnydell Farm, Southampton, Mass. Her dam, a McDonalds Darimost Titan daughter has a top record of 14,245 pounds of milk and 776 pounds of fat for a 5.4 test.

Three animals sold for the pricetag of $775. Leemin Premium Corporation purchased two of these animals, while the third sold to John Merryman, agent.

Leemin bought the 3-year-old cow, Merit Jupiter Sherry, consigned by Richard Merritt, Farmington, Conn., and the bred heifer, Crumdale Bruce Lady, consigned by John Merryman.

The third animal to sell for this price, Anchor and Hope Telestar Glow, was bred by William Stroud, Port Deposit, Md.

Volume buyer for the sale was Leemin Premium Corporation with 13 head and a total of $9,000.

The sale averaged $609 on 42 lots and was managed by the Merryman Company and the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association. John Merryman was the auctioneer.

USDA Buys 'High Quality Beef'

WASHINGTON — Thomas O. Kay, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agricultural Service, today announced that the Commodity Credit Corporation has purchased 825 metric tons (1,818,000 pounds) of U.S. high quality beef with a value of $3,734,000 for export to the European Economic Community.

The beef has been sold to importers in the EEC for $1,988,000 or $1.09 per pound.

This is part of the red meat purchase requirement mandated by the Food Security Act of 1985 to minimize the adverse effects of the dairy termination program on U.S. beef, pork and lamb producers. Shipment of beef to the Federal Republic of Germany, the Netherlands, Denmark and the United Kingdom.

TRICAL ™

FOR HIGH QUALITY FORAGE HARVESTED AS SILAGE, HAY, OR GRAZE. VARIETIES AVAILABLE FOR SPRING OR FALL PLANTING.

HERE ARE WHAT TRICAL GROWERS ARE SAYING:

GENE N. EDWARDS, STITTVILLE, NY -"Trical was very winter hardy even with adverse weather conditions. We had a hard freeze, then open weather and then snow. We had a dry spring but Trical still yielded very well. If I hadn't had the 20 acres of Trical, I would have been buying feed at the time."

BOB GROSSNICKLE, WOODSBORO, MD - "The energy level of Trical really surprised me. It was 67.0% TDN. Trical reached 3 to 4 feet in height with very little rain. The tonnage was more than any other spring grain we ever harvested. (Harvested as forage) There was a definite height and leafiness over other spring grains; worked well for double cropping corn and soybeans."

LEO MARTIN, ST. ALBANS, VT. - "I was impressed with the winter hardiness of Trical. I cut 10 loads of Trical off 5 acres and probably lost 1 acre due to wet spots in the field. Even with adverse weather conditions it still allowed me to double crop with corn. My objective was to increase the quantity of forage that I could produce on limited acreage."

RON SHADDLE, MERCERSBURG, PA - "Excellent mix with alfalfa. Good tonnage (4 ton/acre) even with dry weather. Excellent smelling forage and had a protein level of 19.5%. I got an extra year from my alfalfa by using Trical."

MMI Purchases Cheese Plant

STRONGSVILLE, Ohio — Milk Marketing Inc. has completed its purchase of Jacobo Marti and Sons, Inc./Farmers Cheese plant, New Wilmington. MMI General Manager Gordon Riehl and Jack Marti, president and general manager of Farmers Cheese, jointly announced the acquisition. MMI is a dairy cooperative headquartered in Strongsville, OH with the largest number of members of any dairy cooperative in Western Pennsylvania.

The Farmers Cheese Company and Jacobo Marti and Sons, Inc. will continue to operate with the present management and personnel. Marti will continue in his present position as general manager.

Farmers Cheese is a well-respected manufacturer of Italian and cheddar cheeses, and is situated in a large dairy-producing community. Its product marketing area stretches from New York to Chicago.

According to Riehl, this acquisition fits into the long-range plans and objectives of MMI and it will benefit the dairy farmer members of MMI.

Eby trailers or truck bodies can haul anything you want — even Brahman bulls

Eby Gives You Choices

You can haul livestock in a trailer hooked to your pickup. Or on the other hand, you may prefer a truck and livestock body for its maneuverability

Perhaps you need to haul dairy cattle Or calves. Hogs Sheep Horses Even a Brahman Bull

You decide what you want Then practically design your own Eby trailer or livestock body before it's custom made Choose length, width and height Select from a variety of partitions and doors Even decide whether or not to have a tool box In short, our versatility lets you own just what you want

But you don't have to make all the choices

Every Eby livestock body and trailer is aluminum. No matter what options you choose, your trailer or body will never rust or need paint It's as much as 35% lighter than steel and wood construction for increased load capacity and lower gas mileage. And heavy-duty standard components ensure safe, trouble-free hauling for years to come

Now all these choices can be yours for probably a lot less than you expect In fact, when you figure in the durability and low maintenance, an Eby all-aluminum livestock body or trailer is a fantastic value So give us a call, or write, for more information and the name of the dealer nearest you

Butter And Cheese Prices Looking Good

Increases in butter prices that started back in June have really gone into orbit in July and August. Last month I was being optimistic about a five cent increase from $1.37 to $1.42 a pound and hoping it would stay there. I also have to admit that I said it was unlikely that it would increase another 12 cents to $1.54 when the Commodity Credit Corporation could start selling government stocks of butter. That's exactly what happened the first week of August and 2.5 million pounds were sold from CCC stocks. Since July 3 butter prices kept increasing two to three cents a week until August 1 when they jumped nearly seven cents to trigger the CCC sales.

The market price has to be 10 percent above the support price to sell. This is the first government sale since late 1984 during the diversion program.

Reasons for the butter price increases include lower milk production which was only two percent above last year in June. The hot weather and drought also cut into production in July and dropped the butterfat test in most areas. The same hot weather jumped ice cream sales (this may be a record year), which took a lot of cream away from the butter plants. It's also that time of year when wholesalers start building butter inventories for the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays before milk production drops in the fall and schools open to put greater demands on the fluid supply.

So, butter buyers at least, must be worried about how much milk will be around this fall if they're paying 17 cents more in the spring.

Cheese prices were somewhat slower to reflect the tighter supplies and didn't start increasing until the later part of July. Even so, they have made gains of up to five cents since June. That's pretty good too, when you consider that a one cent increase in cheese prices is worth a two cent increase in butter prices in terms of their effect on the farm price. Which brings us to the question — why bother talking about butter and cheese prices when farmers are only interested in milk prices?

The fact is that farm milk prices depend on butter and cheese prices to reflect the supply-demand situation in the market.

Too often producers are misled in believing that only fluid milk sales affect their prices when in reality even their fluid milk price is determined by butter and cheese prices. Roughly, a one cent increase in cheese prices will mean a 10 cent increase in milk prices and a one cent increase in butter will provide a five cent increase in farm milk prices even if the milk is sold for fluid or Class I use. So when you consider a 17 cent increase in butter prices this could mean an 85 cent increase in the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series if it holds. You haven't seen it yet because the July M-W at $11.06 which was only six cents more than June was calculated from June 15 to July 15. The increases will show in the August and September M-W and maybe less than 85 cents because more weight is given to cheese prices than butter prices when the M-W is calculated, but hang in there — there's good news ahead.

RCMA In PA

The Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency organized to obtain farm milk prices above the minimums that handlers must pay under Federal Orders is coming to Pennsylvania. Active in New York and New England during the past year the general farm organizations in Pennsylvania have now added their combined support to include producers from Maryland to Maine.

Meeting last month in Harrisburg and Williamsport they have already chosen a steering committee composed of two representatives from the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, Grange and Farmers Union. The members are Carl Brown, Pine Grove, and Karl Kroeck, Knoxville, for PFA; Ed Kremer and Robert Pardoe, Milton, for the Grange and Harold Wolfe, Centre Hall, and Arden Tewksbury, Meshoppen, for Farmers Union.

Steering committee meetings will continue through August with a chairman and farm organization representatives being selected in each Pennsylvania county sending milk to Order 2 or Order 4 handlers. These county committees will be responsible for arranging local meetings to explain the organization of RCMA and over-order pricing to all producers. They will also be responsible for taking applications for RCMA membership from producers who are not members of a dairy cooperative.

All the Order 2 cooperatives have already joined RCMA and the Order 4 cooperatives are in the process of establishing a separate association that will be bargaining in cooperation with RCMA for over-order prices from handlers in their markets. Visual aids, tape and colored slide sets as well as printed information should be available for local meetings during September. For more details see the local representative of your farm organization or marketing cooperative or one of the members of the state steering committee.

So, the stage is set to add another 50 cents, more or less, to your price of milk through cooperation with RCMA. You don't have to call your congressman or pay dues to an organization or give up any assessments from your milk check. All you have to do is provide enough cooperation along with all the other milk producers to show a united front to milk handlers to get something more than the minimum price provided by Federal Orders for your milk. The time is now and the opportunity is here. The organization has been provided and market conditions will provide a window this fall and winter to make new demands for higher prices when supplies are getting tighter every month. In addition we start a new disposal period in September under the Dairy Termination program that will help.

It's the best marketing opportunity of the last five years and if you fail now the handlers will know that you don't have the interest or ability to act together so they'll never have to worry about paying more than the Federal Order minimum or certainly not about production quotas because that will take a lot more cooperation than over-order pricing.

Order 2 Prices

While production continues higher than a year ago and prices continue lower than last year, the gap narrows every month.

Nationally, production is down from five percent to two percent since April and the difference in the blend price in Order 2 is down from 88 cents in April to seven cents in July. Next month we pull ahead of 1985 because of those butter and cheese price increases. We still have 52 cents worth of assessments that lower the farm price but improving market conditions may even wipe that out by next month.

The blend for July was $11.86 which was 59 cents better than June but 40 cents came because there was no Louisville Plan deduction in July. In August you start getting the Louisville Plan pay backs, that should be worth at least 35 cents. Add to that another 20 cents from those butter and cheese markets and you should be well ahead of year earlier prices in Order 2 for the first time since March 1985.

Just keep your eye on butter and cheese now and in the future. They make your milk price.

Pennsylvania Age Cow, and for the past two years she has been a member of the All-Pennsylvania Best Three.

The Woods milk 150 cattle at two locations near Mansfield. Forty of their cattle, according to Ron, are classified Excellent, while 86 are ranked as very good. Their herd average is 20,000 pounds of milk with 670 pounds of fat and their BAA is 108.8.

Ron commented that this year's show was a strong one and added, "If they win here, they can win any place."

Royal-Haven Valiant Prudence, the junior champion owned by Lynn and Bonnie Miller, is a homebred heifer. Lynn explained that it was her first show, but pointed out her strong pedigree credentials of three Excellent dams. Prudence's dam, Royal-Haven Patience VG-88, Lynn proudly observed, is one of their first results of embryo transplanting. She has a cow index of plus 1,287 milk and 31 fat making her their highest indexed cow.

The junior reserve champion, Gray-Valley Kit Builder Pridee, is another homebred winner, according to her owner, Brenda Robson. In addition to winning the youth junior champion award at this show, the senior heifer calf won the junior champion trophy at the Tioga County Fair in the FFA and in the open show. She also won the junior championship at the district FFA show.

Winners of the youth show, which was conducted simultaneously with the open show, were: senior and grand champion, Corey Wolff of Pen-Col Farms, Millville; reserve senior and grand champion, Terri Packard, Troy; junior champion, Brenda Robson; and reserve junior champion, Jay Braund, Troy.

On hand to pass out ribbons were Dairy Princesses from Bradford County, Yonna Taylor; Tioga County, Teresa Herman; and Sullivan County, Lynn Hembery.

Judge for the event was Lowell Lindsey, Sire Analyst for United Breeding of Ontario, Canada. Show chairman was Leigh Sturdevant of Gillett and Jake Guffey, Bradford County extension agent, served as the announcer.

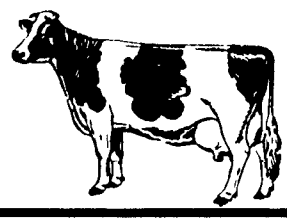
Major Dairy Sales And Dispersals Nationwide



Reports from six sales for the week of August 14 to 20 showed 1473 head averaging $1,208. These sales were held in California, Wisconsin, New York and Minnesota. The top prices at the sales ranged from $11,500 to $1,200. Here is a brief look at the results of these sales.

AYRSHIRE

The RAY STONING HERD DISPERSAL, held in Minnesota, averaged $740 on 75 head. The highest bid of the day was $1,300 on a 7-year-old Meredith Liberator daughter. Her grandsire was Woodlands Sardan Lee.

Second high bid of the sale, $1,100, came on a 3-year-old Dalton Dales Lucifer daughter. Her grandsire was Treasure Acres Admiral Captain. Rounding out the top three with a bid of $1,075 was a 2-year-old daughter of Liberator and a granddaughter of Captain.

The herd was not on a classification or production testing program.

HOLSTEIN

The VAN VLIET COMPLETE HERD DISPERSAL, held in California, averaged $960 on 1101 head. Topping the sale was a 2-year-old daughter of Arlinda Rotate with a price of $11,500. She has an in progress record at 104 days of 7,890 pounds of milk with a 4.2 test. Her estimated cow index is plus $168. Her dam, classified Excellent, is a Round Oak Elevation daughter.

Second in the bidding, with a price of $8,100, was a 3-year-old daughter of Marshfield Elevation Tony. She is classified at 85 points with an Excellent mammary. She has a relative value of 7,980 pounds of milk, 221 pounds of fat, and 135 percent over herdmates. Her record in progress, at 184 days, is 19,470 pounds of milk with a 3.7 test.

Her dam, a Chief daughter, has a top record of 33,000 pounds of milk and a cow index of 798 milk. She is a red carrier and has three sons in AI, two of which are red factor bulls.

Coming in third in the bidding was a 3-year-old Glendell daughter. She sold for $6,000 and is classified at 85 points. Her in progress record, at 237 days, is 18,650 pounds of milk and 817 pounds of fat for a 4.4 test. Her dam, an Elevation daughter, is classified at 86 points with an excellent mammary.

Jake Van Vliet noted prices were off due to the Newton Creamery's failure to pay the area farmers last month's milk check. The dairy which processes 25 percent of the milk in California failed to meet a loan payment and the bank seized their assets. The government may use the emminant domain ruling to keep the dairy in business.

Burton and Fellers managed the sale and Bruce Whittier was the auctioneer.

The EMPIRE FARM DAYS BULL SALE averaged approximately $900 on 13 bulls that ranged in age from 13 to 18 months. Two bulls, sired by Valiant and out of Arlinda Chief daughters, sold for the top price of $1,200.

The 19TH INTERNATIONAL RED AND WHITE SALE, held in Wisconsin, averaged $1,098 on 107 head. Topping the sale with a price of $4,700 was a 14-month-old heifer by Triple Threat. Her dam is a VG-85 daughter of Enhancer. She produced a 2-year-old record of 20,840 pounds of milk with a 4.2 test. At a sale in Canada the heifer's dam sold for $11,000 and she is a maternal sister to Cannonade.

Second in the bidding, with a price of $4,100, was a December 1985 calf by Enhancer. Her dam, an Enhancer daughter, is classified EX-91 with an Excellent udder. Her top record, at 4-09, 365 days, is 24,820 pounds of milk and 971 pounds of fat. The next three dams are Very Good and Excellent.

A 7-year-old daughter of Triple Threat sold for $3,500 to come in third in the bidding. She is classified at VG-87 and has a lifetime record of 115,000 pounds of milk.

The sale was co-managed by the Red and White Dairy Cattle Association and C. Mayhew. Don Albrecht was the auctioneer.

HPI Coordinates Efforts

RUTLAND, Mass. — Farmers from around Massachusetts gathered at Heifer Project International's Overlook Farm recently to deliver 6,700 bales of donated hay bound for drought-stricken Southern farmers. HPI, along with the Massachusetts Commission of Food and Agriculture, coordinated the effort focused at the development organization's Northeast Center.

The state agency provided transportation for the hay while National Guardsmen worked hand in hand with HPI volunteers to load bales onto flatbed trucks for the haul to Boston's Logan Airport. There, a Boeing 727, courtesy of Federal Express, took the hay to its Charleston, South Carolina destination.

A spirit of goodwill was summed up by Charlie Fiske of Ledge View Farm in Rutland who said, "I don't mind giving when people are up against it. I'm sure they would do the same for me if my back was against the wall."

8 Reasons For Choosing... CABLEVEY

(1) CABLEVEY Saves Labor - That's important when you want to maximize milk production by feeding more often.

(2) CABLEVEY Saves Feed - Many dairy producers have found the milk production increased even with equal or less feed after installing CABLEVEY.

(3) CABLEVEY Pays For Itself - Just from the increase in milk production alone, many systems have paid for themselves in 12 months or less.

(4) CABLEVEY Reduces Feed Separation — Unlike flex augers, feed separation is minimal... that means a more uniform ration to all cows.

(5) CABLEVEY Handles High Moisture Corn — The 2" system and plastic drops are specially designed to handle high moisture corn without constant hang-ups.

(6) CABLEVEY Takes The Corners — Specially designed 90° corners allow efficient system operation for nearly any barn layout.

(7) CABLEVEY Saves Energy — 1 Motor and 1 system handle many livestock operations.

(8) CABLEVEY Controls Feed By Weight Or Volume — Cows individually fed a pre-set amount by Weight or Volume automatically 5 to 8 times per day for highest efficiency.

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

Holding On To Rural Ethic

Only by soaring high above the everyday scene is it possible to take in the whole picture. What picture? In our case it's the farm scene. Not only our little segment that we like to call the Dairy Business, but the whole of agriculture. We are all in the same boat, and what affects the dairy business, will have its impact on the rest of the farm scene.

The cliche, "It's hard to soar when you're working with a bunch of turkeys", is more humor than fact. The truth is, you and I are not a flock of mindless fowl. Farmers have become an elite group of individuals, comprising an ever smaller minority of the total population. Our greatest danger from occupying that position is that we get so busy and intrigued by what we are doing that we fail to comprehend the whole.

Our unique obligation to the whole of humanity is not only to feed them. We are already doing that only too well. We have an even bigger obligation to humankind. That is to find a way to spread our rural ethic of hard work, honest dealing, and love of the land to the rest of the world.

Not that we as farmers have the only handle on these things. There is a large segment of society that maintains the same ethic. But there is an even larger segment that has little exposure to the kind of rural culture that made America great. The rural ethic is made up of a lot of little things—things that we take for granted.

Closely tied to the standards implied and founded on Christianity, most of what we call a 'Rural Ethic' is really founded on Judeo-Christian teaching. Stated almost too simply, it is grounded in love for your neighbor, love of the land, your animals, and the beauties of creation.

Farm life seems to promote and expand that kind of Ethic. It can be applied to business dealings, as well as every aspect of everyday farm operations. When seeds are sown with hope and optimism, it will be done with all the care necessary to get results. When the crop is sold with the same charitable attitude, the business deal is consumated with all parties satisfied. The Rural ethic is alive and well.

The same applies to the way we express our love for the animals we work with and that work for us. They are chattels, but for the true husbandman, they are more. They become almost a part of the family, and our human emotions are often imparted to their care and tending.

The world is too full of the brothers of Judas, who are willing to sell drugs to our youth, trade secrets to competitors, and our country's defense secrets to potential enemies,—all for a fast dollar, and with no thought for the welfare of their fellow men. The pursuit of this kind of non-ethic can only be destructive to society as a whole. It can even invade our rural-Christian ethic, if we let it.

Our farm publications give air to the latest ideas on how to deal with modern problems. Some are valid, and some are false. Read them with care, and be alert to shallow and self-serving doctrines. Be aware that there are false prophets, very glib of tongue and therefore very convincing in their arguments. There are also honest, sound thinkers who have good ideas about the trends in agriculture. Our task is to sort them out and help expand on their ideas, and to help others understand the truth.

The future of our Agricultural economy will depend on how well this small minority of people now engaged in working the soil maintain their Rural ethic. The Ethic of work, honest dealings, and love for the land as well as their fellow man can be expanded. Only the high-flying eagle can see the whole landscape below, and only the high-minded person can see beyond the cracks and crevasses of the crumbling morals of modern society.

Lancaster Field Day Set

PEACH BOTTOM — The Lancaster County Field Day is scheduled for Thursday, August 28, at the Paul Welk Farm in Peach Bottom.

A judging contest kicks the day off at 10:30 a.m. Three classes will be judged with winners in all categories receiving recognition. Bob Knutsen of Rising Sun will serve as the official judge for the contest. There will be a brief program and fellowship following the catered lunch.

Lunch begins at 12 Noon. The cost is $5 per adult, $3 per child ages 10 and under. Reservations must be sent by August 22 to Jay Ranck, RD 2 Box 355, Peach Bottom, Pa. 17563, phone number 717-548-3155.

To get to Welk's farm from Lancaster take Rt. 272 South through the Buck to Wakefield. Pick up Rt. 222 South through Mechanics Grove. After the MG Brethren Church turn left at the Y. At the Little Britian Elementary School turn left, continue approximately three miles to the first blacktop road, Black Barren Road. The Welk Farm is the first one on the right. Watch for Field Day signs.

In other club news: the tenative date for the Annual Meeting and Banquet is November 6. Also, entries are now being accepted for the Holstein Futurity for animals born from September 1, 1985 through August 31, 1986.

USDA Buyout Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An estimated 25,900 head of dairy cattle were slaughtered in federally inspected plants during the week ending August 2, as a result of the Dairy Termination Program, the U.S Department of Agriculture announced Wednesday.

This total includes all cows, heifers and calves identified as dairy animals designated for disposition in compliance with the program requirements.

The cumulative total of cattle slaughtered under the program from April 1 through August 2 is an estimated 643,000 head.

The purchases of meat in addition to normal purchases are to help offset the effects of the DTP on the domestic meat market. These purchases, which totaled 10.8 million pounds during the week ending August 16, consisted entirely of frozen beef carcasses. The cumulative purchases total 265.2 million pounds.

Dairy cattle reported for export under the program for the period April 1 to August 16 totaled an estimated 25,900 head. Live cattle exported under the program are expected to increase as countries develop tenders participate in the export enhancement program.

One of the attractions at the Somerset Holstein Picnic was the Kiddie Pedal tractor pull. Two entrants in this event were Philip Peterbrink, left, and Mark Marteeny.

Somerset County Holstein Picnic

BERLIN — The Somerset County Holstein Club held its Annual Fiesta recently at the Berlin Community Grove, Berlin.

County junior dairy bowl team members pitted their dairy knowledge against that of the Holstein Club directors, with the directors coming out on top by 30 points.

Members of the Holstein directors participating were: Bill Hunsberger, Davidsville; John Will, Berlin; Paul Countryman, Berlin; Dan Carr, Somerset; Dennis Reiman, Shanksville; and Don Glessner, Berlin.

Members of the junior dairy bowl team were Thadd Will, Berlin; Jenny Welch, Berlin; Matt Welch, Berlin; Heather Welch, Berlin; Jenny Brown, Garrett; and Mike Lynch, Friedens. The team has placed second in state competition.

A kiddie tractor pull was a new event offered at this year's fiesta. The tractor and sled used in the competition were like those used in professional tractor pulls.

The competition was to be divided into age categories, but fiesta chairman Barbara Berkley said: "Something happened. Those senior members would have pulled all night if someone wouldn't have stopped them."

Trophy winners in the pedal pull were John Paxton, Meyersdale; Nicholus Hunsberger, Davidsville; and Jim Paxton, Meyersdale.

An old fashioned square dance was held following the competitions.

THE NEW VARIETY ALFALFA THAT LIVES UP TO ITS NAME.

WE NAMED IT EDGE, BECAUSE THAT'S WHAT IT GIVES YOU!

It's the leading edge in yield, quality and profits in hay, pasture production, haylage and multiple usage. EDGE is a significant breakthrough in Alfalfa Variety engineering, combining many superior clone selections to provide the following outstanding qualities:

RESISTANCE TO ALL FIVE MAJOR ALFALFA DISEASES:

Bacterial Wilt — Verticillum Wilt — Anthracnose
Fusarium Wilt — Phytophthora Root Rot

MULTIPLE PEST RESISTANCE:

Lepto Leaf Spot — Pea Aphid
Stem Nematode — Spotted Alfalfa Aphid

WINTERHARDY FOR LONG TERM STANDS

HIGH YIELD POTENTIAL due to overall built-in resistance factors against diseases, pests, cold temperatures that rob other varieties of the stamina needed to produce high quality yields.

EDGE is recommended for farmers seeking: High yields with quality. Long rotation stands. Alfalfa for problem areas affected by major diseases.

Crop	½ in	1 in	2 in
Alfalfa	74 Pct	40 Pct	7 Pct
Red Clover	82 Pct	63 Pct	8 Pct

RATE TO SOW — Straight Seedlings— approximately 16-20 pounds per acre Heavier seeding for thicker stands and better yields In mixture—8 to 10 pounds

HARVEST PROPERLY

Cutting, Conditioning and Baling... Shorter drying time after hay is cut increases hay quality and cuts losses from rains Conditioning saves up to 10% more hay by preventing leaf losses and saves vitamin A

Grazing .. Tests show livestock will consume more dry matter per acre when grazing is controlled (either daily or weekly rotational grazing)

STAGE of ALFALFA MATURITY WHEN CUT

Columbus Daughter Tops Centre County Sale With $3,050

BY MARY MAXWELL
Centre Co. Correspondent

CENTRE HALL — Top bidders at the Eighth Centre County Holstein Club Ag Progress Sale were Ron and Candy Wasson of Mt. Supreme Farm, Boalsburg.

They bought Tussey-View Columbus Casino, a senior yearling sired by Leadfield Columbus-ET for $3,050. Bred to Bower-Farm Genius and due in mid-September, she was consigned by Tussey-View Farms, Centre Hall. The Wassons also bought her dam, Tussey-View Sexation Cameo, classified at Ex-90, at the Nittany Lion Fall Classic last year. Her next dam classified at VG-86 with a top production record of 21,820 pounds of milk and 789 of fat.

The second-highest animal sold to Fairbrook Farm, State College, for $2,175. Oakleigh Farm Carlin M Millie, classified at VG-85, is the daughter of Carlin-M Ivanhoe Bell and Oakleigh Farm Superior Mildred, classified at EX-90. This 4-year-old cow produced a top record of 29,780 pounds of milk and 899 pounds of fat. E.W. and J.C. Brake, Mercersburg, consigned her.

Another Tussey-View Farms animal, 3-year-old Tussey-View Pabst Prilly sold third-high. A daughter of Char-Sam Elevation Pabst, she classified at 84 points. Her dam, Tussey-View Reflection Patsy classified at EX-90, 2E. Her top record stands at 21,900 pounds of milk and 892 pounds of fat with a 4.1 test. Robert Connolly, Howard, bought her for $2,100.

Vera Foster, Petersburg, bought the fourth high-selling animal for $2,000, Will-Lo Sexation Donna, consigned by Willard J. Yoder, Huntingdon. The 4-year-old cow is bred to Paclamar Astronaut to calve in early September. She is classified at 83 points and is the daughter of Ocean-View Sexation and Will-Lo Donna Paclamar-Twin. Her dam, an 8-year-old, has a lifetime record of 101,200 pounds of milk and 3,782 pounds of fat. Her next dam classified EX-90, 3E.

The sale averaged $1,282 on 46 head. Gross volume was $59,000.

The Pennsylvania Holstein Association co-sponsored the sale, held at Centre Hall Grange Fairground, with the Centre County Holstein Club. John Ishler and Fred Strouse were co-chairmen. Thomas Dum Jr. and Clarence Stauffer did the selecting. Auctioneer was Henry Bachman and V. Art Kling read the pedigrees.

cut of hay. This year he got 150 bales, but he'd given most of that away to neighbors because his need wasn't so bad then. He'd figured the drought wouldn't last forever, Gray recalls.

Gray was appalled by the conditions that the farmer was suffering. "He had a feeder calf operation, but nothing to feed the calves," Gray explains. "Because there was no grass left, he'd fenced off an acre or so of woods and was letting his animals pasture there, using the leaves for food. He said when the low leaves were gone, he'd have the wood cleared out and sold for lumber but would save the top leaves for forage. The day I was there, he had a lumber company in, taking out trees elsewhere on his land and leaving him the leaves as feed."

When he returned home, Gray was invited to tell television and newspaper reporters in western Pennsylvania about what he saw. Although the media coverage lasted only a few days, Gray doesn't want Pennsylvania farmers to forget.

"What I saw there could happen to any one of us. There's no one who can predict a drought like that. Even if they could, how many of us would believe it ahead of time?" Gray asks.

Gray, at age 56, understands the spirit of farming that doesn't appear on the balance sheets. "I was raised on a farm, and even though I didn't have a farm waiting for me when I became an adult, I felt that farming was always with me." He recalls watching his grandfather threshing and milking the cows by hand, and small joys such as, "the way birds follow the tractor, diving into the furrows after worms you turn up." He found a career in the fuel business; He was able to purchase his own farm and start his second career a dozen years ago.

"I asked the farmer who was hit so hard if he was going to give up. He said, 'They may come to take this land away from me, but if they do, they'll find me in a corner screaming and kicking, fighting them the whole way. This is my life, and I'm not going to give it up without a fight.' I think there's a piece of that fight in everyone who farms," Gray remarks.

In addition to learning first-hand about the plight of southern farmers, Gray adds that he's gained a new respect for truck drivers. When interviewed, he'd just spent several days on the phone trying to locate trucks to transport hay from Butler County and was hoping to accompany another load south later this week.

"This operation wouldn't work at all if it wasn't for the truckers, especially the independents," he says. He noted that some who have been idled by the USX strike have volunteered their rigs and time, as have drivers who haul lumber and other loads from the south. "One night after I'd been on TV, I got a call from a trucker. He said he and his wife were sitting around the living room when they saw me on the news. His wife reminded the trucker that he was going south for a load of watermelons the next day and said, 'why don't you do something decent for a change?' So he volunteered to help."

Gray says that mnay of the truckers get involved despite their own hardships, such as work lost to the strike. He was especially struck by the cooperation of Lonnie Lauver, a Brownsville, Pa., trucker who's had a run of bad luck lately. Lauver's truck was stolen recently, then an accident left him with crushed vertebrae in his back. When Lauver volunteered to help haul the hay with his new rig, he told Gray, "Maybe if I do something nice for someone else, my luck with change."

During unloading in Virginia, Lauver's new truck was struck by a motorist, bending the truck's axle. "You'd expect a man who's had that much hardship to throw up his hands and back off," Gray says. "But on the way home he said to me, 'I'll take another load next week."

Gray says what he's seen has made him feel good. "I'm constantly amazed at the heart some people have." He adds that Pennsylvania farmers should know their gift is being gratefully accepted in the south.

"One farmer told me when the call came from his extension agent saying there was a load of hay coming from the north, he got a tingling feeling right from the top of his head down to his toes. That kind of appreciation is worth hearing about," he notes.

Gray still cherishes the small things he saw on his trip. "We drove all night, and as daylight broke we were in Virginia and we could see farmers going out to do their milking. They'd stop what they were doing and wave to us. As we drove on, people everywhere would wave or give us the thumbs-up sign." He even recalls a state trooper who caught the trucks speeding by on his radar but gave an OK signal out his window and didn't stop them. "I've been halfway around the world, but that morning was one of the highlights of my life," Gray says.

He concludes, "The 50 bales of hay I gave didn't mean anything. It was the appreciation I saw that was important. If other farmers asked me what they should do, from my experience I'd say send hay until it hurts and then throw on an extra hundred bales."

State Championship Holstein Show Set

STATE COLLEGE – The Pennsylvania Holstein Association's Fall Championship Show is set for Thursday, September 4, 1986, beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the Agricultural Arena on the Penn State University campus. The judge for the top Holstein Show in the state will be John Morris from Frederick, Maryland.

A day off on September 4 could easily be one of your most enjoyable days of the year. Exhibitors will bring their cattle to one location for your inspection. Make this your opportunity to compare cattle and learn from your fellow breeders.

This year's Championship Show will finalize All-Pennsylvania winners for 1986. These animals will also be recognized during the day's activities.

The 1986 Keystone Futurity winner will also be selected. The participants will split prize money in excess of $1,000.

Make plans now to be in State College on September 4 to observe Pennsylvania's finest Holstein cattle. More information on the Show can be obtained by contacting the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, 839 Benner Pike, State College, PA 16801, 814-234-0364.

New Dairy Board Members Sought

A call for nominations to the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Advisory Board was made this week by State Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb. Deadline is September 5.

The Advisory Board directs a $2 million advertising, promotion and research program financed by over 4,000 Pennsylvania dairymen.

Secretary Grubb invited dairy producers and organizations representing dairymen to make nominations. Nominees must be contributors or willing to become contributors to the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, he emphasized.

Up to seven new board members will be appointed to three year terms beginning October 1, Secretary Grubb said.

There are presently two vacancies, and terms expire next month for Janice Burkholder, Chambersburg; Wilmer B. Campbell, Halifax; Paul Corbin, Reynoldsville; Albert Hack, Berwick; and Richard Shellenberger, Manheim.

Advisory board members may serve a maximum of two three-year terms.

Nominations should be mailed to the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408.

The state promotion program was created in 1984 as part of a national effort to increase milk sales and to further product development and nutritional research.

Federal law requires dairymen to contribute 15 cents a hundredweight. Five cents must go to the national program. The other 10 cents can be assigned to a state or regional promotion of their choice. In 1985, such deductions average approximately $21 per cow, or $14,500,000 for all Pennsylvania dairymen.

According to advisory board chairman Don Duncan, Robesonia, the state program fills the gaps between the national and regional programs. Major effort is concentrated on "Make it Milk" advertising in midstate cities and rural towns, he said, with special targeting on adult sport fans through ads on the Penn State football network and Pittsburgh Pirates broadcasts, plus billboards in the Hershey hockey arena.

Lieutenant Governor William Scranton meets the press with Samuel Hayes, state representitive of the 81st District at Ag Progress.

Westminster Gardener Finds Myriad Uses For Home-grown Herbs

BY SHARON B. SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Gourmet chefs create savory dishes with them. Craftspeople arrange their foliage and flowers into decorative art forms. Homeowners delight in their fragrance both indoors in a simmering pot, and outdoors under foot. And, some would attest to their powers of warding off colds and evil demons.

For Belle Fangmeyer of Westminster, Md., herbs that she cultivates in her eighteenth century garden serve many purposes. They find their way into her soup pots, salads, wreaths, flower baskets, and even into the mouths of colicky babies.

Belle, whose wholesome, attractive appearance rivals that of any "Ivory Girl," said that she "loves natural things." As proprietress of Old Friends Antiques, located in the springhouse of her family's Living Faith Farm, Belle fashions much sought after herbal crafts with old-fashioned skill and know-how. "The store just opened in April. Our business has just been wonderful," she explained. "Most people are buying herbs to hang as decorations."

Relating one incident, Fangmeyer said a customer "took a bunch of everything I had." While her customer was delighted with her purchases, Fangmeyer said she was concerned that she wouldn't remember what each bunch was when she returned home. "I had to tag them all," she said. Now, Belle says she makes a practice of tagging bunches of herbs so they are really identified both in the shop and once they are part of someone's decorating scheme.

Belle's husband, Dan, and two daughters, Dana and Nicole, also enjoy the benefits of growing herbs. "My husband is in this just as much as I am," she explained. "In February we plan everything." The Fangmeyers also raise Hampshire sheep. They recently purchased the champion Hampshire ram at the Mid-Atlantic Classic Show and Sale in Manheim. As newcomers to the Maryland Hampshire Breeders' Association they hosted the annual picnic at their historic home in July.

The Fangmeyers' country home is listed on the National Historic Register. The ten-room brick house was once the Brethren Meeting House of the area. Built by Christian Royer in 1827, the house boasts five porches, nine fireplaces, and beautiful raised panel walls that fold to create a large space on the first floor. The home is furnished with beautiful period pieces, and Belle has added her special touch with wreaths and arrangements that she has created in her shop.

The 18th Century herb garden of Belle and Dan Fangmeyer contains a variety of herbs marked with stones identifying the plants. Their home in the background is listed on the National Historic Register.

Belle Fangmeyer dries some of the herbs she cultivates in this smokehouse. She said she must keep the door open to prevent drying to the point where the herbs crumble.

Herbs grow around the perimeter of the house and in carefully planned gardens. The trunk of a centuries old tree serves as a giant outdoor pot for mints and other culinary herbs. "Basil and oregano are our favorites," she said. "I put basil in about everything. I love the way tarragon and basil smell when they are cooking."

Referring to the culinary herbs in the larger Victorian garden, Belle said "I use almost all this in my fresh salads. Before dinner I come out and pick a few leaves." Shredded like lettuce in a salad, she said the herbs "perk your salad up."

Each plant in the garden is marked with a stone that bears the name of the herb.

Pointing to the Salad Burnet, she said it makes "great dips and spreads with mayonnaise or any salad dressing." The horseradish plant "takes over," according to Belle. She said the root of the plant, when processed in a blender, yields that tangy flavor that so many add to their roast beef sandwiches. She also cautioned against hazards of processing the aromatic root: "I think I smelled like horseradish for three days after that," she chuckled.

The velvety smooth leaf of the rose-scented geranium decorates the top of cakes when Belle places them right on the bottom of the pan and adds batter. After the baking, the leaf has become part of the top of the cake and forms a beautiful design, and "you can eat the leaf," she added.

A popular item with the Fangmeyers' customers is the cooking wreath. Belle assembles the wreaths with dried culinary herbs with wers added for decoration inch wreaths sell for $16.

Pointing to the one wn kitchen, Belle said th ...e thing about a cooking wreath is that, "when it's gone, you've used everything." Her own wreath shows signs of regular use, with a few bare spots where sage once filled the space. Other herbs hang in bunches, decorating the walls and fireplace in the kitchen.

Belle recommends cutting herbs first thing in the morning, so they will hold the oils. She dries her herbs and everlasting flowers in various ways.

"In the sun they will dry quicker, but they lose a lot of fragrance," she explained. "In the smokehouse, I have to leave the door open or they will crumble when they are dry."

The bunches of herbs in the smokehouse hang from old meat hooks that once secured hams over a smoky fire. Belle said she has dried herbs in the oven, with the heat "as low as possible. But, that's when I'm going to crumble them right up and put them into jars." She said she is anxious to try drying herbs in the microwave oven also.

Growing herbs comes easy for Belle, though she said she has learned a lot this year. "I've lost a lot of herbs this year because you need to cut them as soon as they flower." The back of the bushy oregano plant shows signs of new growth where Belle cut them as she should. However the front of the plant is "no good" to her with its flowers still in tact and growing. It takes about half a bushel of dried sage to make a 10-inch wreath," she explained. "It's important to keep cutting."

Maryland's dry weather made this a particularly rough year for anyone growing plants. "Because of the drought, I lost a whole row of Baby's Breath," said Fangmeyer. She said she uses grass clippings for mulch. "A lot of things don't do well the first year," she explained. "But when they come out the next year, they usually do a lot better."

The basement of the Fangmeyers' home houses Old Friends Antiques Shop, and one of Belle's workbenches. Herbs in various stages are hanging, drying of mixing fragrances.

To make potpourri, she outlined four steps. "When the buds of roses are drying on the bush, pick them and dry them." Belle dries the petals spread out over an ordinary window screen. Then, "put the petals and other things (fillers) in a crock. Put Orris root with the petals. After about five days add oil." The resulting concoction is one that intoxicates the senses.

Belle sees potential in just about everything. She plans to use the peelings from her peach crop for simmerings "that make your house smell like you've been baking all day." And when her lovely daughter, Dana, receives long - stemmed roses from an admirer, Belle eyes the dried up remains with anxious anticipation of a new batch of potpourri.

Some rose buds find their way into a dried arrangement. Belle said she dries flowers in either Borax or a commercial drying agent.

The Fangmeyers enjoy herbs in lamb dishes and as decorations for their beautiful country home. Belle said she looks forward to decorating another natural Christmas tree this year. "Last year we tried to put everything on it that we had on our farm." The "farm tree" was decorated with bunches of bearded barley, wooden farm animals, bunches of dried flowers and herbs.

For Belle Fangmeyer, herbs are a way of sharing with friends. She said almost everyone who visits with them, now uses mint teas. "The best part of having anything is being able to share it," she said. And what about herbs warding off evil spirits? Belle said a spirit does wander about their historic home. "But that's another story," she said with a smile.

The Fangmeyers' Living Faith Farm is located at 817 Fridinger Mill Road, Westminster, Md. 21157. Hours are Thursday, Friday and Saturday are 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., and Sunday, from noon until 5. The shop is closed during January, February and March.

Add Spice, Color and Crunch To Meals With Top-Quality Pickles

NEWARK, Del. — When Peter Piper picked his famous peck, it was probably because he wanted to add spice, color and crunch to his meals and snacks. The punch in pickles comes from skillfully selecting and blending spices, sugar and vinegar with the vegetables and fruits so abundant this season.

Preparing these pungent goodies needn't put anyone in a pickle. According to University of Delaware extension home economist Claudia Holden, a high-quality pickle begins with high-quality ingredients. Fruits and vegetables must be firm and not overripe. Be sure to wash all produce thoroughly, and remove blossoms. Cucumber blossoms contain enzymes that may soften cucumbers during fermentation.

Holden says it's important to carefully follow recipes. Don't cut down on any ingredients, especially the vinegar and salt. Follow the directions in the recipe for the size of pickle you have chosen. And if you're using cucumbers, choose a variety raised for pickling. Also, don't use waxed cucumbers - pickling liquid won't be able to penetrate the skin.

Use high-grade cider vinegar or white, distilled vinegar, says Holden. White Vinegar is best for pickling light-colored products such as cauliflower and pears. Vinegar acidity should be 5 percent. (Check the label for vinegar strength.)

The choice of salt is important too, since salt contributes to the characteristic flavor and texture of pickles, and lowers the acidity. Holden recommends pure, granulated salt, which may be sold as pickling or canning salt. Kosher salt is also fine to use. Although iodized salt can be used, additives may make the brine cloudy.

Salt-free pickle recipes are available. However, no-salt pickles are perishable and must be refrigerated or frozen.

Hard water may interfere with the curing process in pickling and cause shriveling or discoloration. If soft water is unavailable, boil hard water for 15 minutes, then cover and set aside for 24 hours. When ready to use, remove any scum from the surface, then pour the water slowly from the container so that sediment is left on the bottom. Buying distilled water is simpler, but more expensive.

Select the proper equipment for heating pickling liquids, advises Holden. "Don't use utensils of copper, brass, iron or any galvanized material. They may react with salts or acid to change the color or taste of your pickles."

Holden recommends heat processing for all pickled products. Use a boiling water bath, with water at least 2 inches over the tops of the jars in the canner. Process pickles for at least 10 minutes. The recipe may specify a longer boiling period. Start timing after the jars have been placed in the canner and the water returns to a boil.

"Many fruits and vegetables other than cucumbers can be successfully pickled," Holden points out. "Try green beans, okra, cauliflower, beets, pears, peaches, watermelon, and combintions made into chutneys."

Peach Festival Set For Holiday Weekend

GATCHEVILLE — The 1986 Maple Lawn Farms Peachilicious Labor Day Weekend Harvest Festival will be held Aug. 30 through Sept. 1 at the Gatchellville Farm.

Plenty of luscious late-season peaches will be available for the festival, which is expected to draw record crowds this year.

The public is invited to participate in the fun-filled weekend with local organizations and craftsmen who handmake, show and sell peach foods and crafts at the three-day event.

The festival also boasts blue grass bands daily. The Bald Eagle Express will perform Saturday and Sunday, and The Slate Ridge Blue Grass Band is scheduled for Labor Day from 1 to 5 p.m.

Festival stands will open Saturday and Monday at noon and Sunday at 1 p.m. They close each day at 6 p.m. Orchards will be open regular hours.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Tiny things can lead to such big things. Several months ago we noticed a tiny drip, drip from our livingroom ceiling. After the plumber ripped up the floor, he found a small leak from the cold water pipe at the washbowl in the bathroom.

Now this was just the beginning as the floor and the entire linoleum had to be replaced. Of course, the ceiling had to be repainted as it was quite stained. That meant that the whole livingroom had to be emptied. We filled two other rooms with the furniture that was in one room. Even the Grandfather's clock got tugged out of the room.

While the room was bare, it seemed a good time to wallpaper. The problem was that I really liked what I had put on years ago, but since I did not know when it would suit better, I picked out a new pattern. Only then did the contractor tell me that he could not do the work for eight weeks. That would have been in strawberry and pea season, so I put it off another month.

Well, the work is finished and I'm a thousand dollars poorer. I think that I'm still thinking prices of the 1950's and today's prices are a real shock to me.

My garden, after 80 mile per hour winds and hail the size of ice cubes, was a shock to me too. The beans and cucumbers were knocked off of their stems. The tomatoes and watermelons have big holes knocked in them and the plants themselves are badly battered. I can feel for those people who had corn and tobacco fields ruined.

White Is Student Marshall At PSU Graduation

UNIVERSITY PARK — Wallace D. White, the son of Dale and Constance White of Wexford, was selected to be the student marshall at Penn State's summer graduation, recently.

Each of Penn State's 10 colleges selects an outstanding student to lead its class during the graduation procession and ceremonies. White, who majored in agricultural business management, maintained an excellent academic record at University Park and graduated with highest distinction. Many of his classes focused on issues in agricultural economics. White is a member of the Golden Key National Honor Society and the National Agricultural Marketing Association.

White has accepted a position as store manager at the Glenshaw Feed and Garden Center and plans to begin work shortly after graduation.

Dr. James W. Dunn, associate professor of agricultural economics and one of White's professors, was selected to be the faculty marshall, leading the College of Agriculture faculty procession.

Casseroles You Can Prepare In A Jiffy

If lazy days are few and far between in your summer schedule, you've probably already discovered that casseroles are a great way to make dinner in a jiffy. They also offer an opportunity to combine leftover meat with fresh garden produce to create a tasty dinner.

Most casseroles take only a few minutes to combine, then bake in the oven for a half hour or so. While dinner is baking, you can fold the laundry, make a few beds, catch up on your phone calls, read your kids a book, or prop your feet up and enjoy the newspaper.

However you decide to spend those extra minutes, they'll convince you casseroles are a good idea. And when your family tastes your creation, they're sure to agree.

ONE-DISH DINNER

1½ pounds hamburger
1 can corn
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can cream of chicken soup
3 cups cooked noodles
1 cup sour cream
1 onion
1 cup bread crumbs

Brown the beef and onion, drain. Cook noodles and drain. Mix all ingredients together, put in a greased dish and top with bread crumbs. Bake at 350°F. for 45 to 60 minutes.

HAM, POTATO AND CHEESE CASSEROLE

3 cups cooked cubed ham
3 cups cooked cubed potatoes
1 medium onion
3 tablespoons green pepper (optional)
½ stick margarine
2½ tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
¾ cup shredded cheese
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook onion and pepper in butter 5 minutes. Add flour and stir. Add milk and cook until thickened, season and add potatoes and ham. Put in 2-quart casserole and top with shredded cheese and bake at 350°F. for 25 to 30 minutes. You can also use weiners in place of ham.

EGGPLANT CASSEROLE

1 medium or 2 small eggplants, pared and cubed
1 beaten egg
½ cup milk
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 small onion, chopped
1 cup dry bread crumbs
½ cup buttered crumbs

Cook eggplant in boiling, salted water 8 minutes. Drain. Add milk, egg, onion and crumbs. Put buttered crumbs on top in greased casserole. Bake at 350°F. for about 45 minutes.

BISCUIT PINWHEEL CASSEROLE

Casserole Base:
¼ cup butter
1 cup thinly sliced celery
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon celery salt
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 cups milk
2 teaspoons instant chicken bouillon
3 cups chopped cooked chicken or turkey
Pinwheel Biscuits:
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter
¾ cup milk
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

For casserole base, melt butter in saucepan; add celery and onion and saute until tender. Stir in flour, celery salt, salt and pepper until blended. Remove from heat. Gradually stir in milk and instant chicken bouillon. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute. Add chicken. Keep warm while preparing biscuits.

For pinwheel biscuits, combine flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add milk; stir just until dry ingredients are moistened and mixture forms a ball. Knead gently a few seconds. Roll out dough on a lightly floured surface to form a 12x9-inch rectangle. Sprinkle evenly with cheese. Roll up as for a jelly roll, starting with 9-inch side. Cut into 12 slices.

Heat casserole base just to boiling; pour into a shallow 2½-quart baking dish. Arrange biscuits over hot base, cut-side up. Bake in preheated 400°F. oven 25 to 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

SUMMER SQUASH CASSEROLE

2 pounds yellow summer squash, sliced (6 cups)
¼ cup chopped onion
1 can condensed cream of chicken soup
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 cup shredded carrot
1 8-ounce package herb seasoned stuffing mix
½ cup melted butter
Grated Cheddar cheese, optional

In saucepan, cook sliced squash and chopped onion in boiling, salted water for 5 minutes; drain. Combine cream of chicken soup and sour cream. Stir in shredded carrot. Fold in drained squash and onion. Combine stuffing mix and butter. Spread half of stuffing mix in bottom of baking dish. Spoon vegetable mixture on top. Shake grated cheese on top vegetable mixture. Sprinkle remaining stuffing over cheese. Bake at 350°F. for 25 to 30 minutes.

DAIRY CASSEROLE

8 ounces noodles, cooked
1 pound hamburger, fried
2 cups corn, cooked
8 ounces cream cheese
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 cup milk
Salt and pepper to taste
Onion salt

Combine all ingredients and mix well. Bake 30 minutes at 350°F.

Carol Fahnestock
Lewiston, Maine

HAM AND GREEN BEAN CASSEROLE

½ pound fried bacon
2 cups bite sized pieces ham (precooked)
1 medium sliced onion
1 quart stewed tomatoes
1 quart green beans, cut
Salt and pepper to taste

Fry bacon until crisp, remove. Stir fry in bacon grease, onion and ham. When onion is soft and ham slightly brown, add drained green beans and stir fry until grease is about gone. Add stewed tomatoes. (Drained of most of the water.) Stir, pour into casserole or cake pan and crumble bacon on top. Bake 1 hour at 250°F. to 300°F.

NOODLE SKILLET CASSEROLE

1 onion, sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 teaspoon basil
1 small can tomato paste
3 cups water
2 cups pasta — wide noodles, shells or elbows
Salt and pepper to taste

Saute beef, onion, garlic and mushrooms. Drain off fat. Add water and noodles. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes or until noodles are tender. Stir during cooking to prevent sticking. Makes 6 servings.

BROCCOLI-POTATO CASSEROLE

4 medium potatoes
½ pound broccoli, chopped
2 tablespoons butter
1¼ cups milk
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup diced natural cheese, any kind
¼ teaspoon pepper

Cut potatoes into quarters. Boil in water until tender. Drain and mash with ¼ cup milk. Beat until fluffy. Cook broccoli in small amount of boiling water or steam until tender. Drain. Combine potatoes, broccoli, and pepper in greased 2-quart baking dish. Melt butter in saucepan, stir in flour and add milk, stirring constantly until thickened. Add cheese and stir until melted. Pour cheese sauce into baking dish and stir. Bake at 350°F. for 20 minutes.

PIZZA CASSEROLE

1 pound hamburger
1 small onion, chopped
1 can pizza sauce
1 can tomato soup
1 cup shredded mozzarella cheese
8 ounces wide noodles
1 teaspoon oregano
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
⅓ cup catsup
2 to 3 tablespoons brown sugar, optional

Brown meat; add chopped onion, sauces and seasonings. Simmer while you cook the noodles. Combine noodles and sauce in a greased casserole and top with mozzarella cheese. Bake 30 minutes or more at 350°F.

Cheese pinwheel biscuits grace a leftover casserole.

MEXICAN CHILIES RELLENOS CASSEROLE

2½ cups and 1 tablespoon water
1 cup rice
1 tablespoon butter
1 pound ground beef
2 10-ounce cans mild enchilada sauce
1 cup shredded zucchini
1½ teaspoons salt
¾ cup (3 ounces) shredded Monterey Jack cheese
2 4-ounce cans whole peeled mild green chilies
6 to 8 slices Monterey Jack cheese
3 eggs, separated
3 tablespoons flour

Bring 2½ cups water to a boil in medium saucepan. Stir in rice and butter. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes. Remove from heat. Let stand covered until all water is absorbed, about 5 minutes. Brown ground beef in 10-inch skillet. Drain excess fat from skillet. Stir in rice, 1 cup of enchilada sauce, zucchini and 1¼ teaspoons salt; mix well. Spoon into 9-inch square baking dish. Top with shredded cheese. Carefully remove chilies from can. Slit each chili lengthwise along one side; remove seeds. Place one slice of cheese in each chili. Arrange chilies on top of meat mixture. Bake at 375°F. for 10 minutes.

Combine egg yolks, flour, remaining 1 tablespoon water and ¼ teaspoon salt in medium bowl; mix well. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Gently fold into egg yolk mixture. Spoon over casserole, spreading to edges of dish. Bake an additional 15 to 20 minutes or until top is golden brown. Heat remaining enchilada sauce in small saucepan and serve with casserole. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

This week's featured recipes feature herbs and come from Maryland herb gardener Belle Fangmeyer. Belle sells her homegrown herbs from the springhouse of her family's farm in Westminster, Md. To learn more about Belle and raising and using herbs, look for this week's homestead notes.

Herb Jellies

Sage, Tarragon, Thyme or Mint (use one)
2 cups infusion
¼ cup vinegar
2½ cups honey
½ bottle fruit pectin (3 oz.)

To make infusion pour 2½ cups boiling water over 4 tablespoons dried herbs. Let stand 15 minutes. Strain. Add vinegar and honey. Bring to a boil stirring constantly. Add fruit pectin and boil hard for one minute. Remove from heat, skim, and pour in sterile jar containing sprig of herb you are using.

Rose Geranium Honey Jelly

2½ cups honey
¾ cups water
6 or 7 Rose Geranium leaves
½ bottle fruit pectin (3 ounces)
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Combine honey, water, Rose Geranium leaves and quickly bring to a boil. Add pectin, stirring constantly. Bring to a full rolling boil. Add lemon juice, remove from heat. Remove leaves from mixture. Place fresh leaf in hot sterile jars and cover with jelly. Seal with pararfin and store for a few weeks to allow flavor of leaves to saturate jelly.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

No, it wasn't Friday the 13th. Good grief, it wasn't even Friday.

But it was one heck of a good start on the next one.

Looking back, the Friday -the-13th-like string of wackiness actually took root a couple of days before.

Those roots were sunk deep in the soggy soils (not so soggy this year) of our meadow below the house and barn. That meadow is the site of a smidgen of remodeling at the moment, this farm's bit part toward a cleaner Chesapeake Bay.

At least the super-dry summer had been beneficial in drying up the swampy sections, and skirting the expanded manure storage with tile drains would be less hassle since we wouldn't be digging in muck. Just dust.

Until a backhoe bite suddenly hit water the drainage ditch was unexpectedly in full flow.

The farmers' dismayed suspicion of where the water originated was pretty much confirmed in short order. Frighteningly little extra water - a mere trickle - was running away from our underground farm supply. And, we soon discovered, when the thirsties hit the herd of dairy cows, none ran away.

With the extreme dry conditions, the usually abundant water had not been anything impressive in volume to begin with. A diversion of a good portion of it wasn't exactly helpful.

Introduce Alternate Plan A. Across the lower yard went a re-diversion ditch, aimed at coaxing the underground supply back toward where it originally flowed.

Backup Plan B followed shortly thereafter. The reserve area would be enlarged, holding more water for those peak usage times when the cows were guzzling.

An extension of the pumping system into the expanded reserve area was deemed a further bit of insurance, and would require shutting down the farm's complete water supply for but a brief duration, I was assured.

The kettles of tomatoes cooking on the stove for canning and the load of laundry underway in the washing machine would be basically unaffected, only delayed.

Four hours later, suppertime, the pump system extension was still cranking only air bubbles, the laundry sat in stagnating water and the tomatoes had long been cold.

Supper - such as it was - came and went. Waterless. Fortunately there was plenty of cold milk in the milk tank.

The cows bawled for admittance to the barn, figuring the dry outside watering troughs could be forgotten while gulping at the barn fountains. The accusing looks we got when they repeatedly shoved at dry fountains weren't pretty.

We females of the family milked, keeping a wary eye on the rumbling black cloud front descending over the barn. Meanwhile, the two mud-and-clay coated males of the family doubled their efforts to fill the farm water system pipes with the precious liquid we normally take for granted.

When the fury descended, sheeting rain, blowing wind, and a fireball of lightning that turned the woods next to us a momentary hot pink shade, there was plenty of water. It blew through the barn, cascaded into the manure storage area, and tumbled gallons of muddy runoff into the diversion ditches - one of which, of course, diverted the muddy cloudburst runoff right into our water supplies.

As we finished the milking, the cows began eagerly lapping at the trickles they were finally finding in the fountains. A defective pipe extension had been the air-bubble culprit.

Eventually the muddy runoff diverted through the water supply - via Alternate Plans A and B and the unexpected storm - would settle.

But, left behind were bits of gravel which jammed valves in several fountains scattered through the barns and, by the next morning, had created mini-floods here and there in the cattle housing.

Storm past, cattle finally watered, milking finished and calves fed, I headed for the house to tackle the supper remains, left petrifying on the kitchen table while we had coped with more pressing "challenges."

Fritz, terrified of storms, had cowered underfoot while we milked, then finally sneaked admittance to his favorite storm refuge, the house, just before I got there. I found him soothing his trauma with a piece of supper's leftover roast beef.

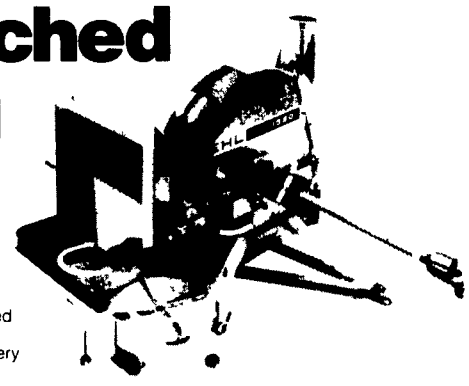
Here's hoping the Chesapeake blue crabs appreciate our efforts in their behalf. I'll never again feel guilty when I steam 'em.

York Clubs Compete In 4-H Olympics

YORK — Eight York County 4-H clubs gathered Aug. 8th at the Red Lion Senior High School track to test their athletic abilities. The 4-H Olympics, which consists of events such as, 50 yard dash, wheel barrow race, volleyball, mile relay, balloon toss, and softball throw, to name a few, is a day full of fun.

The top scoring club was Airville 4-H, second place Club was Hanover 4-H and in 3rd place was the Loganville 4-H Club.

Here's the secret to unmatched blowing capacity



It s not a secret any longer Farmers have discovered the reason for the higher capacity of the Gehl 1540 and 1580 forage blowers the twin spinner delivery system and the twin sided fan

Two 24 inch feed spinners rifle the crop into the blower fan at nearly 35 mph The twin sided fan with 8 paddles on each side blows it up the pipe with ease

Cost-effective design

It s also no secret that you can save time and money with our unique split rim sheet Made of a higher carbon steel than ordinary rim sheet it s longer lasting And when it finally does wear out you only replace the section in the extreme wear area right below the outlet - not the entire rim sheet

Extra convenience too

Set up at the silo is fast and easy with an adjustable left axle It lets you line up the blower without loosening and adjusting the rim sheet And the swing away outlet makes it easy to check fan paddle/rim sheet clearances and rim sheet liner condition

See these blowers now at your Gehl dealer s You can work out a good deal And that s no secret either Gehl Company West Bend WI 53095

QUESTION - Mrs. Ginny B. Atkinson, Bridgeton, N.J., would like a recipe for biscuits like those sold by Kentucky Fried Chicken.

QUESTION - Mrs. Randolph Foltz, Edinburg, Va., would like a recipe for "dough cake." The dough is allowed to sit overnight, then in the morning a piece is pulled from the dough ball and stretched out. The dough is fried in grease. It puffs up and is eaten with eggs or butter and jelly.

QUESTION - R.K. from Mattawana, would like a recipe for Poor Man's Oysters.

QUESTION - Mrs. Delores Buhite, Reynoldsville, would like a recipe for blackberries wrapped in dough, sealed tight and dropped in boiling water. She needs the recipe for the dough and how long to cook it.

QUESTION - Dorothy S. Riesterer, New Providence, would like a recipe for crabapples that are placed in a crock with red cinnamon candies, slowly baked and put up in jars.

QUESTION - Beverly Reiner, Pitman, would like a recipe for Chicken Monterey using deboned chicken breasts with a type of barbecue sauce.

QUESTION - Connie Garrison, Dividing Creek, N.J., would like a recipe for tomato butter or tomato jelly.

ANSWER - Nancy Kramer, Newmanstown, requested a recipe for tomato catsup. Thanks go to Lydia Sensenig, Shippensburg, for the following recipe.

Catsup

½ bushel tomatoes
4 cups sugar
4 cups vinegar
6 tablespoons salt
1 teaspoon ground allspice
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon ground cloves

Cook tomatoes until soft. Pour in bag and drip overnight. Put through sieve and add remaining ingredients. Boil 10 minutes and seal.

ANSWER - Donna Lencoski, Latrobe, requested a recipe for Chunkies. Thanks go to Mildred G. Kirst, Fredericksburg, for sharing the following recipe and to all others who shared Chunkies recipes.

Chunkies

Peel large cucumbers, cut in half lengthwise, scoop out seeds. Cut meat into bite-sized pieces. For each quart of chunks, heat the liquid (recipe below) to boiling. Add cucumbers, heat thoroughly to boiling and seal in jars.

Liquid for each quart:
1 cup vinegar
1 cup sugar (or less)
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon mixed spices
Garlic, if desired

ANSWER - Dorothy Witmer, Ephrata, requested a recipe for canning pickled cauliflower. Thanks go to Ella M. Nolt, East Earl, for sharing the following recipe.

Pickled Cauliflower

2 large heads cauliflower
1 bunch celery

Boil both until tender and pack in 7 pint jars. (Sometimes I add chopped onions.)

2 cups sugar
2 cups vinegar
2 cups water
2 tablespoons salt
2 teaspoons celery seed
2 teaspoons mustard seed

Bring this to a boil and pour over cauliflower. Set jars in hot water in canner and bring to a boil. Delicious!

Child Care Packets Offered

LEESPORT — The Penn State Extension Service is offering parents or any interested adult working with children a free copy of "Toddler Topics," a series of learning packets developed by extension home economists.

The packets include information on child care, safety, discipline, and nutrition.

For the packets or for more information, write to Michelle Rodgers, Extension Home Economist, Berks County Ag Center, Leesport, PA 19533. Deadline for registration is Nov. 15, 1986. Packets will be mailed starting in March.

York Fair To Host American Pie Contest

YORK — Calling all pie bakers: the American Pie Celebration Contest is coming to Pennsylvania.

To celebrate their 75th year as the makers of Crisco Shortening, Procter and Gamble, in conjunction with the Family Circle magazine, has rolled out a pie contest across the nation, searching for the "best of the best" in regional pie favorites.

From July through October, 50 "state pies" are being chosen at special American Pie Celebration contests, held at a selected fair in each state. First place winners from each state will receive an expense-paid trip to Nashville, Tenn., to enter their pies in the national competition in November. Judging there will take place at a party hosted by country singer Loretta Lynn.

York Fair, running from Sept. 5 through 13, is the designated site for the Pennsylvania contest to locate the state's best Shoofly Pie.

York dairy farmer Don Lanius, who manages horticultural hall where the official tasting takes place, hopes for wall-to-wall Shoofly Pies by opening morning. Among the judges who will taste and make the final decision during judging Sept. 5 will be Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Richard Grubb.

Pie categories were selected by food editors across the country, and range in variety from Macadamia Nut Pie for Hawaii, to Maple Cream for Vermont, to Green Chile Quiche Pie for New Mexico.

Shoofly pie entries, of course, must be made with Crisco shortening, baked at home, and will not be entered in any other fair competition.

All entries must be accompanied by the recipe, typewritten or neatly printed, on a 5x8-inch card, or the official entry blank. Every ingredient must be listed in exact measurements, and the type of ingredient specified.

All entries must be brought to York Fair's Horticulture Hall Sept. 4 between the hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m., preferably covered with clear plastic wrap.

Entry forms for the American Pie Celebration can be obtained by contacting the York Fair office, 334 Carlisle Avenue, York, PA, 17404-3299; or by calling 717-848-2596. Information on the contest is also printed in the August 19, 1986, issue of Family Circle magazine.

Pennsylvania contest forms must be returned to the York Fair office, postmarked no later than Saturday, August 30, 1986.

Shades Of Style

Pleated shades and vertical blinds have become the emerging stars of alternates to the traditional window coverings. Their popularity is understandable because these window coverings look like curtains and draperies, yet offer the contemporary look and function of blinds. They are also being designed with every type of decor in mind. Whether a home is traditional or ultra-modern, these window treatments can enhance the look. Even better, the shades and blinds require very little maintenance.

The variety of fabric vertical blinds and pleated shades available is a far cry from the old sleek look of the metallics. First, the approach was softened by combining the mini-blind profile to fabrics to make pleated shades. Then, fabric was applied to vertical vanes. Now, the very newest styles imitate the soft, see-through look of sheer curtains. This is accomplished with voile, eyelet and lace fabrics, which are similar to the materials used in panels and priscilla curtains.

Another way that the sheer look is accomplished is by poking tiny holes in mini-blinds and verticals. When seen up close, the pinholes merge to simulate the effect of sheer curtains.

There are also semi-opaque polyester fabrics in a variety of rich tones and sophisticated prints to emphasize how versatile and stylish these window coverings can be. Other types include vertical vanes of fiberglass yarns that are coated by means of a special process to give a soft hand with a soft look.

Many of the window coverings are anti-static so that dust is repelled. Others are treated with a fabric protector for easy release of any soil. The bottom line in care is simply vacuuming with the brush attachment or a spot cleaning with detergent suds. It's no wonder that these shades and blinds have met with such popularity.

Picnic Foods: Be Safe Not Sorry

Late summer weather means picnics and other outdoor meals. Don't spoil an enjoyable event by making people sick from food poisoning.

On a three-hour trip to the picnic site on a 90-degree day, food that starts out chilled can become dangerously warm. If you wait an hour or two to serve it, there's an even greater opportunity for harmful bacteria to grow – and a greater chance of food poisoning. Remember that bacteria grow best in warm, moist conditions.

For picnics and long-distance trips, plan meals with less perishable foods or transport foods in insulated containers with plenty of ice.

When preparing food for picnics, wash your hands after handling raw chicken to prevent the spread of bacteria to other foods. Clean your cutting board with soap and hot water after each use.

Carry perishable foods such as fried chicken, potato salad, tuna salad and hamburger in insulated bags or chests. Be sure to use plenty of ice, dry ice or reusable cold packs. An insulated container alone is not enough, especially on a hot summer day.

Cold foods such as cream pies, seafood and dishes made with eggs, meat and poultry must be kept cold (below 40°F.). Do not let these foods stand at room temperature more than two hours. Foods meant to be served hot, such as meats, seafood, and poultry, must be kept hot (above 140°F.). Bacteria grow best in lukewarm foods. Never let these foods stand at room temperature more than two hours.

Food poisoning can cause diarrhea, vomiting, stomach cramps and other unpleasant symptoms which can last for several hours or several days. In young children and elderly people, the symptoms can be more severe. Often people mistake food poisoning for a simple "bug" or virus. The real cause may be food that was not properly handled, prepared or served.

Picnics and outdoor meals are fun, but need careful planning. Decide how many people you can safely serve by preparing food quickly and keeping it cold (or hot) until serving time. Also consider where the food will be prepared, the size and number of your cooking utensils, and your supply of insulated food containers. With careful planning and preparation, you can prevent food poisoning.

Some Animals Uniquely Suited To Perform Specific Tasks For Man

WASHINGTON — About 30 military installations in West Germany belonging to the 32nd U.S. Army Air Defense Command are being guarded these days by 900 geese that will honk, hiss, and flap their wings if they hear unfamiliar noises.

Whoever thought that America's first line of defense against terrorism would involve fowl play?

Actually, the geese are following in a noble tradition. Throughout the centuries, a variety of animals have been used in a variety of ways to benefit mankind other than by providing the basics of food, clothing, and companionship. Among the predecessors of the 32nd's watchgeese, in fact, is a goose patrol that has been guarding a Scottish distillery since 1959.

Dumb Animals?

The ways in which animals aid humans fall broadly into two categories. In one category, animals are taught to do something specific; in the other, animals simply do what comes naturally. In either case, it isn't that animals are particularly smart or generous, the experts say.

"Animals have no special intelligence," says Edward Price, an animal-science professor at the University of California, Davis, flying in the face of popular wisdom. "Some animals just happen to be uniquely suited to special tasks."

Price cites dogs trained to sniff out all kinds of objects, from drugs to guns to termites; and pigeons, whose eyesight is so acute that they have been used by many nations in peace and war.

Marian Bailey, now the president of Animal Behavior Enterprises in Hot Springs, Ark., had a contract during the Vietnam war to train pigeons to search out camouflaged enemy soldiers.

"We tested the idea with the Special Forces at Fort Bragg, N.C.," Dr. Bailey says. "The pigeons were trained to fly in front of a convoy of troops. If they found a camouflaged soldier, they would land near him, and a radio signal would be sent back to the convoy. The pigeons were fine, but the system was never actually used; there was a problem with the transmitter."

Dr. Bailey, an animal psychologist, first got involved in the use of animals in warfare with pigeons. While studying at the University of Minnesota, she worked with famed psychologist B.F. Skinner in training pigeons to pinpoint bombing sites. That project, too, was pigeonholed, so to speak, but for Dr. Bailey the experience was valuable.

"We realized how good the theory was: you could train all sorts of animals to do things that animals had not been previously trained to do," she says.

Responding To Signals

The theory she refers to is Skinner's concept of using operant conditioning techniques to bring about behavior modifcation. In plain English, that means training an animal to do what you want it to do in response to a signal.

Using these techniques, Bailey and others have trained pigeons and herring gulls to search for sailors lost at sea; put other pigeons to work inspecting drug capsules for defects; enlisted a Navy sea lion to retrieve objects stranded on the ocean floor; used a chimpanzee as a nurse/receptionist at a veterinary clinic in Japan; and drafted gerbils for drug-detection duty at Canadian airports. Public ridicule scrapped the gerbil idea before it went into operation.

Sidney, an eager beagle, makes himself useful to Bob O'Malley, a termite inspector in Flushing, N.Y. Sidney pinpoints the exact site of termite infestation by leaving scratch marks where he sniffs the critters out. His valuable nose was trained by a Belmont, Calif., company and was leased, along with the rest of Sidney, by the Flushing firm. He can find termites in walls and floors whether their presence is known or merely suspected.

There was a spate of mysterious reports during the Vietnam War about porpoises used to guard against underwater attacks by Viet Cong frogmen in Cam Ranh Bay. The porpoises supposedly had switchblade knives attached to their snouts, and reportedly killed several wet and wildly surprised guerrillas.

But there are those — Marian Bailey, for one — who suspect that such reports were part of an American disinformation campaign designed to discourage enemy attacks.

In the second category of animals — the ones that just follow their instincts — exhibit A is the sudden trendiness of the llama, a beast of burden whose innate qualities are making it increasingly popular as a pack animal among workers and outdoorsmen in the mountains of the American West.

"They're versatile animals," says James Hook, manager of Great Divide Llamas of Loveland, Colo. "They have sure footing, they're agile, they can carry 80 to 100 pounds of gear, they're real intelligent, and they have a sweet disposition. You also get urbanites who are intimidated by the size of a horse or a mule, but a llama only weighs about 300 pounds.

"They don't disturb the vegetation much, because they have soft feet, and they have a low impact on pastures because they spread their grazing out. And there are wool and meat as end products."

Experience Not Necessary

The llama doesn't have to be trained much; it just has to do a lot of what a llama would do anyway. In this way, it is like the military watchgeese, the de-scented skunk

Twin Valley FFA'er Captures Berks Swine Show Championship

ELVERSON — Mike Stoltzfus, the 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stoltzfus of R2 Elverson, exhibited the grand champion market hog at the recent Berks County FFA Swine Show and Sale.

Mike will be a sophomore at Twin Valley High School and is a member of the Twin Valley FFA. He received the trophy presented by Eastern Pennsylvania Pork Producers. His 235-pound animal was sold to Doug Clemens of Hatfield Packing for $4.24 per pound.

Reserve champion hog was shown by Henry Seidel, R1 Lenhartsville, a 1986 graduate of Hamburg High School. Henry received the trophy presented by Hillside Acres Farm; Dennis, Lloyd, and Carl Cooper; Lenhartsville. Henry's 230-pound hog was also purchased by Hatfield Packing for $1.70 per pound.

In the light lightweight class for pigs 180 to 200 pounds Leslie Lazarus of Whitehall, a member of the Lehigh County FFA Chapter, showed the first place animal Hamburg FFA member Mark Rohrbach from Shoemakersville was second, and Greg Stricker from Bernville and the Hamburg FFA Chapter was third.

Brian Blatt from Kutztown and the Kutztown FFA Chapter exhibited the first place animal in the medium lightweight class for pigs 201 to 214 pounds. Eric Blatt the Kutztown Chapter was second, and Steve Rohrbach from Shoemakersville and the Hamburg FFA Chapter was third.

Tammy Balthaser showed both the first and second place animals in the heavy lightweight hog class for pigs weighing 215 pounds. James Manbeck was third and fourth.

In the medium weight class for pigs 220 and 225 pounds Steve Rohrbach had the first place animal. Greg Stricker was second and Mark Rohrbach was third.

Henry Seidel showed the first place light heavyweight hog at 230 pounds, with the reserve champion hog. Mike Stoltzfus was second and Les Lazarus third.

In the heavy weight class for pigs 235 to 245 pounds Mike Stoltzfus was first, with the animal that became grand champion. Charles Seidel was second and Robert Adam was third.

In the junior division fitting class Steve Rohrbach was first, Mike Stoltzfus was second and Sue Burkhart was third.

In the senior division fitting contest Henry Seidel placed first, Greg Stricker second, and Les Lazarus third.

Henry Seidel won the champion fitter trophy presented by Elton Muth of Alburtis. Greg Stricker was the reserve champion fitter.

In the junior division showmanship contest Sue Burkhart was first, Mike Stoltzfus second, and Chris Blatt third.

In the senior division showmanship contest Todd Benecoff was first, Henry Seidel second and Charles Seidel third. Todd Benencoff was the champion showman, receiving the trophy awarded by Elton Muth. Mike Stoltzfus was the reserve champion showman.

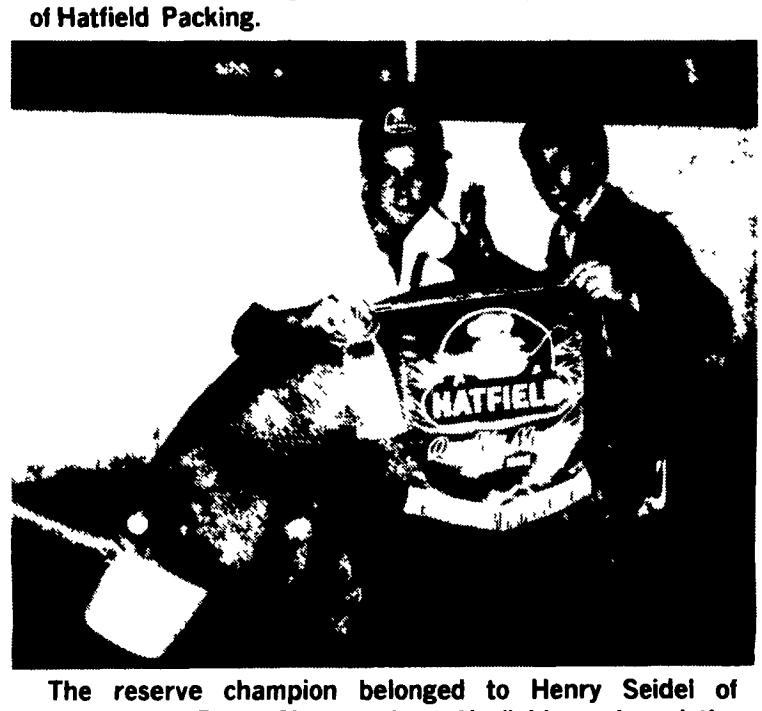
Judge for the show was David Hartman, Cumberland County Extension agent and a former member of the Penn State Collegiate Livestock Judging Team.

Combined weight of the 51 hogs sold was 11,155 pounds which sold for $8,886. Average weight was 218 pounds and average price was 70 cents excluding the grand and reserve champion animals.

Other major purchasers were Newswanger's Luncheonette, Pioneer Grange Topton, Leesport Market and Auction, Hazle Packing Company, Hereford Brothers, Berks Agway, Berks-Lehigh Production Credit, Dennis Wagner, and Myles Angstadt.

The Leesport Market and Auction which hosted the show and sale.

Mike Stoltzfus of Elverson exhibited the grand champion market hog at the recent Berks County FFA Swine Show. Here, he receives congratulations from buyer Doug Clemens of Hatfield Packing.



The reserve champion belonged to Henry Seidel of Lenhartsville. Doug Clemens from Hatfield purchased the reserve.

Extension Seeks Master Gardeners

NEWARK, Del. — The Delaware Cooperative Extension System is accepting applications for its Master Gardener program, which will be launched in Kent and Sussex Counties this fall. The state's first master gardeners received their certificates last spring in New Castle County.

Applicants need not be county residents, but they must be able to work in Kent or Sussex County after they complete their training. They will receive 45 hours of intensive horticultural training in return for an equal number of hours of volunteer service to be spent helping Extension increase gardening awareness, solve gardening problems and serve the gardening public.

"If you have gardening experience either professionally or as a hobby, enjoy gardening, would like to help your community, want to learn more about gardening or are interested in developing new extension horticultural programs, then master gardening is for you," says University of Delaware extension horticulturist Sue Barton, organizer of the Delaware program.

Master gardener training will begin October 13, in Milford at a location to be announced. Sessions will be held Mondays and Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m.

Deadline for applications is Sept. 15. For more information write or call:

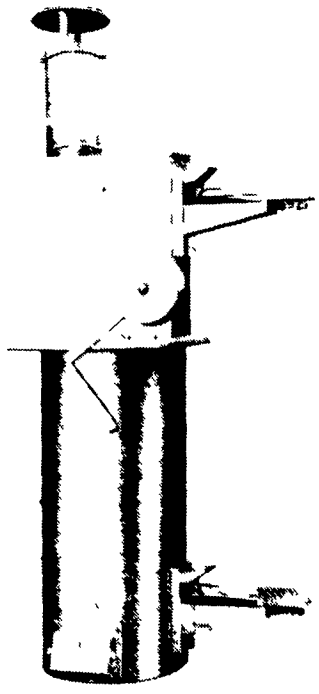
SHENANDOAH INCINERATORS - A SANITARY ALTERNATIVE FOR ON FARM DISPOSAL

To Help Prevent the Spread of Disease

The sanitary way to get rid of animal carcasses is with a Shenandoah incinerator. It's pollution controlled and convenient to use. It's also extra efficient because we've lined the burning chambers, and in some models even the afterburning chambers, with one and a quarter inches of refractory cement. That keeps the heat up and the energy costs down.



Choose among eight easy-to-install smoke and odor controlled models. You even have the option of burning gas or oil.

Ask your local Shenandoah dealer about efficient, inexpensive incinerators. You'll find out how our bright ideas in farm equipment can mean a bright spot in your day. And still leave a green spot in your wallet.

Gill Attends Briefing At U.S. Ag Department

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Kathy E. Gill, executive director of Pennsylvania Association Farmer Cooperative, of Harrisburg, was one of 20 chosen to participate in the Executive Women's Briefing at the United States Department of Agriculture in Washington, D.C. recently.

"The Executive Women's Briefings offer corporate executives the opportunity to create channels of communication between the policy-makers in Washington and the business community. More women are in the workforce today, they need to understand what impact government has on business. It is also important that Washington has an understanding of the needs of the business community," commented Heitman.

Ms. Gill attended the Executive Women's Briefing which included a series of meetings with top-level Agriculture Department officials and a private luncheon with Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng.

Animals Help Humans

used by a New Mexico utility company to kill rats and mice that were chewing its wires, and the dingoes, or wild dogs, with which Australian aborigines sleep to keep warm during chilly nights in the outback.

As an example of how helpful an animal can be, even if it just goes about its normal business, consider the case of a sheep rancher in Wyoming who was losing his lambs to coyotes. He bought three llamas — and predation dropped to zero.

Every time a llama saw a coyote, so the story goes, it would spit at the predator. The coyote would take off, and the llama would calmly return to its browsing.

Champion Hogs Bring Record Prices At Franklin Co. 4-H Show, Sale

CHAMBERSBURG – Record prices for show champions were set at the 44th Annual Franklin County 4-H Pig Club Show and Sale held at the Chambersburg Livestock Market, Aug. 7th.

The grand champion, shown by Donna Sheiss, 967 Marion Road, Chambersburg, was a 250-pound Duroc purchased by W.R. Sellers Livestock of Greencastle for a new record price of $4.25 per pound.

The reserve champion also established a new record sale price and was shown by Todd Stoner, 7598 Hissong Road, Mercersburg. The 246-pound animal was purchased by the Greencastle Livestock Market for $4.05 per pound.

The grand champion pen-of-three, shown by Darren Wilson, 7971 Nyesville Road, Chambersburg, was purchased by Wayne F. Craig & Sons, Orrstown for $1.17 per pound.

The reserve champion pen-of-three, also shown by Todd Stoner, was purchased by Phares Horst, Hagerstown for $1 per pound.

Grand champion fitting and showing honors went to Eric Sheiss, while younger brother David Sheiss captured the reserve champion fitting and showing honors.

The sale totaled 15,285 pounds of pork-on-the-hoof that sold for $15,123. The 67 head averaged 228 pounds and averaged 99 cents per pound with the champins included and 85 cents without champions, to establish one of the very best 4-H Pig Club Sales in recent years.

The show was judged by John Strawbridge, a well-known producer of purebred Hampshire and Yorkshires from R.D. 2, Windsor.

Other buyers supporting the sale were: Hatfield Buying Station, Carlisle; Farmers & Merchants Trust Co., Chambersburg; Cloverbloom Farm Market, Greencastle; Paramont Feeds, Hagerstown; White Oak Mills, Elizabethtown; Hoch's Tire Service, Lemasters; Farmers Bank & Trust Co., Hanover; Agronomy Inc., Mercersburg; Sniders Elevator Inc., Williamson; Chambersburg Livestock Sales, Chambersburg; Meyers Implement Inc., Greencastle; Mercersburg Exxon, Mercersburg; Chambersburg Trust Co., Chambersburg; Steely Meats, Fayetteville; Hammondale Acres Meats, Chambersburg; Weikerts Meat Market, Gettysburg.

Donnie Sheiss, right, receives congratulations from show judge John Strawbridge. Sheiss showed the champion 4-H market pig at the recent Franklin County 4-H Pig Club Show.

Preparation, Dedication Are Keys To Success For Lancaster Dairy Bowl Team

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

LANCASTER — What does it take to have a winning team in state 4-H competition? According to members of Lancaster County's first-place dairy bowl team, it requires long hours of preparation, some "intense" competition, and a dedication to getting the job done. It's also "a lot of fun."

Kim Stroud, director of communications for Federated Genetics who served as coach for the four-member team, says, "It was their dedication. I can't take credit for it. It was their hard work."

Stroud's part in the successful team was to get them together once a week since mid-April and have them work on learning the materials they needed to know. She credits Mike Pratt, 4-H summer assistant, with doing a "wonderful job" as assistant coach. "He had experience with the dairy bowl." Although she has coached the team for three years, Stroud has yet to see an actual contest.

She explained that contestants need to have a basic knowledge in all fields, but in addition to the basic dairy information they also need to be familiar with current issues in the dairy industry, like the dairy herd buyout program. "They read current dairy publications to get the latest facts. Many of the more standard questions are taken from the 4-H heifer and cow project books.

The team began practice in April with six 4-H'ers trying out for it. After regional competition, where they placed first, four members were selected to work for the state contest. Stroud says, "I always hoped they would do well because I knew they were good and were well prepared. But I didn't want to get their expectations up. We pointed out to them that they don't do it just to win. The experience you get and the people you meet are important. 4-H is supposed to be a program to help you meet kids from all over the state.

"We stressed that they were building their experiences and that it would give them another dimension. 4-H is a fabulous experience," she said.

In addition to the hard work, Stroud says the coaches tried to incorporate some fun into practice times. But, she acknowledged, "The kids have to be dedicated to it. It is not all fun."

It was Angie Spickler's first trip to Penn State on a judging team and she said she tried out because it was "something different, and I thought I would meet some new people." Angie, 15, has been a member of the Ayrshire, Jersey and Brown Swiss 4-H Club for 7 years.

She said she was "really happy" with the outcome, but admitted, "A lot of things crossed your mind during the contest." They had some confidence, however, because, "We did a lot of studying, and overall we knew pretty much. We got most of it from the material they gave us and studied it on our own."

Angie owns 11 4-H animals and considered the trip to Penn State for the state contest "really neat." Now she's considering how she can get there next year, since team members are now ineligible to compete in the dairy bowl contest.

Joe DeLong, 17, had the distinction of being on a winning team two years in a row, having placed first in dairy judging last year at State Days, leading the local team which took the state title. It was because he was ineligible to judge in the dairy competition that he decided to try out for the dairy bowl team. He was thrilled with the second win, but says he prefers judging dairy cows. Expressing confidence in the preparation, he says, "I thought we'd do well." DeLong is a member of the Kids And Cows 4-H Club and owns three Holsteins in 4-H.

Fifteen-year-old Tom McCauley had participated in the junior dairy bowl team, but competition is only at the regional level. He said, "I thought we'd do pretty good. It was fun, but it was kind of tense."

He said they studied together about 10 times as a team, and noted that the contest helps young people become more aware of facts about dairy animals and the dairy industry. "I think that's why they have dairy bowl," he remarked.

Like the other team members, Tom said he was excited about the win and is looking forward to national competition. He has two 4-H animals and has been a member of the 4-H Holstein Club for six years.

Despite the hard work, Janice Garber, 16, seems to sum up the feelings of the group when she says, "It was fun. It pays off in the end." A member of the 4-H Guernsey Club, Janice owns six animals and has been in 4-H for 7 years. She traveled to State Days two years ago with a winning demonstration, but said she much prefers judging.

She says, "It was the first year at State Days for all of us on the dairy bowl team and we had the attitude that whatever we get we will be happy with. We knew we had a good team." It was a special thrill to come out on top. Janice says the contest itself was fun, but adds, "It got real intense."

An added benefit was getting to know the other team members better. "We got along really well." She said each team member contributed by reading articles and coming up with 10 questions. "We just quizzed each other each week."

The team now gets to participate in national competition in Louisville, Ky. at the North American International Livestock Exposition in November, an experience they look forward to.

Stroud said she'd like to see an even bigger turnout for next year's dairy bowl team, saying, "It will give us more to choose from and make a better Lancaster County team.

Union/Snyder FmHA

Farmers in the Union/Snyder County area elected two new members to the County Committee of Farmers Home Administration recently. A third member of the committee was designated by FmHA's State Director, D. Elmer Hawbaker.

Mary Moyer, John Snyder, and Ray Hess, all of Union County, will hold their office for one, two and three years, respectively.

"I am looking forward to the chance to work with a new committee that was nominated and elected by farmers in the area." Mildred Turner, County Supervisor stated.

Any farmer who resides in Union or Snyder County and can not receive credit elsewhere may contact the Lewisburg County FmHA Office for information on insured or guaranteed operating or real estate loans.

In Times Of Pressure, Turn To Family, Friends For Support

NEWARK, Del. – Farmers who manage stress well have good support networks. In times of trouble, they can turn to people they know and trust – their families, church members, friends or other farmers who have experienced similar pressures – for emotional support.

This is one of the most important strategies for managing stress, says Dr. Patricia Tanner Nelson, extension family specialist at the University of Delaware. Regular, informal get-togethers with family members and friends can be a lifesaver.

Families experiencing severe financial stress often withdraw from church and community activities because they are embarrassed and pressed for time. But this is when you need your church and friends the most, Nelson says. Staying in touch with othe people helps you see options. It reinforces your sense of self-worth, the confidence that you have what it takes to weather the storm. This is important, since one effect of stress is paranoia – the feeling that everyone is against you and that you're trapped in a situation without choices.

"If you believe that great American families are built by rugged individualists who keep to themselves, you may have difficulty accepting the importance of a strong support network," Nelson says. "But you need to realize that the key to a workable support system is reciprocity. Not only do you accept encouragement and help from others, but you also respond to their needs. You help them and they help you."

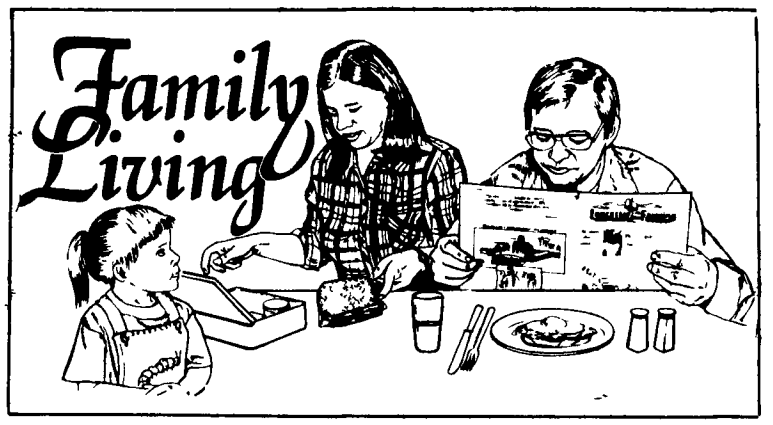
Dr. Hamilton I. McCubbin, a leading researcher on human stress, says people need two kinds of social support:

• Daily emotional support that tells them they're loved and cared for. Unfortunately, people have very short memories for this kind of support; they need fresh doses of compliments and I-love-you's each day.

• Esteem support that tells them they're valued for who they are what they do. This is the kind that results from being elected to an important office or from being trusted enough to be given meaningful responsibilities.

The best social support network probably includes both friends and members of your extended family, Nelson says. Studies of single parents and the elderly suggest that people who rely only on help from within their families often feel more isolated and lonely than those whose social support network also include friends. "Families often specialize in meeting our physical needs – such as providing loans or food," Nelson says. "Friends seem to be best at meeting our social and emotional needs."

In a 10-year University of Michigan study of 3,000 people, it was found that those who had a minimum amount of social contact were four times as likely to die early those who has regular companionship. People really do need other people.



Couples who have developed helping relationships – each giving the other support, reassurance and a sense of personal worth – are better equipped than others to deal with the demands of daily life. They're also better prepared to function well in a crisis. "A supportive marriage can't prevent trouble," Nelson says, "but it can shield a family from the full emotional impact of social and economic problems."

When you realize you're under stress, share your feelings and perceptions with a close friend or spouse, the family specialist advises. Don't keep worry bottled up. Talk about the problem you're trying to solve with someone you trust. That person can help you keep it in perspective, and may also be able to help you think of possible solutions.

Editor's Note: Back Home columnist Michelle Rodgers will be leaving her post as Berks County home economist temporarily to pursue a master's degree in rural sociology and family studies. Homework

September! Classes, bus rides, new shoes, football, soccer, and hockey games, routine changes, books, and homework! Ah...remember homework? I think the worst part of homework for me was carrying all those books in our long farm lane, the actual studying part I enjoyed!

Regardless of how you felt about homework in your school days, what is important is your attitude now. Homework has been identified in almost all national and state reports on education as a vital factor in increasing student achievement. And one special element of homework is you! Yes, you, as a parent are an important part of homework. When your child has homework, the teacher is not there to supervise. You are. If you have a positive attitude toward homework, then the odds are your child will, too.

Cooperation and communication between the home and school are essential if home assignments are to make a significant contribution to your child's education. The time you share together with your child on these assignments can be beneficial to you both. I remember that my parents gladly proof read my math problems, read through papers, corfect spelling, and helped to gather information for reports.

There are ways that you, too, can be a help and make homework less of a headache!

• Review schoolwork with your child and sign homework assignment sheets.

• Cut down on TV time and turn off the radio while your child is studying.

• Provide an area for your child to study that is away from the center of activity in your home.

• Set aside a regular study time, and help your child organize assignments.

• Be aware of homework assignments and talk to teachers to make sure the work is being done.

• Read at the same time your child is studying — sort of a "study hour" for the whole family.

• Provide educational trips to libraries, museums, and local sites if possible.

• Ask your children questions about what they have learned. One family has each family member share one new thing at the evening meal.

• Set a limit on extracurricular activities if they interfere with studying time. Help your child control the urge to "be in everything." In our family, we played in one sport. That allowed other seasons for other kinds of interests like music and drama.

• Support your children while they're doing homework by checking in every now and then to see how things are going and being available to help if they need it.

It's a good idea to implement some of the above ideas right from the first day of school. It's probably a good idea to discuss the topic of homework even before school begins. By presenting your expectations, you may eliminate the nagging that happens later on!

Speaking of homework, I'll have some of my own this year. I, too, am returning to school to complete my master's degree in rural sociology and family studies at Penn State University. So in order that I get my homework done, I'll be leaving Lancaster Farming and "Back Home" for a while. May we all broaden our skills and knowledge in the next school year!

Help Children Develop Positive Self-Image

Parents sometimes say about their child: "Mary is too tall," or "Jimmy is too small for his age."

Children come in different sizes, so they are not "too tall" or "too small" in any absolute sense. They're just smaller or taller than the average we expect for a particular age. More important than size is whether the child feels loved and accepted just the way he is, according to Growing Up, a child development newsletter about school-age children.

Here are some ways to help a child develop a positive self-image about his own physical characteristics:

• Pay attention to how he feels about his physical self. Help him appreciate and accept himself for being the way he is. Perhaps you can point out someone in the family, school, community, or public life whom he admires who has similar physical characteristics (short or tall, stout or thin).

• Avoid nicknakes - like Fatso, String Bean, Skyscraper, Squirt. Even as a joke, such teasing can be hurtful and harmful.

d If you hear someone else making fun of his size, help him deal with the situation by learning to develop some quick responses ("Good things come in small packages!") Also point out the advantages of his size: small children can fit in tight places; tall children can reach things on the top shelf.

• Help your child be good at something that involves physical skills, such as running, skating, knitting, ping-pong. Encourage him, and practice with him. The child who is not big enough to try out for basketball may be a wizard on the soccer field. This goes for girls as well as boys.

• Treat your child according to his age in years, not according to his height or weight. Parents and teachers often "baby" a child who is small and expect wisdom beyond his years from a tall, mature-looking child.

• Make sure your child gets good nutrition and adequate rest. Growth spurts in children are often accompanied by fatigue. Regular and adequate sleeping hours are important so that the body has time to rest and regulate itself in preparation for another day of energy and activity.

Reduce Sugar, Increase Flavorings To Eliminate Excess Calories

NEWARK, Del. — For a snack or dessert, most people want something sweet such as pie, cake or cookies. But they pay for the sweetness they crave — in calories! In fact, every quarter cup of brown or white sugar adds close to 200 empty calories to recipes, according to Dr. Sue Snider, University of Delaware extension food and nutrition specialist. Snider offers several hints to help cut down on added sugar in recipes.

"Use one-third less sugar than the recipe calls for in pies, puddings or fruit crisps," she advises. Also, use flavorings that intensify the sweetness in foods such as cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves, allspice, ginger, cardamom, anise, fennel, mint, vanilla and almond extract.

When baking, choose fully ripe fruits; their natural sugar content will sweeten desserts. By using well-ripened pears, bananas and some types of apples in recipes, less sugar may be needed.

Frosting is another area where calories can pile up quickly, Snider says. A lot of sugar — and fat — can be eliminated by sifting confectioner's sugar onto baked goods instead of frosting them.

Experimenting with low-calorie sweeteners can cut sugar content also. Two low-calorie sweeteners - aspartame and saccharin — are currently available.

Aspartame is sold under the trade name Equal. One packet of Equal has the sweetening power of two teaspoons of sugar, but a total of only four calories. Aspartame can successfully replace sugar in beverages, yogurt, whipped toppings and no-bake or frozen desserts. "Prolonged heat will decrease its sweetness, so add it to heated foods after they are cooked," advises the specialist. In general, sour or tart foods require less aspartame than the equivalent amount of sugar, but bitter foods like chocolate may require more.

Saccharin is even sweeter than aspartame and by itself provides no calories. It can be purchased in dry or liquid form and the number of calories depends on the ingredients added to the product. "Saccharin can be added to cold or heated foods," Snider says, "But many people object to its bitter aftertaste."

She says that neither saccharin nor aspartame can totally substitute for sugar in cakes, cookies or quick breads because an extremely poor quality product will result. For these foods it may be best to use recipes than have been specially formulated for use with a sugar substitute. "Cut out a small amount of sugar — up to one-fourth of what the recipe calls for — rather than subsituting an artificial sweetener," she says.

In some recipes, such as those for jams and jellies, the sugar content can't be reduced or eliminated. While special jelling agents are available which allow jelly-makers to either reduce or eliminate the sugar in fruit spreads, jams and jellies made with regular pectins, or made without any pectins, require a certain amount of sugar to form a gel.

FAIR Days

Farmers' Day At Flemington Fair Set for Aug. 27

FLEMINGTON, NJ – Farmers' Day is scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 27 at Flemington Fair. Some activities of Farmers' Day will be held Thursday as well.

The first event for local farmers is the New Jersey State Farm Tractor Pull. It is set for 9 a.m. on Aug. 27, on the track in front of the grandstand.

About 75 to 80 farmer-owned tractors will compete in seven classes. Classes are determined by weight of tractor. They will range from the lightweights, Class 1, tractors 5,500 pounds and under, to the big ones, Class 7, tractors weighing 18,000 to 22,000 pounds.

Farmers arrive on the fairgrounds early that day for the official weigh-in, which begins at 8 a.m. They come as far as Stewartsville, Alpha, Washington, and south to the Amwells and Belle Mead. A large South Hunterdon contingent always participates.

Prizes include cash awards beginning at $50 for first place and a trophy for the winner of each class. Sponsors for the awards are the local machinery dealers: Frank Rymon & Sons, Washington; Poniatowski Bros., Flemington; Hobensack & Sons, Ivyland, Pa., and D & R Equipment, Ringoes. The Hunterdon County Board of Agriculture also sponsor a trophy.

The contest involves a mechanical dragsled which is designed to increase the "drag" as the sled moves down the 300-foot course. It can be adjusted class by class to accommodate the various size and powered tractors.

A committee, some 30 strong, conducts this event. There is a weighing crew, officials on the track serving as judges, flag-men, and others involved in the day-long contest.

The Farmers' Day program turns to the big, big "modified" tractors at night. These huge, often 2-engined monsters compete during the Wednesday evening program. They come from nearby states, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and New York.

A few come from New Jersey, but most are from the Keystone state, where the modifieds are a very popular Saturday night activity.

The Modifieds bring their own officials, but a local committee will handle many of the routine chores.

The annual Garden Tractor Pull is scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday in front of the grandstand. A number of new, fun classes have been added, including a blindfolded male driver, directed by a female co-pilot.

Thursday evening's highlight will be the 4-wheel drive truck pulling contest. There's great interest in this one. Each year it increases in number of vehicles entered.

Allentown Fair To Feature New Events

ALLENTOWN – The agricultural division of the Allentown Fair, which is usually a little more subdued in presentation than the other fair attractions, is planning some razzle-dazzle of its own this year.

An "Animal Mardis Gras" and a Hay Bale Throwing Contest are two new ingredients that Sterling Ritter, superintendent of the fair's Greater Livestock Show, is hoping will "beef up" the agricultural area at the west end of the fairgrounds.

The Animal Mardis Gras, which features fair exhibitors parading their animals in original costumes around the judging tent, premiered at the fair last year.

This year's Mardis Gras will be at 7 p.m., Friday, August 29. The exhibitors will be judged on originality creativity, attractiveness, cleanliness and performance.

A Hay Bale Throwing Contest at 7 p.m., Saturday, Aug. 30, is being re-introduced into the fair line-up of activities and promises to be one of the largest agricultural events this year, according to Ritter. He expects 100 contestants to take their turns hurling hay bales the farthest distance. Anyone is welcome to enter.

Both of these events are free and open to the public. For information about them and other fair attractions call (215) 433-7541 or write The Allentown Fair, 17th & Chew Sts., Allentown, PA 18104.

Elizabethtown Fair Opens Aug. 26

ELIZABETHTOWN – The Elizabethtown Fair will host Lancaster County FFA's annual tractor driving contest Wednesday, Aug. 27 at 1 p.m.

Several area high schools will have members competing in the skill contest, which requires drivers to maneuver their tractors, with equipment attached, through an obstacle course. The contest will be held at Elizabethtown Fairgrounds.

Area FFA members will also compete for the supreme champion award to be given to the youth whose livestock represents the best of show for the entire fair. Judging for the award is drawn from the best of show in the dairy, beef, sheep and swine divisions.

A cup trophy, sponsored by Groff's Meats, Elizabethtown, will be awarded to the winner in the main arena at 7 p.m. Wednesday. The sale of champions will follow the award ceremony.

FFA and 4-H Clubs will also compete in group exhibits during the fair.

The swine show will be held in the main arena Tuesday, Aug. 26 at 6 p.m. Wednesday morning, the sheep show takes over main arena action at 11 a.m., while the beef show is planned for 6 p.m. A dairy goat show will be held at 8 p.m.

The dairy show is scheduled for 11 a.m. Thursday and the open sheep show will be held Friday at 4 p.m.

Soybean Assoc. Elects President

ST. LOUIS, Mo. – David Haggard, a soybean farmer from Steele, Mo., has been elected president of the American Soybean Association. Haggard was elected during the Soybean Association's annual Soybean Expo by the 44 soybean farmers who make up the Soybean Association board of directors. These farmners represent soybean farmers in the 29 states that are affiliated with the Soybean Association.

The American Soybean Association, a farmer-controlled commodity organization, conducts programs to build soybean profits for farmers through research, education and promotion.

Newly-elected president Haggard raises about 1,400 acres of soybeans annually. He has served on the Soybean Association's executive committee for three years and has represented Missouri on the Soybean Association's board of directors for five years.

Sullivan Co. 4-H Livestock Sale

FORKSVILLE – The annual Sullivan County 4-H Livestock Sale will be held in conjunction with fair week here on Aug. 28, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The sale will be held at the county fairgrounds following the 4-H beef, sheep and swine judging. The sale committee estimates that four steers, eight lambs and five hogs will be sold after the show, which begins at 4:30 p.m.

Prospective buyers may register at the county extension office prior to fair week or at the fairgrounds on sale day beginning at 4 p.m. The sale committee reminds buyers that prices paid above the market value of the animals qualify as a business deduction.

Many cheeses are named after the places they were first produced or are made today. Perhaps the most well known is Cheddar, named after a village near Bristol, England; followed by Romano and Parmesan, who credit their names to the famous Italian cities of Rome and Parma. Limburger hails from the Belgian city of Limburg, and Tillamook, a well-aged Cheddar that's popular along the Pacific Coast, from Oregon's Tillamook County. Monterey Jack was developed by Dan Jacks, a Scotch dairy farmer in Monterey County, California, and Colby by the Steinwand family in Colby, Wisconsin.

The best way to know you're buying a REAL dairy product and not an imitation or substitute is to look for the "REAL" Seal on product cartons and labels. A stylized drop of milk with the word, REAL in the center, the Seal can be found on products which conform to federal and state standards of identity. You won't find it on imitation whipped toppings, chocolate drinks, margarines, sour creams or other imitation dairy products Over 1,000 companies participate in the "REAL" Seal program, including food manufacturers and pizza processors, as well as food retailers

Elizabeth Simmons Is Named Lancaster County Poultry Queen

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — Elizabeth Ann Simmons, an 18-year-old Elizabethtown College sophomore, was selected 1986-87 Lancaster County Poultry Queen Aug. 8.

Dressed as "Sunshine" the pullet, Elizabeth won the audience's approval with a mini-lecture about the nutritional value of eggs and chicken. Her speech ended with an enthusiastic "Look out Mr. Frank Perdue," that convinced the judges she was the one they wanted to represent the county's poultry industry in the coming year.

Her goal, she told emcee Jackey Budderschnip, is to promote the poultry industry to all age groups. "I'm really excited about the coming year," she said following the pageant at the Farm and Home Center.

Elizabeth is the daughter of Charles and Shirley Simmons of Harvest Road, Elizabethtown. She is a graduate of Elizabethtown High School and works part time at Plain and Fancy Egg Ranch.

As a youngster Elizabeth lived on a poultry farm but had little to do with the business — other than breaking eggs, she said. And, when she started working at Plain and Fancy three years ago, "I knew eggs came from chickens and Plain and Fancy sold eggs," she said. But since then, she has learned much about poultry products and is determined to share her knowledge with others in the coming year.

"Everybody should know about eggs and poultry in general because everybody eats eggs," she said emphatically. "People should know what they're eating."

Lois Ann Martin, the 17-year-old daughter of Leroy and Laura Martin of Ephrata, was selected alternate princess. Lois attended Conestoga Valley High School and lives on a broiler farm of 100,000 capacity. She will help Elizabeth promote the poultry industry.

Other contestants competing for the title were Tricia Ann Harnish, the 17-year-old daughter of Abe and Sue Harnish of Millersville, and Debra May High, the 17-year-old daughter of Carl and Alice High of Bender Mill Road, Lancaster.

Judges for the contest were Patricia Nolt of Meridian Bank, Dennis Williamsen of Powl Feed; and Sue Hostetter, 1984-85 Chester County dairy princess.

The evening's activities also included a turkey dinner and country western blue grass music by Peggy Schnupp and Sharon Brubaker.

The new queen received a $500 scholarship and several awards from local agribusinesses.

Elizabeth Ann Simmons of Elizabethtown was selected 1986-87 Lancaster County Poultry Queen Aug. 8.

Try These Tips For Buying Produce

NEWARK, Del. — Locally grown corn, tomatoes, peaches and melons are available in abundant supply at local roadside stands. Since there's nothing quite like the taste of farm-fresh produce, here are some pointers from University of Delaware extension vegetable specialist Ed Kee on how to buy the best tasting, ripest items for your money.

First, a few words about tomatoes. They really don't have to be fully ripe when you buy them. If they're just two-thirds red, they'll ripen very nicely at home. But keep them at room temperature and out of bright sun. The old practice of putting tomatoes on the windowsill to ripen isn't recommended. They can sunburn, and they won't taste as good as they should, Kee says.

Researchers report that potatoes can withstand up to 80 times more bumping one month after being dug than they can right at harvest. So Kee suggests buying only what you can use soon, and handling them with care.

Moving on to sweet corn, the sooner after picking that you eat it, the sweeter it will taste. The reason for this is that the sugar in corn turns to starch very quickly after it's picked. Fortunately this process can be slowed somewhat by keeping the corn cool. So try to buy only fresh-picked corn that has been kept cool, and then refrigerate it until you're ready to cook it.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Getting food prepared for a picnic can be a time consuming and hot job. A microwave really makes the job quicker and cooler.

Here are two picnic salads you might like to try for the picnics coming up. Copper Pennies is an old-time recipe I have adapted for the microwave, and the Italian Chicken Salad is one of my favorites.

Italian Chicken Salad

1 cup uncooked long grain rice
2 cups chicken stock (or 2 cups water and 2 chicken boullion cubes)
1 teaspoon salt
2 whole chicken breasts (or 2 cups cubed leftover turkey or chicken)
½ bermuda (red) onion chopped—about 1 cup
½ cup chopped parsley
1 (3 ounces) can pitted black olives
1 (10 oounce) package frozen peas (or use 1-1½ cups fresh or sugar snap peas, with pods cut in half)

Dressing:

¼ cup red wine vinegar
½ cup oil
½ teaspoon each pepper, salt and oregano
1 clove garlic, minced
(OR use ½ to ¾ cup bottled Italian Salad Dressing)

1. Put rice, chicken stock and salt in a covered 2 quart casserole. Microwave on high for 10 minutes, stirring once after 5 minutes. Set aside; it will not be cooked yet, but the rice will continue to soak up water and cook as it stands.

2. To cook the chicken, cut breasts in half and arrange in pan with the thick parts on the outside. Cover with wax paper. Microwave on high for 7 minutes per pound. Turn the chicken over halfway through. Set aside to stand for 5 minutes.

3. Place the fresh peas in a covered container and microwave on high for 3 to 3½ minutes until they are bright green, but still crispy. (If using frozen peas, thaw them right in the paper carton. Microwave on high for about 4 minutes, until thawed.)

4. If the rice has not absorbed all the liquid, put it back in the oven and microwave on medium (50,5) for 5 to 10 minutes until the liquid is absorbed.

5. Slice olives in half or thirds, and cut the chicken into cubes. Combine all the salad ingredients in a large bowl.

6. Mix the dressing ingredients in a small bowl or measuring cup, and pour over the salad. Toss gently, cover and refrigerate for several hours or overnight for the flavors to combine.

Tip: Brown rice gives a wonderful nutty taste to this salad, but will take longer to cook than white rice. Lengthen the time in Step 4 to 15 to 20 minutes with brown rice. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Copper Pennies

2 pounds carrots, sliced in ¼-inch slices
2 small onions, thinly sliced and separated in rings
1 green pepper, sliced thinly

Marinade:

1 can (8 ounce) tomato sauce
⅓ cup sugar
⅓ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup oil
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

1. Place sliced carrots in a covered 2-quart casserole with ¼ cup water (no more!). Microwave on high 12 minutes, stirring twice, until the carrots are almost tender. Set aside to stand for 5 minutes.

2. Combine marinade ingredients in a 2-cup measure and microwave on high for 2 to 3 minutes until it comes to a boil.

3. Drain carrots, add sliced onions and peppers, then pour marinade over the vegetables, mixing well. Refrigerate 24 hours before serving. Stir the salad once to mix marinade with the vegetables on top. Serves 8-10.

Note: The times above are for microwaves with 600-700 Watts of power. For 500-600 W, add 10 seconds to each minute; for 400-500 W add 20 seconds to each minute.

Miller Named Eastern Region FFA Star Farmer

HAMBURG — Attention to detail has helped Todd Miller become FFA Star Farmer of the Eastern Region. As one-third partner in his family's dairy in Hamburg, Todd has realized that small decisions can have major impact on the productivity of his operation.

In charge of the feeding program, the 21-year-old provided for 220 registered Holstein cows and their calves. He developed feed rations, changed the cattle from alfalfa to haylage, and increased milk and fat production while decreasing protein costs by 16 cents.

Since he increased his reponsibilities on the farm as part of his FFA supervised occupational experience program, he has reduced the calf death rate from 16 to 1 percent. Todd is also in charge of the 703 acres of alfalfa and corn the Millers raise to feed the cattle.

The efficiency of the farm is being improved with careful attention to fertilizer and conservation practices. During the winter, Todd oversees the maintenance and repair of all equipment and machinery, and he also helps the partners with the milking.

As a Hamburg FFA member under advisor Lyn VanTassel, Todd started his own dairy herd with 20 cows and has increased it to 109. He also owns 50 acres outside the partnership. Through many livestock shows and judging contests, he has used his dairy background and FFA training to become a champion showman and a winning judge of dairy cattle.

Although to some, Todd's impressive productivity records may seem like luck has rubbed off on the young dairyman, he has realized that making a partnership profitable means extra attention and work on the details.

Lincoln Community 4-H Club

The Lincoln Community 4-H Club held a family picnic recently at the home of Doug, Scott and Jessica Hertzog.

The club members played several games of volleyball. During a business meeting leader Kerry Boyd talked about the capon roundup and the recent pseudorabies situation.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 14 at the home of Penny Scheetz.

Farm Women

Berks Society 5

Members of Berks Society 5 met Aug. 12 at the home of Mrs. Betty Wessner, Womelsdorf.

Two representatives from the Gidget Shop demonstrated how to make box pleat wreaths.

President Carolyn Feeg conducted a business meeting. Sunshine committee co-chairman Alberta Keener announced the committee members have recently visited the group's two adopted friends at Berks Heim and delivered a birthday gift to Anna Zechman.

Program committee chairman Carol Stoudt reminded members that the next meeting will be a progressive dinner Sept. 9 beginning at 7 p.m. Members should note the change in time and are asked to bring lawn chairs, weather permitting.

The progressive dinner will begin with a salad at the home of Mrs. Carol Stoudt, R1 Rehrersburg, and then proceed to the home of Mrs. Sylvia Scharff, R2 Bernville, for soup. Dessert will be provided by Mrs. Sandy Rauenzahn.

President Feeg collected craft projects using Pennsylvania products for the state project and reminded members that election of officers for the coming year will be held at the September meeting. Members will also exchange names for secret pal Christmas gifts.

Lancaster Society 3

Members of Lancaster Society 3 met in August at the woodland pavilion of Ruth Messner, Horse Show Trail Road, Denver.

President Erla Gehman announced that the society will contribute baked goods to Conestoga View for their Fair Aug. 23.

Lynette Jerchau demonstrated basket weaving and helped members create a basket for themselves.

The next meeting will be held Sept. 20. The meeting will be a workday to prepare food for the Ephrata Fair at Swamp UCC Church, Reinholds.

Lancaster Society 1

Members of Lancaster Society 1 were reminded that good nutrition begins with the basic four food groups during their recent meeting at the home of Arline Widders, New Holland.

Lancaster County Extension home economist Doris Thomas talked about proper nutrition, especially as it applies to the elderly. Mrs. Thomas told members that if they selected foods from the four food groups, they will not need additional vitamins unless they are prescribed by a physician.

During the business meeting, president Wolfe announced that state Farm Women Day will be celebrated with a brunch at Willow Valley Restaurant Oct. 14 beginning at 9:30 a.m. Reservations are required.

The Society will hold its next meeting at Camp Hebron, where members will enjoy the weekend of Sept. 12 to 14.

Lancaster Society 19

Members of Lancaster Society 19 met recently at the home of Mrs. Henry Martin Jr., Lititz Pike.

Carol Nolt, a naturalist, presented slides. Mary Hollinger gave devotions.

President Lavina Musser encouraged members to sign up for brunch at Willow Valley Oct. 14 to celebrate state Farm Women Day.

Betty Saylor is in charge of plans to give a party for guests at the State Hospital in Harrisburg Sept. 16.

The group will assist at the county fair held at Conestoga View Aug. 23.

Money was donated for hay to benefit the Ashboro, N.C. farmers.

Lancaster Society 25

Members of Lancaster Society 25 met Aug. 8 at the Kunzler and Co. building.

Members viewed a slide presentation showing the making of frankfurters, hams and bologna. The show was titled, "Goodness in the Making."

The outing included a tour of the [illegible] plant. After the tour, [illegible] returned to the meeting [illegible] for lunch and a short business meeting.

An anniversary banquet will be held Sept. 13 at Hershey Farm Restaurant in Strasburg. Carl Nolt will give a lecture on bird watching.

Tuesday, August 26

Lancaster Society 4 meets at the home of Ruth Zeamer for a picnic supper at 5:30 p.m.

Thursday, August 28

Lancaster Society 5 meets at 2 p.m. for a tour of the Conestoga House, Marietta Ave.

Lancaster Society 26 entertains Society 23 at Wenger Clinic at 6:30 p.m.

Lancaster Society 28 meets for a program on "Computer Talk," by James Landis of the Office Works.

Lancaster Society 11 meets for a program by Betty Brabson.

Friday, August 29

Lancaster Society 24 meets at 6:30 p.m. at Conestoga Church of the Brethren pavilion for a family picnic.

NEW from CHORE-TIME

20" deep SSS curtain back cage layer system

- Ideal for new construction or modernizing older cage houses
- Boosts density of old stair step houses by up to 125% or more
- Boosts density of old 3-high houses by up to 33% or more
- Famous Galv-A-Weld cage construction with 10-year pro-rated warranty

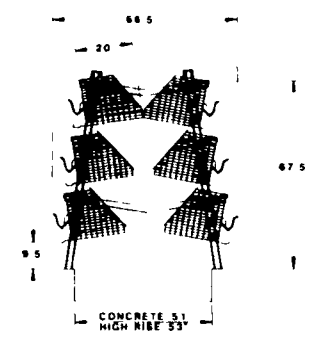
3-high model available



Get The Only New Technology Available For Cage Systems

Chore-Time's new 20" deep SSS 4-high system puts 33% more birds into the same row lengths as old style 3-high systems - without dropping boards and without a need for greater building width. That means at 6 birds per 16"x20" cage (53.3 square inches) a 52'x536' building can house over 108,000 birds.

But, just as important, with this Chore-Time system you also don't have to sacrifice the features and benefits you've come to expect from Chore-Time: single file egg belt, our all galvanized, SOFT TOUCH® II egg collection, a gentle cage floor slope to prevent checks and cracks...rugged A-frame cage support and legs every 4 feet to protect against cage sag and trough wear and Galv-A-Weld (welded black then galvanized) cage construction for long, trouble-free life... a choice of feeding systems to help you take control of feed costs: Meal Master Feedkar (traveling feed hopper), M.T. (rotating Flex Auger), and NEW Ultraflex (80 ft. per minute circulating Flex Auger).

And, with Chore-Time feeding systems you can take full advantage of the new production-boosting, feed-saving MEAL-TIME® feeding method developed by Chore-Time. Our feeding systems are designed to minimize waste and provide each bird with fresh, Un-Picked-Over feed.

Camden Co. 4-H'ers Exhibit Projects, Reap Awards At Annual Fair

Sussex Swine Association Holds Show

NEWTON, NJ —The Sussex Swine Association's annual Open Show was held Aug. 6, in conjunction with the county Farm and Horse Show in Frankford Township.

Each year competitors from the tri-state area compete in barrow, gilt, boar and pairs competition, and the steadily growing show has become the highlight of the season. This year the association purchased a new show ring to keep pace with the growing number of entries.

In addition to the show, each year the association holds seminars on health care, breeding and management.

Melons On Capitol Hill

It was watermelon for everyone on Capitol Hill recently, as Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng proclaimed it "Watermelon Feast Day" and welcomed members of the National Association to Washington, D.C. on July 24. Lyng (left) looks on as Senator Jesse Helms feeds a slice of watermelon to the Watermelon Queen.

As with other commodities, the watermelon harvest has been hurt by drought in the Southeast. "Our yield was about 40 to 50 percent of a normal yield per acre," said NWA president, Oren Childers, of Cordele, Ga.

NCGA Committee Targets Potential Corn Markets

ST. LOUIS, Mo. – Six basic industrial areas have been targeted as potential new markets for the nation's abundant corn supply by members of the National Corn Utilization Project.

The project, launched in January 1986 by the National Corn Growers Associatin (NCGA) and Funk Seeds International, is designed to unlock new markets for U.S. corn.

"Members of the committee are a select group of researchers, product developers and marketers from leading U.S. agribusiness firms," says John Pellet, NCGA Vice President of Market development and a corn farmer from Chesterfield, MO.

Invitational Milking Contest

At the Howard County Fair Invitational Milking Contest, Lancaster Farming's Maryland Staff Correspondent Sharon Schuster shows her milking form. "However, I didn't win," Sharon said. "I was third behind Becky Brashears of the Frederick News-Post and Heidi Bohi of the Howard Co. Times. Of course we had a lot of fun."

ASA Calls For $5.02 Support Price

ST. LOUIS, Mo. – Anticipating lower soybean prices, American Soybean Association voting delegates meeting in Cincinnati recently directed ASA to seek a "minimum annual $5.02 per bushel income support that avoids stocks build-up and maintains market prices for U.S. soybeans at competitive levels."

"The Secretary of Agriculture must announce the 1986 soybean loan rate before September 1," said newly-elected ASA President David Haggard, a soybean farmer from Steele, Mo. "The expectation of a $4.77 loan has already dropped soybean prices. And, with Gramm-Rudman, they could go even lower. The 266 farmers serving as ASA voting delegates have instructed me and ASA leaders to seek income support at $5.02 per bushel to protect U.S. farmers from these lower prices.

"The ASA Board of Directors will be working for a version of the producer option payment (POP) through which soybean farmers would receive payment-in-kind (PIK) certificates to protect their income, or for a $5.02 per bushel marketing loan," Haggard said.

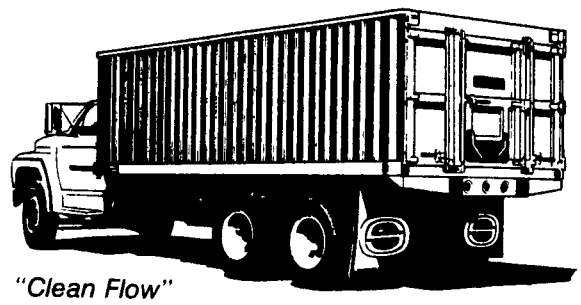
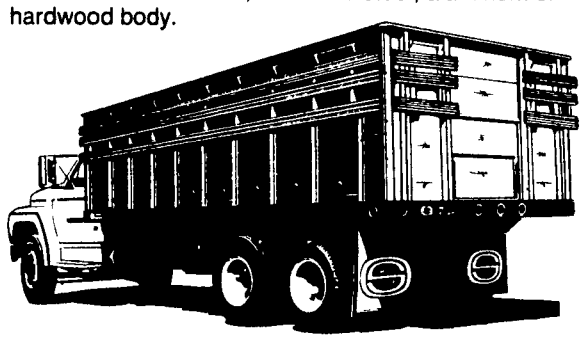
Grain & Livestock Bodies



Bigger than ever, Better than ever. A full 96" wide...

We've built rugged truck bodies for more than 60 years and today we're continuing that tradition. That's the reason you can't make a better investment than an Omaha Standard steel, stakeless steel, aluminum or hardwood body.



Steel and Hardwood Farm Bodies

- One-piece roll formed steel sides with built-in tarp rail. Available in 28", 40" and 52" heights...all with maximum corrugation for maximum strength.
- 40", 48" and 54" hardwood sides also available...the truck body Omaha Standard built its reputation on.
- Maximum legal width of 96" increases payload.
- The toughest platform in the business — laminated wood smooth steel, treadplate or steel over wood
- Easy-conversion fold down stock racks
- Full line of rugged gates. .engineered to make your job easier.

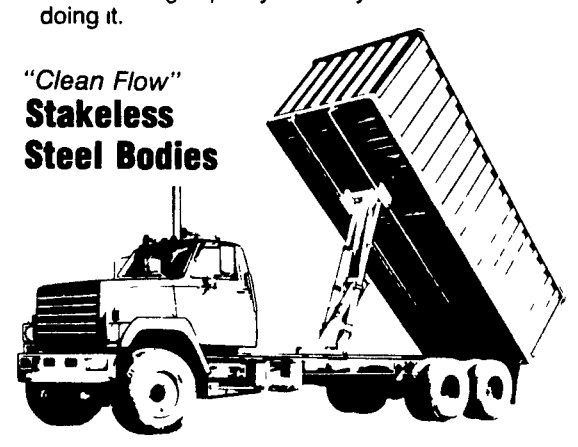
Omaha Standard Hoists

Select a job-matched, precision-engineered Omaha Standard hoist for your Omaha Standard body. Available in fourteen models — scissor or the stabilized "Olympic" telescopic line Capacities from 5 to 52 tons

"Clean Flow"
Aluminum Bodies

- All-aluminum construction...splice-free 60" or 72" high stakeless sides...extruded outrail and tarp rail cap..."I" beam cross sills
- "Clean Flow" design of the extra deep 30° sidewall corrugations allows complete emptying with no sharp corners for grain to hang up.
- Standard three-section full opening rear doors and swing-out header.
- Greater inside dimensions and light weight give you more hauling capacity and let you save fuel while doing it.

"Clean Flow"
Stakeless Steel Bodies



- 52" or 60" heavy gauge sides give you more hauling capacity for grain, sugar beets and other commodities.
- "Clean Flow" design of the extra deep 30° sidewall corrugations allows complete emptying with no sharp corners for grain to hang up
- Greater inside width and length make this an ideal body for hauling bagged or palletized products
- Standard three section full opening rear doors and swing-out header

We've been a part of successful farming and ranching for more than 60 years.

Onduline®

The Lifetime Roofing

If you're not sure what it is, or where to find it....

ASK THE EXPERTS!

THERE'S NO OTHER ROOFING MATERIAL LIKE IT.

Onduline's very construction makes it different. And makes it a superior roofing and siding material at the same time.

While its total asphalt impregnation means it outlasts most other roofing. Including metal.

But you don't have to take our word that Onduline is tough. It's met rigid building codes throughout the country.

EASY INSTALLATION ISN'T THE ONLY REASON TO USE ONDULINE.

Dead air space.

This means significantly better insulation because dead air space acts as a barrier to heat and cold transfer.

So in the winter, an Onduline-covered building is likely to be warmer. And in summer, cooler.

And that's the real reason why, above all, Onduline is a better roofing.

Corrugated Asphalt Roofing And Siding

- Lifetime Warranty
- Won't Rust Or Corrode
- Provides Added Insulation
- Goes Directly Over Old Roof
- No Special Tools Required
- Lightweight, Easy To Handle
- Ideal For Patio Roof
- Reduces Noise
- Can Be Repainted Any Color
- Easy To Maintain
- Economically Priced

Aid To Drought Stricken South Takes Many Forms

Many persons and organizations have been working together to bring relief to farmers in drought-stricken areas. Here is a summary of some of the efforts that have taken place during the past several weeks.

PENNSYLVANIA DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Chuck Muir reports that 134 pledges of assistance have been received at the State Agricultural Deparment. Most of the pledges were for feed, primarily hay. Muir estimates that about 2,500 tons of hay have been donated.

The Maryland National Guard recently came to Wayne County to pick up 3,000 bales of hay in a six vehicle convoy. And later they went to Bradford County to pick up 80 tons of donated hay.

In addition, Agricultural Secretary Richard Grubb announced that Conrail offered to ship without charge hay donated by Pennsylvanians to farmers in drought-stricken southern states.

Maryland Department of Agriculture Robert Walker, executive assistant to the Secretary of Agriculture has been named by Governor Harry Hughes as the state drought disaster coordinator. A Maryland drought hotline has been set up and is manned with people during regular business hours from 8:30 to 4:30. This hotline number is 1-800-527-5257. In addition, a hay and feed hotline has also been set up to be used by any farmer in need of hay or any farmer with available hay. This hotline number is 1-800-638-2209. Twenty-one of Maryland's 23 counties has been designated as a drought disaster area by U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lang.

MENNONITE DISASTER SERVICE

Paul Brubaker reports that the Mennonite Disaster Service has shipped around 10 tractor trailer loads of donated hay from the Mennonite Church to needy farmers in southern states. Brubaker reports that their service is not only for Mennonite farmers. But they do like to keep a very low key as far as publicity is concerned.

PENNSYLVANIA FARMERS ASSOCIATION

Ron Maley of Pennsylvania Farmers Association reports these truck loads of donated hay shipped in recent weeks to North Carolina: two tractor trailer loads from Northumberland County, one tractor trailer load from Lebanon County, one tractor trailer load for Lawrence County, one tractor trailer load from York County, one tractor trailer load from Butler County, two from Indiana County, two from Susquehanna, four from Lackawanna, one from Snyder; to Delaware and North Carolina, nine loads from Northampton County; and to Virginia, two loads from Westmoreland County, two loads from Snyder County, two loads from Centre County; and to Georgia, one load from Lebanon County.

THE DELAWARE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Delaware Agricultural Secretary William Chandler, Jr., announed this week that the Delaware Department of Agriculture is coordinating an effort to link Delaware farmers needing hay with farmers in Pennsylvania who are willing to donate hay. The department has established a special telephone number 302-736-5703 to handle calls.

Information from Pennsylvania farmers will be coordinated witht he Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and relayed daily through a computer hookup.

THE GRANGE

For the past week the National Grange has been coordinating efforts to get hay donated by farmers in the midwest to farmers in South Carolina and North Caroline, Georgia and Alabama. Grange spokesman Mark Nestlen said the effort has involved numerous groups including state departments of agriculture, trucking companies and several railroads. On a more local level, the Pennsylvania State Grange is working in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture to donate hay to farmers in York Co. and the drought sticken southern states.

Conrail has offered to pick the hay up and ship it throughout the states without charge.

Anyone interested in making hay donations can call the department at (717) 787-2387 between 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. weekdays. Monetary donations for hay can be made to the PA State Grange The Grange will then use the money to purchase hay for donating. Currently, a total of $220 has been donated by Granges.

If you are interested in making a monetary donation call the State Grange office at 1-800-242-9661. The PA Grange will continue to work with the department in seeing that the hay is gathered and distributed to those farmers in need.

For the past several weeks the National Grange and Norfolk Southern Crop. have been coordinating efforts to get hay donated by farmers in the Midwest to farmers in South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, and Alabama.

The Pennsylvania State Grange is the state's largest farm organization with 42,000 farmers and rural property owners throughout the Commonwealth.

NATIONAL FARMERS UNION

A national inventory of hay available to help livestock producers in drought-stricken southeast is being compiled by the National Farmers Union, and its Hay Lift Hotline project. A nationwide tollfree hotline telephone number has been established. If you have hay to donate or sell at a reasonable price, call 1-800-247-7539.

NFU President Si Carpenter said that long-term relief requires a means of meeting the needs of farmers for a continuing period. "That's where the haylift hotline comes in," he said.

The Texas Department of Agriculture announced an operation Dial Hay so that Texas farmers and ranchers with hay they can afford to donate to drought stricken producers in southeastern United States can do so by calling 1-800-DIAL-HAY according to Agricultural Commisioner Jim Hightower.

COUNTY COOPERATIVE EXTENSION SERVICE IN HUNTINGDON COUNTY, NJ

A tollfree number to contact a task force has been set up in New Jersey. The phone number is 800-433-0703. Farmers in New Jersey who are interested should call this number. Names of contributing farmers are given to coordinators and farmers in the drought stricken areas.

UNIVERSITY OF MD

A friendly voice to help farm families cope with the drought is the role that the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service wants to take so a statewide tollfree drought hotline number has been put into operation. The special number is 1-800-527-5257.

The Maryland Cooperative Extension Service is one of several state and federal agencies cooperating to provide assistance to Maryland farmers in the wake of the state's worst drought in 100 years.

MARYLAND DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE

Maryland State Drought Coordinator Robert L. Walker and State Food and Agriculture Committee Chairman Bruce L West have announced tha "Maryland Hay and Feed Disaste Program Committees" are no operational in 22 counties.

"We felt there was a need for local, broad-based, committee i each of the drought affecte counties to handle emergenc supplies of hay and feed," Mr Walker said.

In addition to various federa agricultural agency represen tation such as the ASCS, SCS Cooperative Extension Service Farmers Home Administration etc., these committees have representation from the Marylan Farm Bureau and Maryland Stat Grange, etc.

The primary role of the county committee is to act on request from individual farmers who find themselves in need of emergency supplies of hay and feed. The committee will assess the need or the grounds of time and urgency and make application for supplies of hay and feed.

Hay supplies that are being issued are coming from the pool of donated hay being assembled by the Maryland Hay Coordinator George Roche of Maryland Department of Agriculture.

This hay is coming in from across the nation. Supplies have already been received by the pool from Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Maryland. Requests from Frederick, Carroll, St. Mary's, Calvert, Somerset and Worcester counties have already been made and filled.

Farmers wishing to contact their local Hay and Feed Disaster Program Committee about emergency needs should contact the committee chairman or call their local office of the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service.

Iowa Delegation Announces Plans To Help

WASHINGTON – The Iowa Delegation announced today, August 8, a new plan to help farmers in the drought stricken South which will also help Iowa farmers with their hay and pasture surplus. The plan would call for southern farmers to ship their livestock to Iowa rather than having hay and grain shipped to the southern states.

U.S. Rep. Berkley Bedell (D-Iowa) has agreed to work with the other five representatives from Iowa and representatives from southern states to form a clearinghouse which will collect the names of Iowa farmers who have pasture land, feedlots, or hay available to help the southern farmers. These Iowa farmers will be linked with southern farmers who are interested in shipping their livestock to Iowa to be fed through the winter on a contract basis.

Using prevailing rail rates for shipping hay and average Iowa trucking rates for hauling cattle, Southern stockmen could save as much as $400 per head in transportation costs by moving their cattle to Iowa rather than paying to have hay and other feed shipped to the South. The fact that Iowa hay prices are low should be an added incentive to the Southeastern stockmen.

"I think this is a good solution to a tough problem," Bedell said. "Our farmers have feedlots and hay available and it is more cost effective for everyone to ship the livestock to Iowa. This is a proposition where no one will lose."

Farmers in the Sixth District interested in contracting with Southern farmers for feeding livestock should contact Bedell's Sioux City office at 712-277-4111.

PA Dept Of Ag Reports Open Letter

HARRISBURG – The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has received the following "open letter" to Pennsylvania farmers who have donated hay and services to farmers in drought ravaged southern states:

An Open Letter to Pennsylvania Farmers:

There's no words to describe the feeling a farmer gets when he sees his crops dying from a severe drought. It's a feeling that gathers in the pit of your stomach and weighs you down every day.

In the midst of the worst drought in Delaware in a century, many of you have managed to lift the spirits of a few Delaware farmers in a way that only a good soaking rain could rival. You've reached out with free hay, trucks, and encouragement to help our farmers fight the dry weather and continue to feed their livestock.

On behalf of these farmers and all Delawareans, I want to say thanks.

The hay that you've given may be gone in a matter of days or weeks, but the gesture of concern for your colleagues in Delaware will not soon be forgotten.

Very Sincerely,
William B. Chandler, Jr.
Secretary of Agriculture

"Pennsylvanians also should know that the department has received informal expressions of appreciation for their generosity from other drought affected states," according to Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb.

Several thousand tons of hay and trucks to haul it south have been donated throught the department, farm organizations, civic clubs, businesses and groups of private individuals.

Hay pledged through the department's hotline has been received by farmers in South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, Maryland, Delaware, Florida, Virginia and Alabama.

A Letter From Georgia

HARRISBURG – Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb has received the following letter from Thomas T. Irvin, Commissioner of the Georgia Department of Agriculture:

Dear Richard:

Record high temperatures and drought conditions continue to cause multiple problems for Georgia crop and livestock producers. However, the offers of assistance we have received from across this country have given us an opportunity to work toward long-term solutions for our problems.

We continue to be grateful for the outpouring of concern from farmers and other citizens, Departments of Agriculture, corporations and numerous other companies. I am writing today to inform you of Georgia's continuing need for hay to feed our livestock, and to again ask for your help.

If Georgia were to begin receiving normal rainfall now, which continued on through the fall and winter, our estimated needs for hay to feed through the winter are approximately one million tons. Unfortunately, predictions are not good for such a condition. In light of this, more realistic predictions for our needs approximate two million tons.

Thus far, approximately 3,500 tons of donated hay have been distributed in Georgia, much of it coordinated by the Georgia Department of Agriculture and some by the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation. Our gratitude for this much needed assistance is overwhelming. In many cases, this donated hay literally has saved a farmer's livelihood.

We must now look to the future and make arrangements to meet our livestock feeding needs throughout the winter. We would especially appreciate any future assistance you and your state's producers can give us in terms of donated hay and/or transportation to get it here. Towards this end, we have established a national toll-free hotline to receive information about and to coordinate hay distribution in Georgia. That phone number is 1-800-282-5852.

We would certainly appreciate any assistance you can give us in spreading the word about Georgia's continuing hay needs. We understand, as well, that with time, hay donations will by necessity expire, and we of course, will work with you and your producers in obtaining hay for sale. I would like to stress, however, that this is not the first year in recent times that Georgia producers have faced a drought. For seven of the last nine years, our producers have suffered from severe weather in the form of either droughts, freezes or some very untimely, heavy rains. This combination has left our producers in the worst, financial shape in the southeast.

Again, I speak for all Georgians in thanking you and your farmers for the tremendous generosity shown to our state's producers during this severe crisis. We know that with time and help from friends like you, Georgia agriculture will recover. Your contributions to that recovery will not be forgotten.

Sincerely,
Tommy Irvin

Juniata 4-H Swine Champions

Auctioneer, Brain Imes, sold the sale's 72 head for average of 89 cents a pound, without champions.

Ethanol: Room For Expansion

ST. LOUIS, Mo. – This year over 300 million bushels of corn will be used for the production of ethanol, representing a giant step from the 10 million used in 1978. And continued expansion is mandatory for the nation's corn farmers to help reduce the existing surplus.

"Many challenges still lie ahead," says Eric Vaughn, president of Renewable Fuels Association in Washington. "There is still reluctance from numerous groups involved not to use and promote ethanol. Therefore, we must continue to lobby for increased support and additional development efforts."

"Fortunately, Congress has made a commitment to the continued development of this industry," explains David Doane of the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources. "They recognize the necessity of reducing our dependence on foreign suppliers and having alternatives available for our disposal."

"What this means for the corn farmer is this: continued demand for ethanol means continued demand for corn," says Doane. "Since 85 percent of the ethanol market comes from corn derivatives."

Both Vaughn and Doane presented their remarks at the 28th National Corn Growers Association Convention and Expo on July 17.

The ethanol surge came at a time when there was a major energy crunch in this country. Now, however, we have progressed to the stage of ethanol being an octane enhancer. But predictions are that this is also temporary and we will return to ethanol being used as a fuel extender. This is why the need continues to reduce our dependence on foreign countries.

Chaloupka, Elliott Receive Del. Ag Awards

Chaloupka Elliott

NEWARK, Del. – George W. Chaloupka of Bridgeville, Del., and Joseph N. Elliott of Delmar, Del., were named as the 1986 winners of the Sussex Service Clubs' Award for Service to Agriculture. The award was announced recently at the service clubs' annual picnic, traditionally held in the grove at the Research and Education Center in Georgetown.

Elliott is a native Delawarean who has farmed throughout his life. He has grown vegetables, corn, soybeans and small grains, as well as swine and broilers. Elliott retired from farming in 1980.

In addition to farming, Elliott has served on the board of directors for the Laurel Southern States Cooperative and the Peoples Bank of Laurel.

He is an active member of several Delaware area agricultural associations, including the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association, Inc., the Delaware Forestry Board and the Governor's Advisory Council on Agriculture.

George Chaloupka grew up in Milton, Del., and received his bachelor's degree in agriculture from the University of Delaware. He taught at Sanford Preparatory School near Wilmington, then worked as a research and technical assistant for O.A. Newton and Son in Bridgeville for nine years.

In 1985, Chaloupka joined the University of Delaware staff as a poultry research associate, and then served as extension poultry specialist. In January, 1985, he was named director of the university's Research and Education Center near Georgetown, where he continues to serve as an extension poultry specialist.

Chaloupka has made numerous contributions to agriculture. He is an active member of the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association, Inc., and has served as both secretary-treasurer and president of Epsilon Sigma Phi – an honorary fraternity for professionals in the Cooperative Extension System. Chaloupka also serves on the board of trustees of the Delaware Agricultural Museum.

New Markets Needed For Corn Sweeteners

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Although the corn sweetener industry has advanced from 23 percent market share to 51 percent in recent years, the corn refining industry continues to search for new areas of development.

Ernie Micek of Cargill, Inc. reiterated the need for continued efforts in the search for new market areas at the 28th annual convention of the National Corn Growers Association.

In agreement with Micek was panel member Ray Stanhope of Staley Continental, Inc. He also emphasized the need for continued efforts with the federal government to maintain and improve the current "sugar program." This program is essential for corn producers as well as a stabilizing factor in foreign policy.

Al Tank, Washington staff member for the National Corn Growers Association added that although 80 percent of all sweeteners are utilized by the commercial or industrial market segment, consumer awareness is still essential for the continued development of corn utilization. "This is where corn farmers can help," Tank explains. "Our story is still not being told."

Competition remains heavy, especially now with the diet-conscious consumer and the heavy media awareness campaigns being conducted by artificial sweeteners. Even with the great strides in market share and the current status of corn sweeteners as the third largest market for corn products, now is not the time to let up. Continued research and lobbying efforts are necessary to help reduce the high corn surplus.

DICKEY-john DjGMT Grain Moisture Tester

The DICKEY john Grain Moisture Tester measures moisture content automatically You don t have to preweigh the sample There are no meters to read no dials to set and no thermometers to lose As soon as you pour in the grain sample the testing sequence begins A digital readout is displayed when the proper weight of the sample has entered the test chamber The readout is corrected for temperature at the touch of a pressure sensitive switch Models are available with direct readouts for corn soybeans or wheat and adhesive conversion charts are provided for other grains

- GRAIN MODEL List...$259 CASH.....$185
- FORAGE MODEL List...$310 CASH.....$215

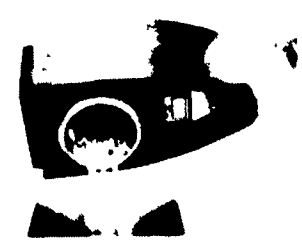
Simple, four-step operation

1 Place the tester on a steady, level surface Then, lift the protective cover up and slide it down out of the way

2 Use the sample cup to pour grain into the testing cell. Pour slowly and steadily, taking about eight to ten seconds to empty the sample cup. A readout will appear automatically.

3 Wait at least fifteen seconds. Then, press the temperature compensation switch for a direct readout of the moisture content of the grain listed on that switch Refer to the appropriate chart for other grains



4 Empty the tester by turning it over. (If you should forget to empty the test cell, the tester will shut itself off automatically after two minutes.)

REAP THE BENEFITS

Low Cost - Easy-to-Use

Accurate yield measurement with each tank unloaded.

Yield Trak Monitors four basic functions ground speed acres harvested bushels per acre and total bushels harvested The bushels per acre function is divided into two counters with independent resets so you can pinpoint yields with each tank-full or measure an entire field

Yield Trak provides the information you need at harvest to operate at maximum efficiency and make the best possible decisions for next season s crop

- Record exact number of acres harvested
- Increase productivity through accurate monitoring of ground speed
- Establish yield records for each field or soil type
- Assess the effects of weeds or insects on yields
- Determine next year s fertilizer and chemical requirements
- Measure yields from test plots to deter mine best performing varieties
- Establish a more accurate grain inventory
- Load trucks within legal limits

Yield Trak can be used with any make or model of combine and calibrated to accurately measure corn soybeans wheat and other small grains Whether you run your own farm or do custom combining efficient operation is more essential than ever Yield Trak eliminates the guess work that can cost you time and money

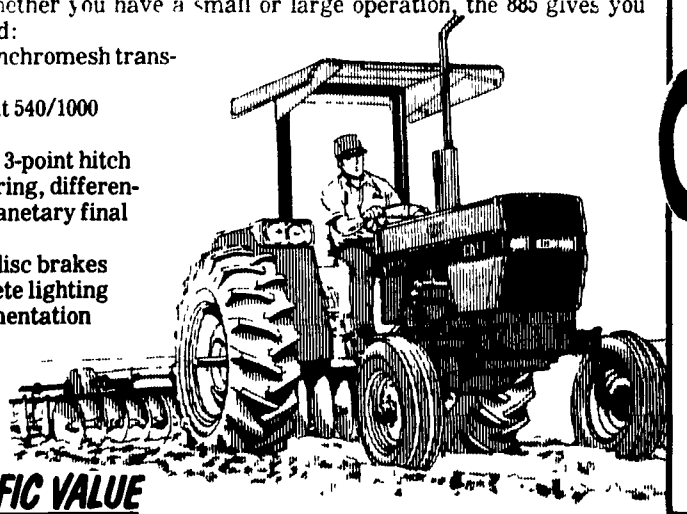
Mid-Size Power With Big-Size Performance

CASE INTERNATIONAL 885 TRACTOR

A Case International 885 tractor is a good choice for two reasons It's the perfect No 1 tractor on smaller operations, and ideal back-up power on larger acreages.

With 72 PTO hp*, the 885 more than pulls its weight. You'll like the exceptionally quick response and high torque rise of its clean-burning diesel engine That extra torque translates into greater tire bite and more workpower So whether you have a small or large operation, the 885 gives you what you need:

- 16-speed synchromesh transmission
- Independent 540/1000 RPM PTO
- Category II 3-point hitch
- Power steering, differential lock, planetary final drives
- Hydraulic disc brakes plus complete lighting and instrumentation



A TERRIFIC VALUE

- 18.4x30 Tires
- 18.6 GPM Pump
- Twin Remotes
- Roof Optional

Add This Unit To Your Equipment Lineup Now And Take Your Choice Of Payment Methods:

Shatter That Hardpan This Fall To Make 1987 A More Productive Year

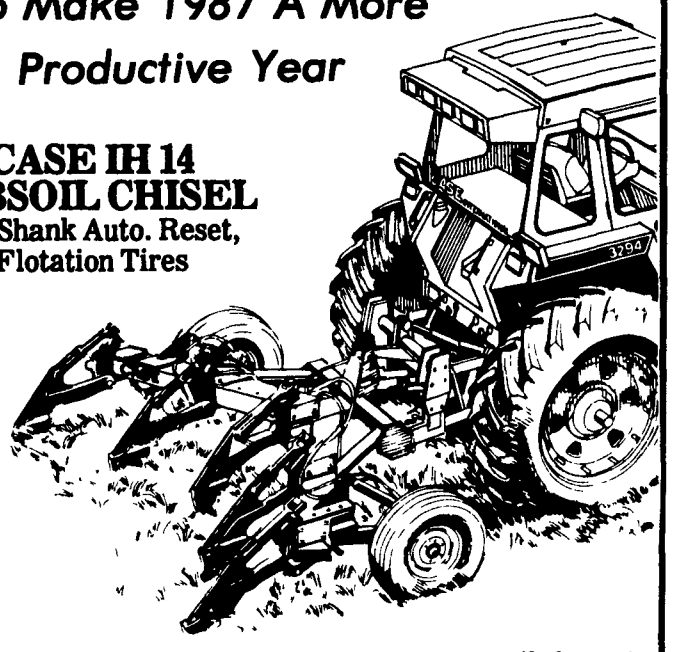
w/5 Shank Auto. Reset, Flotation Tires



$5,250 CASH

Works behind high horsepower tractors to open soil down to 20" for deep-down penetration of water and air. Parabolic curve shanks lift soil vertically for a wide area of soil fracture. Shank design and V-shape frame combine to deliver easier penetration, reduced draft and less fuel consumption.

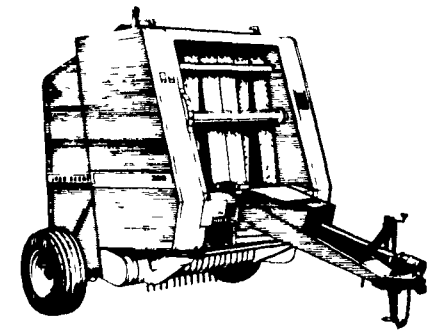
MAKES COMPACT BALES UP TO 650 POUNDS



■ Lean and trim in design, the new 330 Round Baler makes small, easy-to-handle packages—up to 650 pounds.

■ The 330 Round Baler has six features in common with the John Deere 430 and 530 Balers. . .the 330 is lower priced.

■ Bale shape and size indicators are mechanical. An audible alert indicates when the bale has reached a pre-set size. The operator controls hydraulic twine wrap and bale release from the tractor seat.

FEEDER WAGONS

16', 21', 27' lengths available. A great feature for feeding cattle in meadows or in feed lots. Can be used for feeding round bales.

If old gas tanks are used for feeder wagon bottoms, they should be sand blasted. If not, the gas and rust may result in sick cattle or even death. Be safe and buy from us as ours are sand blasted before being painted.

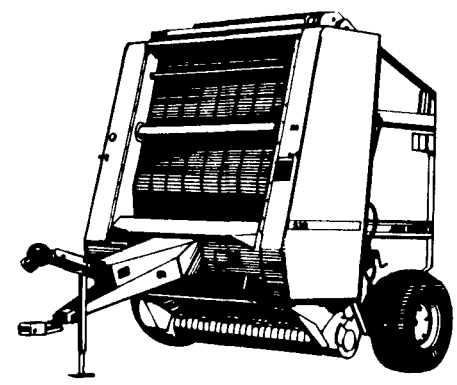
AUTOMATIC BALERS



John Deere round balers make baling almost automatic for any operator

The John Deere 430 and 530 Round Balers' automatic design begins with the exclusive Bale-Trak® monitor It's your electronic guide to making bales that are uniform in shape and size every time

A fast pickup speed means a more productive working speed Diamond-tread forming belts start the hay turning immediately for fast bale starts

When the bale reaches the preset size, the twine arm is automatically activated The end result is top-quality, uniform bales that are easy to handle Stop by for a look at the automatic 430 and 530 Balers

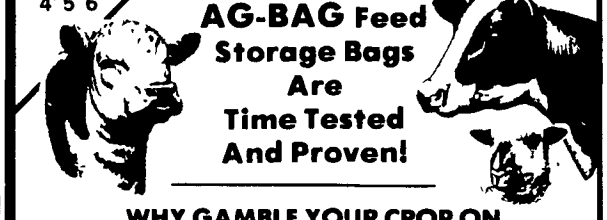
SELF-FEEDING
BIG AG-BAG PLUS!
You can feed directly from an Ag Bag and save hours of labor every day! You will also be feeding a more palatable feed as high in nutrition as the day you bagged it



AG-BAG Feed Storage Bags Are Time Tested And Proven!

WHY GAMBLE YOUR CROP ON ANYTHING ELSE?

"A lot of farmers in our area ran out of feed, but we didn't."

their eighty five cow dairy Our butterfat went to 700 which is good because we had a tough time in getting it to 625 before the bagging states Jim The palatability of the feed is a big plus and the higher quality feed has made a difference in the herd health We are now at a 12 5 calving interval which is important to us as our herd is completely artificially inseminated Both our veterinarian and nutritionist agree that the higher nutrition makes the difference

Another big plus is that you can select the feeds you want like haylage corn silage or wheatlage out of each bag and feed accordingly to your high group or your low group of cows it's a real management tool

Custom Bagging
- The white outer layer reflects the heat of the sun and the ultra violet rays that are the enemy of all plastics
- The black inner layers are designed to assure no ultra violet or oxygen penetration and offers double protection for your valuable crops and feeds

BOTH 8 FT. & 9 FT. BAG SIZES AVAILABLE

Pasture Rotation

These Virginia Stockmen Find That Giving Grass A Break Results In Higher Forage Yields

BY JULIE GOCHENOUR
Virginia Correspondent

SHENANDOAH VALLEY, Va. Go to almost any farm meeting west of the Blue Ridge Mountains these days—be it forage, conservation, beef cattle or sheep—and you hear the same thing.

"Pasture is your greatest underutilized resource," experts tell the region's livestock producers. "Make the most of it," they advise again and again. One visiting sheep producer from the West was even more blunt when he spoke at a meeting this year. "You all waste more feed than we can raise," he said flatly.

"It all comes back to what we have to market," Craig Yohn, a Jefferson County extension agent explains. "In West Virginia and the Shenandoah Valley we don't have livestock as much as we have grass to market. And whether it be through hay or through cattle or through sheep, the more grass we can grow, the more we have to market through livestock."

'By rotating, we get as much as 20 percent more forage in a year off those pastures.'

Pasture rotation is one way to grow more grass, Yohn says. In a nutshell, the system calls for dividing a large pasture into several smaller ones and moving livestock from field to field as the available grass is depleted. "By rotating, we get as much as 20 percent more forage in a year off those pastures," he continues.

"Each pasture has to have a water source, or some way to get to water, and rotational systems usually require more fencing than conventional pasture," Yohn admits, "But the quality and amount of that forage is higher than in a continually grazed pasture situation."

Keith Turner agrees. The young Rockingham County sheep producer runs 150 ewes with their lambs on just 26 acres of pasture. Turner began working out his rotational grazing system nine years ago, buying some of the first "fast fence" that came into the United States for just that purpose. His system is simple but functional, he says. "We just developed what would work best for us with the way our land lays and the buildings sit—and we just took it from there," he adds.

The result is 26 acres divided into four smaller, permanently fenced fields and one large open field he divides with the electric ply wire (fast fence). "I think a lot of people look at the textbook examples of construction for rotational grazing and right away say that it's not feasible because it's not economical," he speculates.

"Actually half of these people already have the basis for a suitable rotational system on their farm—they're just not utilizing it," the producer maintains. "It's not difficult at all. Basically they just need to work with what they have by using a combination of fast fence and permanent high tensile electric fencing."

'Profitability in farming comes from getting more from less instead of going strictly from a quantity standpoint.'

That may still sound expensive, but it's not, Turner says. "Profitability in farming comes from getting more from less instead of going strictly from a volume and quantity point of view. Your costs are fixed in that land whether you have 10 or 100 head on it. So obviously the more you can get out of that pasture, the more profitable it will be.

"You can rotate using fast fence much more economically than building permanent fence, plus it gives you flexibility," he adds. "It's extremely economical compared to woven wire at about $1.50 a running foot when you can get that same fence for 35 to 45 cents in material costs, including the charger."

Other savings come from fewer parasite problems, the ability to make hay from the additional grass and to run more animals. "There's no way we could keep

Ivermectin For Swine

Ten years ago the best weapon we had against mange was the lindane-toxaphene combination. It wasn't totally effective, but it did a lot of good if you followed the protocol – spray at least twice at 7- to 10-day intervals; get the pigs soaked; use high pressure.

But lindane + toxaphene was far from ideal. To use lindane, pigs had to be at least 30 days old. To use toxaphene, they had to be at least 3 months old. The withdrawal period was 30 days. And you had to get the animals wet – both winter and summer.

Several years later two new products were approved for controlling mange – prolate and ectiban. Recent studies show they're at least as effective as lindane + toxaphene. Pigs of all ages can be treated except those nursing the sow. Prolate has only a one-day withdrawal. Ectiban has no withdrawal.

But even with these improved drugs we still have two obstacles:

1) Mites burrow and live under the skin, so they have a lot of natural protection against sprays.

2) Sprays have limited effect against mite eggs, so a second application is usually necessary.

This month, still another drug, ivermectin, has been approved for the control of mange (trade name: Ivomec for Swine). Ivermectin differs from other mange control products because it's an injection, not a spray. And there's another characteristic that makes ivermectin different. It controls not only mange and lice, but most internal parasites as well.

Once injected, ivermectin is absorbed into the circulation. Parasites are slowly paralyzed as they consume the host animal's blood. Like other products, it's not effective against mite eggs. But the active ingredient remains in the blood long enough to kill mites once they do hatch out of the egg.

So what does this mean to the swine producer? It means there's no longer an excuse for having hogs with mange. We now have the means to control and eliminate mange from an infested herd. How do you go about it? Talk to your veterinarian. He knows your situation and can advise you on the best treatment protocol. Some things to keep in mind:

• Dosage level is 1 cc per 75 pounds of body weight. That's higher than the cattle dose. The drug works differently in hogs.

• Injections should be made subcutaneously, that is under the skin. The Merck company recommends injecting behind the ear. If you inject into the muscle, you won't hurt a thing. But the drug will probably not remain in the blood long enough to get the eggs once they hatch.

• The whole herd should be done at one time (within a day or two), from baby pigs on up. This is the most effective method of it's the cheapest.

• Treatment should not be made within 18 days of slaughter.

Some questions you ought to be asking:

If I treat the whole herd with the correct dose, does that mean I'll never have to treat again? With good sanitation and management it is possible to wipe out mange from the herd with one treatment. But many producers I've talked with have found that two treatments are needed, especially with badly infested sows. Treat these first and again with the rest of the herd, two weeks later. Dr. Robert Graybill, a Lancaster veterinarian, also recommends two injections for sows in late pregnancy – one when the rest of the herd is treated and a second 10-14 days after farrowing.

Since ivermectin is approved as a wormer, should I routinely treat sows before they farrow? Worms can be controlled with a smaller dose – 1 cc of ivermectin per 110 pounds of body weight. But ivermectin costs about $.60/cc. So if the average weight of your sows is 375 pounds, ivermectin injections for worms will cost about $2.20 per head. Worming sows with Atgard will cost about $.40 per head; $.60 per head with Safeguard; and $1 per head with Tramisol. All will do a good job. So the answer to that question should be easy.

Is mange really worth eliminating, if ivermectin costs $.60/cc? Mange can take a heavy toll on average daily gain and on feed efficiency. Mange opens up a path for skin infections and "greasy-pig" disease. Mange, I'm convinced, leads to many cases of tail and ear biting. And mange, because of the intense itching it causes, makes a hog absolutely miserable. Mange is worth eliminating even if ivermectin costs $.60/cc.

Bedford Co. Fair Sells Champion Beef, Sheep, Swine

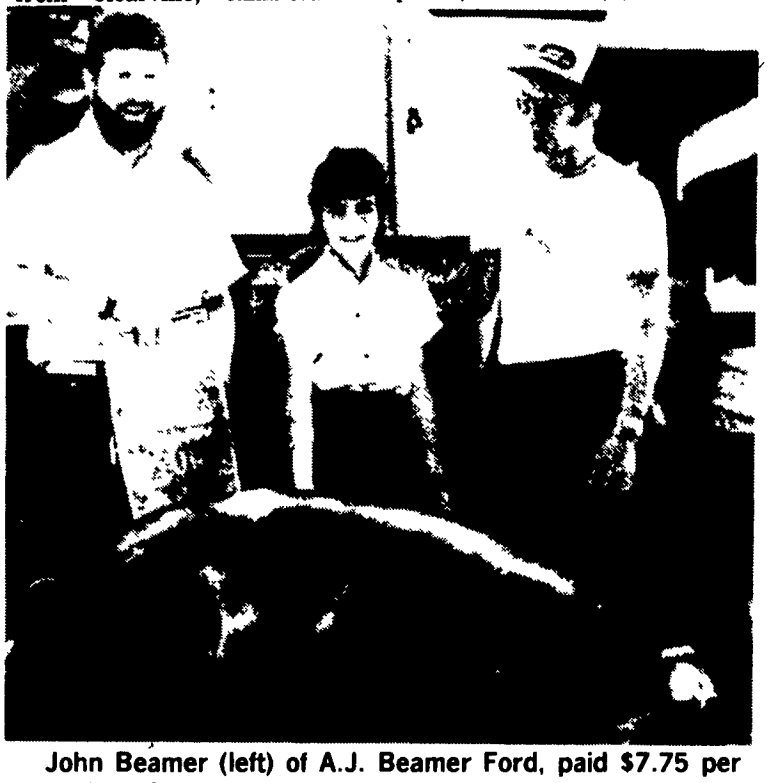
BY BETSY STITT
Blair Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD — A successful junior livestock sale on Aug. 9 rounded out an eventful week at the Bedford County Fair. Despite the current economic trends, prices were at a record high.

Market steers, hogs and lambs were offered for bids by auctioneer Clayton Winebark of Indiana. Show champions and winners had been named earlier in the week.

Cathy Furlong, a 4-H member from Clearville, exhibited the grand champion steer. Her champion, a well-finished Angus, brought $7,072, when Hoss' Steak House of Bedford offered the top bid of $5.75 per pound for the 1,230-pound entry. The young exhibitor plans to use the money to buy more steers and to attend college.

An FFA member from Alum Bank, Dennis Hillegass, captured reserve champion honors with a 1,184-pound crossbred steer. The buyer, Stanley Claycomb of Cove Soft Ice Cream, paid $3.70 per pound, for a total of $4,381.



John Beamer (left) of A.J. Beamer Ford, paid $7.75 per pound for Ginger Kegg's grand champion hog, then donated the top porker to Alum Bank Fire Company, represented by Gerald Lippert.

The sale's 58 steers averaged 87 cents per pound, up from last year's 75-cent average.

In the market hog competition, Ginger Kegg of Bedford once again captured grand champion honors with her homebred Spotted gilt. This is the third consecutive year that Ginger has taken this title. High bidders A.J. Beamer Ford Company set a sale record by paying $7.75 per pound for the 236-pound grand champion, bringing the total tab to $1,829. Beamer Ford donated the hog, along with a steer and lamb, to the Alum Bank Volunteer Fire Company.

Richie Emerick, Schellsburg, repeated last year's performance by showing the grand champion carcass. Henry Miller bought the 142-pound entry for $3.50 per pound.

Beamer Ford set still another sale record by paying $9.05 per pound for the grand champion market lamb exhibited by Scott Myers of Bedford.

The reserve champion lamb was shown by Gwendolyn Grey of Schellsburg, who sold the lamb to Hartley National Bank. Grey also had the reserve champion carcass that sold to Seipts Locker Plant for $3.30 a pound.

Spike Funston entered the grand champion lamb carcass. The 57-pound entry sold to G.M. Eicher Packing Company for $3.80 per pound. The lamb sale averaged $1.88 per pound including champions, also up from last year's average.

Cathy Furlong (at halter) sold her champion steer to Hoss's Steak House represented here by (left) Len Hummel, Bill Campbell and Ferd Mazzel. Final bid was $5.75 per pound.

Miller Charolais Takes Reserve at Ohio State Fair

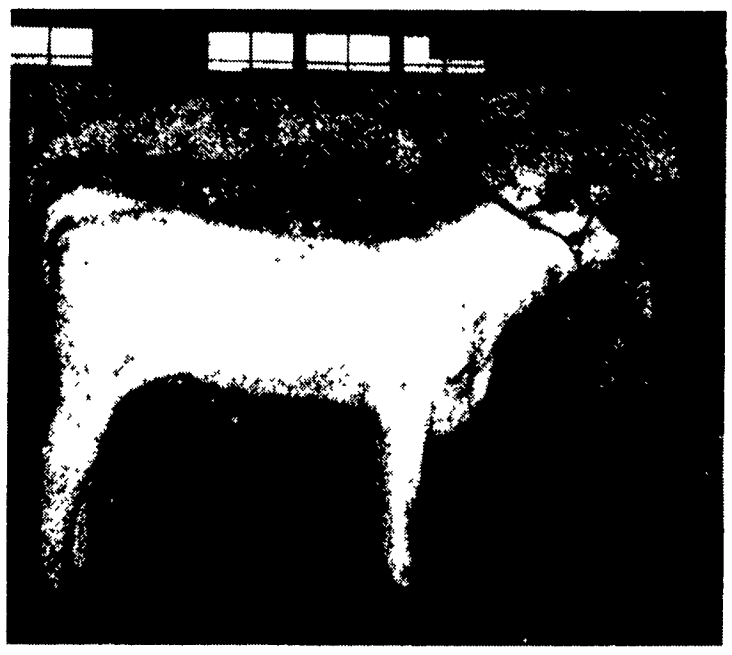
COLUMBUS, Ohio — Thirty-two entries made up the 1986 Charolais Show at the Ohio State Fair held Aug. 8 in Columbus. Dr. Tom Turner of Columbus, Ohio, evaluated the cattle led out by 19 exhibitors.

Adams Charolais Farms of Springfield, Ohio, teamed up with D and L Cattle Co. to present the grand champion bull, AS High Sierra 3425. This May 1985, son of High-Rise was also the intemerdiate champion. Following into the reserve slot of the bull show was GF Buddy B 522 ET, a September yearling sired by RCC Royal Jaguar. He's owned by Grassy Forks Farm of Catawba, N.C., and was the day's calf champion.

Adams Charolais was back in the female show to take the top honor with ACF Apple Drop 4325 PD, the senior champion. Apple Drop is a March 1985 daughter of High-Rise.

A Pennsylvania entry, Perfection's Linda Sue, moved in and claimed the reserve senior and reserve grand honors. This April 1985 female, sired by Paramont Trademark 2137, was exhibited by Miller Charolais Co. and Paul Miller of Spring Grove, Pa.

Royal Wins In Missouri



Royal Charolais Co. of Greensburg walked away with grand champion female honors at the Ozark Empire Fair, Springfield, Mo., on July 30. RCC Royal Heiress, a May yearling sired by Constructor, was also the event's intermediate champion.

The Pennsylvania Yorkshire and Duroc Associations reported a successful Summer Show in Lebanon on July 17 and 18, with hogs selling into Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Ohio and New Jersey. Auctioneer Harry Bachman garnered a sale total of $9,700 for the boars, open and bred gilts that sold.

The champion York bred gilt was consigned by Wilson's Yorkshires of New Freedom, and sold to Calvin Lazarus and Sons, Whitehall, for $475. Wilson's Yorkshires also consigned the top York open gilt and sold it to Dennis Grumbine, Myerstown, for $220. Champion York Boar honors went to Mark and Charles Hall of Julian, who sold their winning boar to Lebanon's Leon Arnold for $335.

The show's top Duroc boar was owned by Dave Holloway of Glen Rock, and sold to William Herring of Schuylkill for $275. Calvin Lazarus and Sons showed the champion Duroc bred gilt and sold her to William Herring of Schuylkill for $300. Dave Holloway's top open Duroc gilt went to John Corey of Scotland, Connecticut, for $200.

Pasture Rotation

those numbers with just two fields—I could only keep 60 comfortably and those extra 90 sheep more than cover the additional fencing costs."

Additional management is also required, but not as much as might be expected. "We just put them on a pasture and then let them mow it down. If you go by the book, the sheep are only supposed to be in there three days," he says. "Normally though, we like to move them every two weeks or three, depending on the rainfall and the size of the field."

There isn't any other set rules either. "Normally we like them to graze within an inch because that grass will come back quicker," Turner relates. "It takes a little more management to make sure they're properly rotated when necessary, but we have no written schedule. It's the 'farming by feeling' method; when it feels like it's time, that's when we move them."

According to Dr. Harlan White, extension agronomist for forages at VPI, pasture rotation is a form of grazing management. It works because it's based on light interception and organic food reserve. Leaves intercept light from the sun, and through the process of photosynthesis, manufacture food for production of new leaves and other plant parts.

"Food in excess of that needed for growth is stored in the lower portion of the plant as organic food reserves and is used later when there are not enough leaves to furnish adequate food for growth," says White. "If the leaves are not allowed to develop because of overgrazing, or are removed too early by grazing or mowing, the plant does not have sufficient time to manufacture organic food in amounts necessary for growth and replenishment of food reserves. Thus the plant is weakened, regrowth is slow, and some plants may be lost," he concludes.

This makes sense to Mike Goldwasser, a cattleman from Hillsville in mountainous southwe Virginia Goldwasser takes advantage of the spring and fall growth spurts of pasture grasses by running stocker animals on his fields during these times—then selling them when the grass grows dorman in summer and winter, losing its high nutritional value and ability to put pounds of beef cattle.

According to Goldwasser, pasture rotation is a vital part of his program since he has to make the most of these growth spurts. Nonetheless, "I've become more and more convinced for a lot of reasons, and not just for increasing your number of grazing days, that it's good to take cattle off your land for a while," Goldwasser reveals.

"Think of it in terms of an individual grass plant. If it's eaten today and starting to grow again when a cow comes along five days later and eats it off again, that puts a lot of stress on that plant. In 90 percent of the pastures in Virginia, that happens all summer long. A plant can only grow as fast as it can photosynthesize and it can only photosynthesize in proportion to the amount of leaf it has," he says, echoing Dr. White.

It needn't be complicated, though he advises. "If you have 100 acres and can divide it in half, it helps. You shouldn't go to a lot of expense to do this; the whole point of it is to be economical. Yet I fully believe that one fence is going to increase my stocking capacity 5 to 10 percent on the whole farm. Well if I can keep one more animal, then it will pay for that fence (high tensile) in one year and I don't have any increased variable costs except veterinarian and interest. There's no question in my mind that you increase your stocking rate every time you put up a cross fence."

Fencing and pasture rotation can also be applied to benefit dairy farmers even though most don't use grass in their ration program. Ron Roudabush, a Mt. Solon dairy farmer, and Jerry Swisher, the Augusta County extension agent working with dairymen redesigned the farmer's hilly loafing lot using the principles of pasture rotation.

"It's officially a livestock management rotational system. It's been recognized that many dairy operators in the Shenandoah Valley, and nationwide, have a common problem with the use of dry lots, loafing lots, exercise lots or paddocks. These areas are subject to heavy concentrations of livestock on a daily basis," Swisher notes, adding that any sod soon disappears and problems take its place.

These problems include everything from soil erosion, lowered water quality in nearby streams, increased herd health problems such as mastitis, hoof problems and even reproductive disorders. What's more, it also gives a lowered aeste-etic value to the farm with all the barren ground, he notes, in the landscape. Not even a dairy farmer can admire a muddy, miry loafing lot.

"What we're trying to do is come up with a management rotational system of where we go in and establish a very thick, vigorous sod to basically hold the soil together to prevent soil erosion and to prevent pollution in adjacent streams, while, at the same time, giving the animals—particularly the lactating cows—the opportunity to go to an exercise lot and utilize that where it's basically clean and dry."

So far it's working. Roudabush divided his 14-acre, steeply sloped loafing lot into four paddocks with fiber glass posts and three strands of electric wire. Cattle stayed on three of the four lots while he established a thick sod of fescue on the first paddock, then used that and two others while he established sod on the second paddock. By rotating his cows from paddock to paddock, the sod has time to recover from the wear and tear before erosion can begin to occur.

The lots need very little maintenance, Roudabush notes, since the manure keeps them fertilized and heavy traffic keeps them grass worn down. Gates open into each block to make moving the cattle easier, he explains, "It's an offshoot of pasture rotation," his extension agent emphasizes, "But the cows don't graze the pasture. This is not being used as a feed source, but as a conservation and management practice."

Massey Increases Tractor Market Share Worldwide

DES MOINES, Iowa – Massey-Ferguson continued to increase its lead in world tractor markets last year, posting a market share of 17.4 percent despite a drop in the total world market for tractors of 3.5 percent.

M-F's share improved to 11.7 percent in Europe, to 10.3 percent in North America and 27 percent in Latin America, and it also successfully entered the Chinese market with three contracts totaling $4.7 (U.S.) million.

In Latin Latin, Africa, the Far East and the Middle East, which together comprise Massey-Ferguson's World Export Operations sector, the company holds nearly 28 percent of the tractor market.

Massey-Ferguson tractors are built in manufacturing plants in U.K., France and Italy. The report reveals that between them they earned a trading profit last year of $46.9 (U.S.) million.

Asgrow Celebrates 130 Years of Seed Production

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — This year, 1986, marks the 130th anniversary of the founding of the seed business that eventually became the Asgrow Seed Company.

"Asgrow is a subsidiary of The Upjohn Company, which has its centennial celebration this year," stated Gerald A. Welch, president of the Asgrow Seed Group.

The company's history dates to 1856 when Everett B. Clark, a Connecticut farmer, saved a crop of cabbage that had gone to seed. He sold the seed that winter and decided that the seed business might be better than farming.

He also began to sell sweet corn, and the sale of this crop became the foundation of a prosperous business, the Everett B. Clark Seed Company. His company was the first to introduce hybrid sweet corn in 1924.

In 1883, Clark and a group of about 12 other seed firms formed the American Seed Trade Association, whose membership today numbers more than 600. Of the current membership, Asgrow is one of the five charter members.

By the 1920's, Clark's son Arthur was in charge and decided to join forces with two other seed companies that had achieved positions of importance as suppliers of vegetable seed - the John H. Allan Company of Sheboygan, Wisconsin, and N.B. Keeney and Sons of Leroy, New York. The new combination became Associated Seed Growers, Inc., with Arthur B. Clark as president. That was 1927.

"The trade name Asgrow evolved out of this new name, but it didn't become Asgrow Seed Company until 1958," Welch explained.

Although the companies which joined to form Asgrow had been carrying on plant breeding for over 70 years, the new firm officially established a breeding and research department in 1928. That tradition continues today through a network of research stations strategically located throughout the world.

In 1945, the Asgrow Export Corporation was formed to handle the expanding worldwide distribution and marketing of seeds. This business later became known as the Asgrow International Corporation. Today, with seven subsidiary companies, Asgrow is engaged in worldwide production, distribution and sales of seed. Agronomic and vegetable seeds are marketed in more than 90 countries throughout the world.

In 1968, Asgrow joined the Agricultural Division of The Upjohn Company. "Today, Asgrow has a research and development staff, worldwide research and production facilities, a recognized leadership role in the vegetable seed business and a rapidly expanding agronomic seed business," Welch stated.

Asgrow's commitment to improve the hybrid corn product line led to the 1983 acquisition of the O's Gold Seed Company — a corn, sorghum, alfalfa and forages company headquartered at Parkersburg, Iowa. Along with the seed products produced by O's Gold came personnel and additional facilities and research locations.

"Asgrow is an important element of Upjohn's Agricultural Division." Welch concluded. "We're looking forward to a bright future and that 150th anniversary."

Hart-Carter Introduces Twin Rotor Cultivator

MENDOTA, Ill. – Hart-Carter Company's twin rotor, ground driven (no PTO) Dyna-Drive is designed primarily as a minimum tillage surface cultivator to prepare a smooth, level, erosion-protected seedbed for uniform germination. The unit is effective under conditions where moisture, trash or heavy stubble might stop a disc or field cultivator. Its self-cleaning tines resist plugging and will incorporate trash uniformly Dyna-Drive has also proved it effectiveness in breaking up large, dry, heavy clods where discs or culti-mulchers fail.

The speed differential between its two rotors gives Dyna-Drive a unique action in the soil. The front rotor operates at one-half ground speed giving the tines a forward, scooping action that lifts and breaks the soil into clods. The rear tines revolve three times faster than the front allowing the rear tines to shatter the clods. A trailing crumbler/roller firms the surface to protect the loose soil below.

Models are available from 7 to 16 feet working width, with depth adjustments from 1½ to 5½ inches. Horsepower requirements are well within acceptable levels, and because of its ability to do its job, often in only one pass, savings in both time and fuel are significant.

Prices and literature are available at Hart-Carter dealers or from Hart-Carter Company, 1501 1st Ave., Mendota, IL 61342, Phone 815/539-9371.

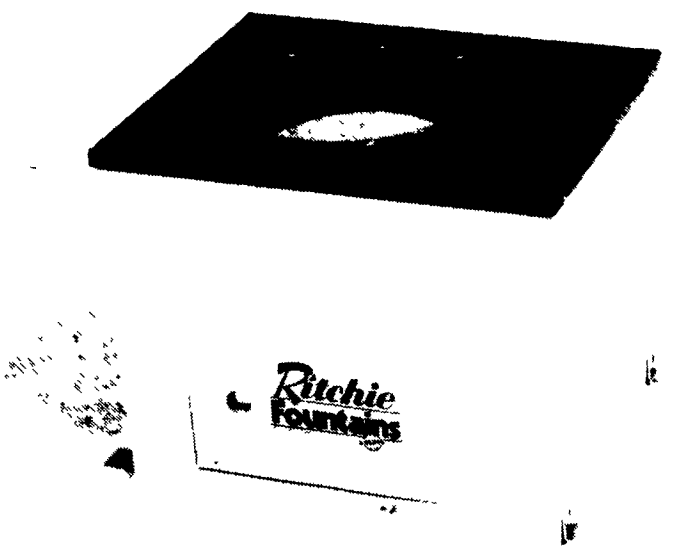
New Livestock Fountain From Ritchie



New from Ritchie is the Commander, a compact and economical single-drink livestock fountain. The unit is constructed of galvanized steel coated with the Ritchie CD-50 finish, and uses Ritchie valves, floats and heating equipment. The COMMANDER is 17"x20"x16" high, comes with overhead plumbing connections, easily accessible electricals, and uses 161 watts of electricity, including the supply line heater.

Ford To Demonstrate Tractors In Maryland

WOODSBORO, Md. – Ford Tractor Operations will be sending their "Power Caravan" to New Holland, Inc., Maryland stores next month.

The "Power Caravan" consists of seven semi loads of the latest in farm tractor technology. The one-day event features the new line of Ford tractors. The new tractors will be operated by Ford's "all world" demonstration team, that has been traveling in the United States since April of this year.

The Caravan gives farmers and other agricultural leaders the opportunity to see various machines that are being used in other countries around the world. The members of the demonstration team will be available to answer questions.

The Caravan is set to be held Friday, Sept. 5, along Maryland Route 194, one-half mile south of the Woodsboro Livestock Sales., Woodsboro, Md.

Vinson Receives ABS Award

DEFOREST, Wisc. – William E. Vinson of Virginia Tech University, Blacksburg, Virginia, was named recipient of the J. L. Lush Award at the recent American Dairy Science Association's (ASDA) annual meeting in Davis, California.

The award, in the form of a plaque and $1,500, is sponsored by Americans Breeders Service and is made annually in recognition of the exceptional contributions made by Dr. Lush to the science of animal breeding. Dr. Robert E. Walton, President of ABS, made the presentation.

Dr. Vinson, the fifth person to receive this award, is a native of Greensboro, North Carolina, and obtained his B.S. and M.S. degrees from North Carolina State University. After receiving his Ph.D. from Iowa State University in Animal Breeding in 1971, he joined the department of Dairy Science at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

Dr. Vinson's research program at this institution concentrates on dairy sire and cow evaluations emphasizing selection for economic merit. It has gained him a national and international reputation as lecturer and speaker.

Farm Toy Collectors To Hold Auction

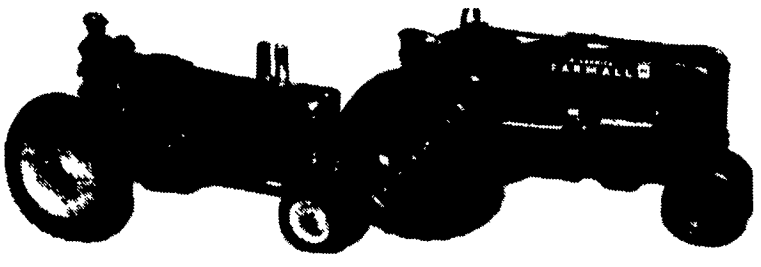
NEW HOLLAND — An auction of antique and old farm-related toys will be held in the New Holland Fire Company's banquet hall on Saturday, Aug. 30, beginning at 11 a.m.

More than 400 items have been consigned, including a number of New Holland toys being entered by a collector from the Midwest.

Dave Nolt of Paradise, the sale's coordinator and toy club president, expects some rare versions of toy tractors manufactured during the 1950s and 60s to bring more than $100, with average prices ranging between $50 and $80.

Some of the toys with familiar names will include John Deere, Oliver, Massey, Farmall-IH, Minneapolis-Moline, New Idea, Case and A-C, along with a few trucks.

Food will be served, and Dale Stoltzfus of Gap will handle auctioneering duties.



Farm-related toys, such as these two tractors made in the early 1950's, will cross the auction block during a toy auction to be held in New Holland.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Looking Down The Road

Last week I gave my impression of what will happen with farm input expenses in the future. In a way that was the "good news." Now for the bad news. Most farm commodity prices will be soft, which means they will not be very good over any extended period of time. A combination of low prices, adverse weather conditions, overwhelming debt, and taxpayer revolt will probably erode the ranks of full-time commercial farmers.

Traditionally farmers have never paid enough attention to two areas of their business. One of these areas is cost of production. The second one is marketing. The first one is easier to control on the part of the manager. The second one is controlled by a number of factors, most of which can not be influenced by an individual farmer or even a small group of farmers. However, marketing knowledge must be part of management's responsibility. Marketing facts should have a bearing on production and financial management decisions.

Milk is one of the biggest sources of farm income in my area of central Pennsylvania. Milk prices have dropped rather dramatically in the last few years. The net price for milk now is between 10 and 11 dollars per hundred. In the next four to five years, it will probably slip down to an area between nine and ten dollars. In the near future, milk may go up once the assessment comes off in the fall of 1987. This increase will be partly offset by a reduction of the support price, which will affect the blend price for Pennsylvania milk. Overall in the next few years, dairy farmers will see a reduction in prices that will exceed those of the late 50's and early 60's.

Blame it on the government (for past dairy programs that encouraged too much milk production or for present programs that cut things off too rapidly), or on dairymen from other parts of the country such as California or Wisconsin, or on consumers who do not drink enough milk, or on those who opposed milk advertising and new product research in the past, or on anyone else. It makes little difference who was at fault in the past, the fact is that there is more milk being produced in the nation than there is demand for that milk. The dairy buyout program may do nothing for milk prices, but it sure has hit the cull cow and beef prices pretty hard at times. Look for cull cow prices to stay low for the next few months, then fluctuate as the second and third waves of buyout cows hit the market. By the fall of 1987 we should see a return to normal marketing of cull cows.

Grain prices will probably stay depressed until the 1990's unless the Midwest runs into a prolonged drought such as the Southeast is having right now. By then much of the marginal land, that came into production during the boom years of the 1970's, will be out of production, either via government set aside programs or because it will have been deemed as unprofitable for farming. Some people feel that it will be loss of farmers that will turn prices around. Actually loss of farmers in the grain business would have very little effect on the price of grain. As farmers go out of business, other farmers generally expand to use their land. The turn around in grain prices will come when and if demand ever catches up with supply. That can only happen if yield per acre goes down, number of acres goes down, or usage increases.

Fish is "the new kid on the block" as far as the red meat industry is concerned. Today nearly all fast food places sell fish. It was not too long ago that beef was the only, or at least the main, meat sold by many fast food places. The fish competition has hurt red meat prices. It will continue to compete for a larger share of the red meat market. This will hasten the integration of the swine industry.

Once pork is primarily a contracted commodity, prices will become more stable, management will become more a function of the integrator, and farmers will become laborers and technicians. Is that all bad? Not necessarily, because the pork producer will have records kept for him or her. This will lead to a more efficient industry. Beef will be more difficult to integrate, but it will come in time. Results for the beef industry will be similar to what happened in the poultry industry and what is already happening with the pork producers. Meanwhile both pork and beef producers who are interested in making a profit raising livestock must determine their cost of production so they can either (1) reduce it, (2) unite and fight it, (3) go out of business because the cost can not be reduced to equal price, (4) use forward contracting or hedging to "lock in" profits or reduced losses, or (5) a combination of two or more of the above.

Farm commodity prices in general will be depressed for several years unless a disaster hits a major production area (such as a drought in the Midwest, a major disease of dairy cattle in Wisconsin) It is unfortunate that a disaster in one area is needed to make other area farmers profitable. Watch the poultry and peanut industry prices during this next year following the major drought and hot weather in the Southeast.

Teams, Individuals Reap Awards At Pa. 4-H Achievement Days

UNIVERSITY PARK — Everyone who participates in 4-H Achievement Days is a winner. The opportunity to attend this statewide event and compete in contests is an honor in itself.

Achievement Days is an annual event that brings 4-H'ers from across the state together for traditional and non-traditional competitions designed to encourage youths to greater achievements.

Over 1,300 4-H members from across Pennsylvania had the opportunity to compete in contests at this year's event, held at Penn State's University Park campus recently, and many left with team and individual awards. The photos in this week's issue represent some of the many winners who participated.

In addition to the team and individual winners shown here, top demonstration winners were Noel King, Jeanne Smith, Amy Rodgers, Bobbi Smith and Donna Lemmon, Adams County; Kellene Reynolds, Susquehanna County; Dawn Hawryluk, Lebanon County, Suzanne Miller, Somerset County; Heath Winsheimer and Chris Zagrodnichek, Indiana County; Gretchen Gross, Venango County; Sam Williams, Dauphin County; Dara Goodman, McKean County; and Christina Schultz, York County.

Sire Power Gains Strength On July Proofs

TUNKHANNOCK — The July 1986 USDA Sire Summaries reflect an outstanding sire program available in the Sire Power/Allied Genes Holstein lineup. With 29 bulls over +$100 PD Dollar Value, the genetic power offered is stronger than ever. The combination of high dollar value, high milk, test, and protein sires, and the exceptional type bulls has never been better. All in all, this group of active proven Holstein bulls had many gains and improvements.

The Holstein lineup was strengthened by many bulls increasing PD Dollar Value, as well as milk, test, and protein. There are 22 bulls over +1000 PDM, with 19 of them over +1100 PDM. Also 19 bulls are plus for butterfat test, and 15 are plus on protein. With more emphasis on test and protein, Sire Power offers the bulls that can produce the kind of daughters which are proven assets in today's component milk pricing market.

The most exciting news from the USDA proof information is the addition of seven new bulls. Sire Power added six bulls, with five of them being graduates of the young GOLD Sire Sampling Program, and NOBA added one bull. This group of bulls added high dollar and milk value to strengthen the line-up from the ALLIED GENES marketing program.

A new, high dollar value bull is 9H1101 Modik Valiant COUNT-ET at +$156 +1184m +.05% +52f and 56% repeatability. Additionally, COUNT is +.00% for protein test, and +1.19 PD type giving him a +664 TPI. He is a Valiant son from the Golden Genes Sampling Program, which is now part of Sire Power's marketing program. COUNT is an exciting new Valiant son from an Excellent, high producing Elevation daughter. COUNT is one of the few bulls in the breed that is plus over 1000 PD Milk, plus on both fat and protein percent, and plus over a point on PD Type.

There were five Sire Power GOLD Graduates added back to the active lineup: Plushanski RAIDER-OC-ET at +$144 +1155m 74% NUGGET X CHIEF; Brooks-Twain Nugget SATAN at +$128 +654 69% NUGGET X ELEVATION; Veemens Chief Pete ECHO at +$119 +1307 64% PETE X CHIEF; Lime-Rock Lindas LARK-ET at +$108 +1203 60% BELL X CHIEF; and Wentland Bell ROCKY-ET at +$104 +1115 71% BELL X GLENDELL.

This group of GOLD Graduates have an outstanding average of +$120 +1086 PDM and 67% repeatability. Sire Power's GOLD Sire Development Program has continued to grow and yield outstanding results, as evidenced by this group of graduates.

Highlighting the NOBA addition was 1H406 Thonyma Secret. A high, dollar milk bull, Secret is +$160 +1340m +.00% +49f and 65% repeatability. He is exceptional for protein at +.05%, plus on type, and +599 TPI. Secret is a Locust-Glen Ivanhoe Elevation son, from a VG Conductor daughter. At +$160 Dollar Value, Secret ranks among the elite production bulls of the breed.

9H719 Whittier-Farms NED BOY had a nice increase in his production and type information, and remains a top TPI bull at +717. He is +$162 +1145m +.09% +57f, and 78% repeatability. Additionally, he is +.04% on protein test and increased to +1.77 PD Type. Ned Boy has become one of the most exciting bulls ever to graduate from the GOLD program. His credentials place him in an elite category of top Holstein sires in the breed.

9H599 Sunny-Craft Chief Spirit more than doubled the number of daughters by adding 1685 to his proof, and increased his milk to +1175 PDM, his highest milk proof ever and is +$157 PD Dollar Value. In addition, he increased in test to +.06% with 99% repeatability on his production proof. Spirit is plus on type with a +591 TPI.

Another highlight, 9H584 Cal-Clark Board Chairman added over 4,400 daughters and remains in a strong position at +$114 +1088m -.05% +30f with 99% repeatability. He is also plus on protein and +1.10 PD Type. His high production combined with outstanding type make him a favorite with dairymen everywhere. CHAIRMAN is an outstanding sire that has stood the test of time and continues to be recognized as one of the outstanding udder bulls of the Holstein breed. All of his fine credentials combine to give Chairman a TPI of +576 and qualify him as a Gold Medal Sire.

The July proofs also produced an outstanding group of Valiant sons available through Allied Genes. This group of bulls offers many extras for the dairyman looking for high-producing daughters that fit today's component milk pricing market.

One of the bulls highlighting this group is 9H758 Brooks-Twain Valiant Sammy-ET. Since going into service in July of 1985, he has increased steadily over the last two summaries. He is now +$140 +1192m +.00% +42f with 84% repeatability. Adding his +.01% on protein and +.77 PD Type gives him a +608 TPI. With his outstanding production proof and very favorable linear information, Sammy is a popular sire among breeders.

The outstanding bulls at Sire Power offer the dairyman a wide selection of genetically superior sires at reasonable prices. Dairymen can use these bulls with confidence, knowing their herd will have above average genetic potential for milk, protein, and fat production, as well as functional type.

The dairy sire lineup continues to get stronger with the combination of Allied Genes sires. An outstanding Brown Swiss bull 9B67 Ventures Esp Babaray once again increased in all categories. He is +$108 +681m +.09% +41f +.02% protein on his production summary, and +1.4 PDT. In the Ayrshire breed, 9A38 Magic had an increase and offers outstanding production at +758m and +$83 for dollar value. Available in the Guernsey breed is a new, high dollar value sire, 8G171 Merit Fortune AGNI. His proof is +$111 +657m +.11% +44f +.04% on protein with 61% repeatability. And 21J337 Yankee at +$144 PD dollar value, along with 1J194 Soldier Boy at +$141 PD dollar value continue to be Jersey breed leaders.

Ford compact tractors.
At this rate, they may be the best buy going.

Compact tractors don't come any better than the 13 to 38-horsepower* Ford 1000 Series diesels. And now these high-quality units are an even better value.

Choose from seven models, all available with two or four-wheel drive: Ford 1110, 1210, 1310, 1510, 1710, 1910 and 2110.

Buy and take delivery between July 14 and November 30, 1986. We'll help qualified buyers arrange low 5¾% financing for up to four years through Ford Credit.

Save 50% on 3-year Extended Service Protection.

During this special sale period, you may also purchase Ford Extended Service Plan protection for three years or 2,500 operating hours, whichever comes first...for only half of the regular cost.

This is a limited time offer. Stop in soon for details!

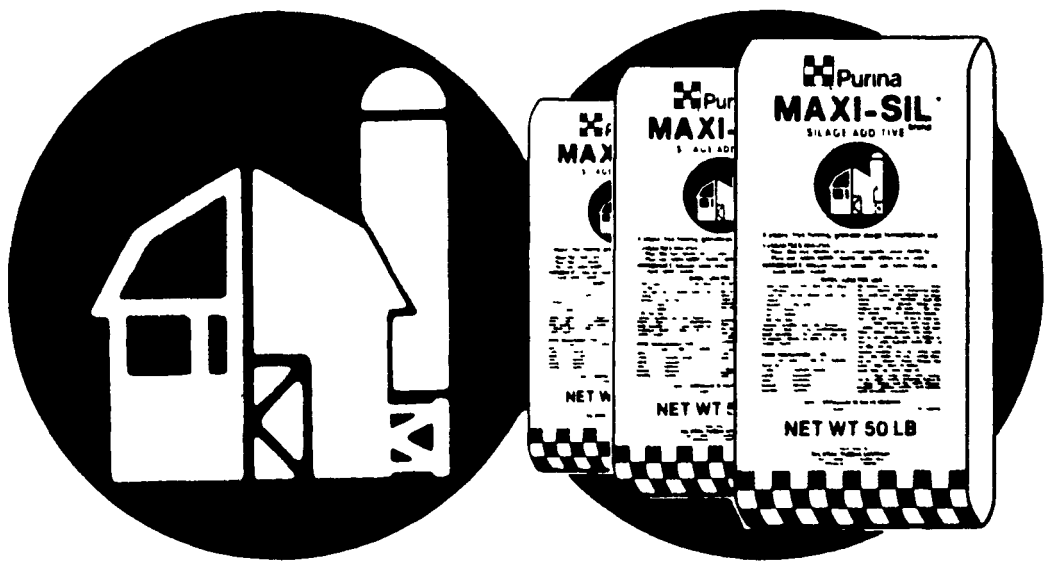
Purina®



MAXI-SIL™ Brand

SILAGE ADDITIVE

Nutritional Value

Purina MAXI-SIL™ Brand is a preservative that retains and protects the nutritional content and value of your silage longer.

Spoilage and Waste Reduction

Purina MAXI-SIL™ Brand minimizes spoilage and waste in silage stored in upright, trench, pit or bag silos. Palatability is retained longer in trench silo, silage facings and in feed bunks.

Palatability

Purina MAXI-SIL™ Brand contains enzymes that aid in the rapid production of natural lactic acid producing organisms and result in a sweeter smelling and tastier silage.

Treatment

Purina MAXI-SIL™ Brand is available in 50 lb. bags, enough to treat 50 tons of silage. Note: Follow application recommendations.
